U.S. Ready To Test Stockpile Of New Weapons If Ban Called Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has a stockpile of sophisticated new weapons ready to try out if its present moratorium on nuclear tests should be called off, the Atomic Energy Commission hinted Saturday.

The AEC also indicated in its annual report to Congress that it could start touching off the blasts on short order if President Eisenhower decides to resume testing.

The commission reported special emphasis is being given to the development of smaller, immediately ready and more rugged devices for use in advanced weapons systems.

No indication was given of the specific nature of the ready-for-testing weapons, but the devices presumably include new concepts for use by foot soldiers and in missile-firing airplanes and submarines.

The report said the AEC proving ground on the Nevada desert has been kept in standby readiness since the United States decided to suspend testing between Nov. 1, 1958, and at least the end of last year. The moratorium was imposed during the start of negotiations with the Soviet Union—still going on—for an agreement to end all such tests.

Eisenhower announced last Dec. 29 that the United States considered itself free to resume nuclear testing but would give the world advance notice before an resumption.

Progress was reported by the AEC in all phases of the atomic program with continued research aimed at such things as developing weapons of greatly reduced radioactive fallout for strategic, tactical and defensive use.

Uranium production in the United States increased 30 per cent last year over 1958, the commission said, keeping the nation in first place among free world uranium producing countries. Uranium is the key material of atomic energy.

How are chances for speeding the development of economic electric power from the atom? Better than ever, the report said.

Eighteen new civilian power reactors are under construction or development. They represent total commitments of 717 million dollars by government and private industry.

On the military side, the report said the Navy now has 37 nuclear submarines and three nuclear surface ships operating, under construction or authorized by Congress. Progress was reported on perfecting a nuclear powered aircraft. Initial testing of a proposed engine for a nuclear-powered rocket was successful. Several nuclear devices have been developed for giving auxiliary electric power to earth satellites.

Army Will Issue New Type Rifle, M14, This Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army this week begins issuing its new rifle, the M14, a versatile weapon capable of firing faster than a machinegun. It is expected to replace four older weapons.

First to get the M14 are units of the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., one of the four crack divisions of the Strategic Army Corps. STRAC is a force kept in readiness to rush to any world trouble spot on short notice.

The Army said Saturday the entire division will be equipped with the weapon by the end of this year. Deliveries will begin soon to other units.

The M14 was delayed four months by the steel strike, the Army said.

The new rifle is designed to replace the M1 Garand rifle, the M2 carbine, the Browning automatic rifle and the M3 submachine gun.

The M14 fires the new 7.62mm. cartridge adopted as standard by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The rifle weighs 10 pounds with a fully loaded 20-shot magazine.

The weapon, considered highly accurate, can fire at the rate of 750 shots a minute when equipped with a fire selector, compared to a maximum of 525 rounds a minute of the .30 calibre machinegun now in general use.

The M14 is capable of either automatic or semi-automatic fire. The 20-shot magazine compares to the eight-round magazine of all M1 Garand rifle used in World War II and in Korea. This will enable the foot soldier to remain on target 2½ times longer without loading than with the Garand.

The M14 also has a new flash suppressor which will help conceal a rifleman's position from the enemy.

Francis Jamieson Dies: Rockefeller Adviser, Newsman

NEW YORK (AP)— Francis A. Jamieson, 55, one of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's key advisers and a former Associated Press reporter who won a Pulitzer Prize for his coverage of the Lindbergh kidnaping case, died in New York Hospital Saturday after a long illness.

Jamieson began his newspaper career in 1922 in Trenton, N. J., as legislative correspondent for the Standard News Assn. and the Jersey Observer.

He was Associated Press correspondent at Trenton when he scored one of the great news breaks on the finding of the body of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., son of the flier, who had been kidnaped from his Hopewell, N. J., home.

Jamieson got his information from the New Jersey governor's office and was an hour ahead of the formal police announcement.

When Nelson Rockefeller was elected governor, Jamieson became a special assistant.

Report MacArthur's Condition Serious

NEW YORK (AP) — General of the Army Douglas MacArthur was reported in serious condition Saturday suffering from a nonmaligant prostate condition.

A 1st Army spokesman said the 80-year-old hero of two world wars, was not in critical condition. There was no immediate decision on whether surgery would be necessary.

MacArthur, who celebrated his birthday just last Tuesday, entered Manhattan's Lenox Hill Hospital for a urological examination Friday.

"Tests have indicated the presence of an obstruction in the urinary tract, which has interfered with the normal urinary function," announced Col. Gordon Barclay, 1st Army spokesman.

"The obstruction is due to a simple enlargement of the prostate gland of a nonmalignant nature. Preliminary treatment has resulted in most of the discomfort which was the reason for consulting a urologist. The general is now resting comfortably and is not in any degree of distress."

Prior to entering the hospital MacArthur had been examined by Dr. George W. Slaughter of the Lenox Hill staff. Dr. Slaughter advised the hospital tests.

MacArthur's chief aide, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, retired, spent Friday night at the hospital to be close to his friend and former commander. He said that this was probably the first time MacArthur had ever been a hospital patient.

Robbers Posing As Patients Rob Doctor Of $700

HOLCOMB, Mo. (AP) — Two armed robbers, posing as medical patients, took $700 from Dr. E. J. Carlin at his office in Holcomb, Mo., Friday night.

The robbers, carrying pistols, blindfolded Dr. Carlin, 54, with strips of adhesive tape and tied him to a bed in living quarters at the rear of his office.

He told state police they were about 25 years old.

The physician had been ill for about two weeks and hadn't made a bank deposit.

After about three hours, Dr. Carlin was released by his 16-year-old son when he returned from a basketball game.

M. Tascher, Farm Adviser, Killed In Car Crash

MORRIS, Ill. (AP) — M. E. Tascher, 53, Grundy County farm adviser for 23 years until his retirement last May, was killed Friday night in a two-car crash south of Morris.

Robert R. Bunt, 24, driver of a car which police said smashed the side of Tascher's auto, was charged with reckless homicide and held in Grundy County Jail on $10,000 bond. He and his son, Raymond, 4, were slightly injured.

Tascher, who lived on a farm near Morris, had been Cook County assistant farm adviser before taking the Grundy County post. He retired last year because of failing health.

He was a past president of the Illinois Farm Advisers Assn. a job he held three years, and was active in 4-H Club leadership work both nationally and locally.

State police said the wreck at Routes 47 and 113S occurred when Bunt ran a stop sign, struck Tascher's auto a glancing blow, hit another car on a gravel road across the highway and came to rest more than 100 feet later. The driver of the third car was not hurt.

Tascher, traveling alone, was en route to Dwight to pick up a son, George, returning from Southern Illinois University, Carbondale.

Lipstick Firms Win Reprieve: 3 Colors Listed As Harmless

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 80-million-dollar-a-year lipstick industry won onother reprieve Saturday from a government order forbidding the further use of some of its most vital colors.

The order, which the industry has construed as a virtual kiss of death, had been scheduled to go into effect Monday after two postponements.

It was suspended pending the outcome of a public hearing Feb. 17 to determine whether government tests were sufficiently complete to justify the conclusion that the red, orange and yellow coloring materials are unsafe.

At th same time Commissioner George P. Larrick of the Food and Drug Administration, who announced the action, said 3 of the 17 colors in the original order were being restored to the harmless list. They will be subjected to further tests.

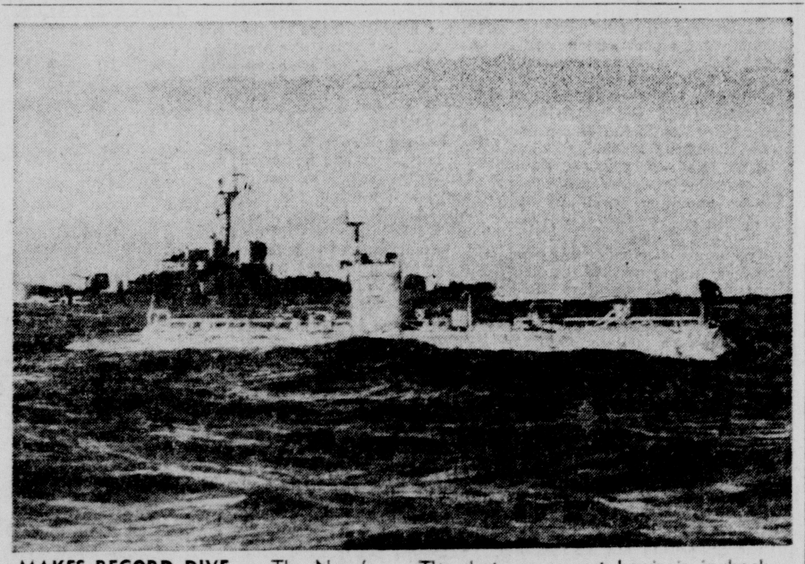

This leaves 14 coal tar shadings up for review at the hearing. They are the bulk of a group described before a congressional committee last week as the cosmetics industry's most vital colors. The evaluation was provided by Fuller Holloway, general counsel of the Toilet Goods Assn., which represents such big lipstick makers as Elizabeth Arden and Helena Rubinstein.

Demands for the hearing came from other such widely known brand makers as Revlon, Max Factor, Richard Hudnut and Avon.

The lipstick colors ran afoul of the Food and Drug Law last October when laboratory rats showed liver and kidney damage after being fed some of the coloring substances.

Industry spokesmen protested that the colors had been used in millions of lipsticks for more than 35 years without any evidence of harm to the users.

The three colors restored to the harmless list are designated D and C reds Nos. 11, 12 and 13.

MOST OF NATION GETS MILD WEATHER

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Saturday was sunny and mild over much of the nation, and the outlook for Sunday is the same.

Exceptions were the Northwest and Northeast corners of the country where rain or snow are forecast, and the Gulf States where the forecast was for cool weather.

The Central Plains warmed Saturday. With thermometer readings in the 40s and 50s, and the Northern Plains, with snow cover on the ground, had temperatures in the 20s and 30s.

Cold rain fell on the Southeastern states.

There were snow flurries in the Western Plateau region, and some rain fell in the Pacific Northwest.

STANDS GUARD — A grim-faced insurgent beauty, hand on dagger, stands guard on barricade in Algiers. The settlers' revolt against President De Gaulle tore the French Army into rival factions and brought civil war perilously close. There were unconfirmed rumors that De Gaulle himself might fly to Algiers to lead a march of loyal army troops against the insurgents in Algiers and the paratroops who have gone over to their side. De Gaulle Wins U.S. Esteem In Handling Of Algerian Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle of France, a man often berated here, has won the admiration of U.S. officials for his bold, decisive handling of the Algerian crisis.

Top authorities clearly believed the 67-year-old strong man has a good chance of saving France from a disaster that would gravely weaken the whole Atlantic Alliance.

There is evident here a growing confidence that somehow De Gaulle can resolve the situation without a damaging loss of French prestige.

Some Allied diplomats say De Gaulle had to prove himself and the political system of the French Republic at some time. The Algerian crisis could provide such proof if he can settle it promptly without compromising his policies or the authority of his government.

Many times Washington leaders have found themselves less ardently concerned for De Gaulle's success.

On some occasions they have regarded him as stubborn, uncompromising, mystical in his approach to politics and diplomacy, and almost fanatical in his dedication to his chosen task of restoring France to the role of a first rate power.

President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan have had a number of differences with De Gaulle since he assumed power during another Algerian crisis in mid-1958.

In an effort to reach better understanding, Eisenhower went to

W. German Pilot Sentenced For Treason, Spying

KARLSRUHE, Germany (AP) —A West German naval jet pilot was sentenced Saturday to five years at hard labor for treason and espionage for the Soviet Union. He was convicted of giving the Russians information about a Western "Complex X," but nothing was made public to describe the complex.

The Supreme Court said the act of treason committed by Horst Ludwig and his former boatswain's mate, Fritz Briesemeister, was so grave that it can still damage the security of the Western Allies if revealed publicly. Briesemeister, 33, was sentenced to four years on identical charges.

The public heard only a minute part of the spy activities charged to the 34-year-old senior lieutenant and Briesemeister. Testimony on major offenses was given in secret session.

Ludwig's sister, Hanni Jaeger, 37, and her husband, Werner, 31, who were tried with the navy men, also were sentenced for having engaged in treasonable activities by acting as go-betweens. Jaeger got three years in jail and his wife one. Both were excluded from the secret sessions and apparently knew nothing about Complex X.

Ludwig, first officer of the new German armed forces to be tried as a spy, admitted that he sent classified training pamphlets to Jaeger while training at the Pensacola, Fla., U.S. Naval Air Station. Jaeger gave them to Soviet intelligence.

Gen. J. Medaris, Top Missileman In Army, Retires

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, the Army's champion of a bigger program for ballistic missiles and outer space exploration, stepped down Saturday.

Retiring after 38 years in the Army, Medaris left behind a record of persistent urgings for more money and fewer restrictions in the nation's space race with the Soviet Union.

During formal retirement ceremonies, Medaris received two medals.

Secretary of the Army Wilber Brucker presented him the oak leaf cluster to the Distinguished Service Medal.

The Legion of Merit was presented by Maj. Gen. Samuel Callahan of the Air Materiel Command at Mobile, Ala.

Many of Medaris' arguments are expected to be outlined in a forthcoming book, tentatively titled "Countdown to Decision."

In the four years he headed the Army's missile and space effort, Medaris' voice repeatedly carried a warning and a word of hope. He said the United States was trailing dangerously far behind the Soviet Union in missile development, but could catch up by spending more money and sweeping re-organization.

Medaris, 58, began his military career as an under-aged Marine fighting in World War I. He entered the Army in 1921 and rose in 1956 to commander of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency. In 1958 he became commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Command, the over-all worldwide Army rocket and guided missile program.

Army Lines Give Way Before Crowd

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Defiant French insurgents used a cheering mob Saturday night to thwart army efforts to cut off the barricades in the streets of Algiers.

The mob shouted defiance of President Charles de Gaulle.

The women of Algiers were urged by a rebel leader to form a living wall before the barricades to guard their men against attacks by troops.

Insurgent leaders rejected what they said was a surrender ultimatum from the army, calling it an insult. The army denied issuing any ultimatum.

Paratroopers ordered to surround and seal off the barricades in the heart of the city were swept up in the surging, shouting throng.

Shoulder-to-shoulder army lines gave way before the crowd, and the big plaza before the barriers soon was black with a mass of humanity.

By 10 p.m. — with the army threat clearly stalled for the moment and a torrential rain pouring down — the insurgent loud speakers broadcast to the crowd: "We asked you to be here to exercise your pressure to help us. That pressure bore fruit. I cannot say more. Go home now. The 1st Parachute Rifle Regiment has received orders to impose the curfew. But be back at 8 o'clock in the morning."

A few moments later the loudspeakers boomed out again: "If you don't want to go home, come inside the barricades. Come where we are and we will give you something to eat."

Some in the crowd joined the dissidents in their wet strongholds but most straggled off home.

A picket of paratroops took up posts around the fringes of the barricades.

The army, under orders from De Gaulle to put down the week-old uprising, denied strongly that it had issued any surrender ultimatum to the rebellious Frenchmen of Algiers. The army said in a Radio Algiers broadcast the story of an ultimatum had been put out by an agent provocateur.

By decisions of their high command and by the mass weight of a mob of sympathetic citizenry, the insurgents all but nullified the army's first moves to carry out De Gaulle's demand for the restoration of order.

The army moves were:

1. Orders to Algiers territorials —the national guardsmen who make up the bulk of the 3,000 or so armed men behind the barricades—to report to their head-

Charge Billions Wasted By U.S. Defense Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business and industry spokesmen testified Saturday that billions of dollars are being wasted in the Defense Department by duplication and rivalry among the separate armed services.

Perry M. Shoemaker, president of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, urged establishment of a separate civilian-managed agency directly under the Secretary of Defense to control the spending of about 24 billion dollars annually on military supplies.

Shoemaker said his proposals had the support of ex-President Herbert Hoover; Charles R. Hook, chairman of Armco Steel Corp., and other members of the former government reorganization task force known as the Hoover Commission.

President Erwin D. Canham of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce urged Congress to appropriate most of the 40 billion dollar annual defense budget to the Secretary of Defense, rather than splitting it among Air Force, Army and Navy, as now is done.

Canham, in a statement, said the present defense procurement system for billions of dollars "has been woefully inadequate."

To Know Fate Of Trapped Miners Within 30 Hours

COALBROOK, South Africa (AP) — Rescue workers have pierced the hard rock formation that has blocked efforts to reach 435 miners trapped underground since Jan. 21.

The fate of the men—429 Africans and six whites—should be known within 30 hours, officials said.

A three-inch diamond drill penetrated the hard layer of dolorite Saturday afternoon and continued to a depth of more than 200 feet.

It is expected to go through the remaining 300 feet of shale and coal layers at the rate of about 10 feet an hour.

Meanwhile, a high-speed tungsten drill is still fighting through the dolorite. A third drill is making fast progress through the rock.

After the holes are completed, food, water and medical supplies will be lowered to any survivors of the 10-day ordeal.

A team of experts is sinking a shaft 12 feet across as an escape route.

Senators Told Castro's Regime Pleases Commies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuban Communists were described in a U. S. intelligence appraisal made public Saturday as delighted with the Fidel Castro government.

Gen. C. P. Cabell, deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, said Castro's "extreme policies" and violent outbursts are "extremely useful to international communism and are being exploited by the Communists to the maximum extent."

Cabell appeared at a closed session of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee on Nov. 5, about the time the U. S. and Cuban governments were exchanging charges and countercharges over the anti-Castro leaflet bombing of Havana.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss), released extracts of Cabell's testimony Saturday. The intelligence official said:

"The Communist viewpoint is that Castro represents leadership of a nationalistic bourgeoise-democratic revolution which precedes a Communist rise to power."

Cabell said Castro has delegated authority to persons known to be pro-Communists, or who are susceptible to exploitation by Communists. He said the Castro government "has allowed the Communists opportunity, free opportunity, to organize, to propagandize, and to infiltrate."

Describing communism as on the rise in Latin America generally, Cabell said the Red leaders "realize that the United States is more susceptible to hurt in this area than elsewhere."

Scientists Establish Basic Premise Of Einstein's Theory

NEW YORK (AP) — Ingenious experiments are giving some indication Einstein was right in two basic guesses about the universe.

One is that light seemed to lose energy when it rose up against gravity and gained energy when "falling" with the aid of gravity. This defect would tend to redden the color of light coming from massive stars. Scientists call the effect the "red shift."

A second is Einstein's principle of equivalence.

This means that anyone sitting in a spaceship, with no clues from outside, could not tell if his ship was resting by gravity on a planet, or was flying through space at constant acceleration.

These concepts have been hard to prove or demonstrate by astronomical means.

Now, laboratory experiments offer methods. The methods were described Saturday to the American Physical Society by scientists at Harwell, England and Harvard University.

Both groups are measuring gamma rays, a special type of X-rays emitted by certain radioactive atoms. The X-rays travel at the speed of light.

They are absorbed by the nuclei of other atoms at certain distances away, but if the frequency of the rays changes in flight, they are not selectively absorbed and this failure can be detected.

Gravity presumably could change their frequency or energy, and hence offer evidence that gravity similarly affects light rays.

The Harwell group said their results are still preliminary. Dr. J. P. Schiffer is working at Harwell on leads from the Argonne National Laboratory at Lemont, Ill.

Barricades On The Boulevards?

If The Army Tries To Dump De Gaulle Most Of France Will Rally To Him

By FRED SPARKS
Newspaper Enterprise Association

PARIS—(NEA)—What's the full meaning of the French crisis to the United States? Will there be barricades on the boulevards within a few weeks?

As a reporter I've covered France in her alternating post-war periods of shame and glory. And the above are two of the many questions I've been asking as the revolt - within - a - revolt paralyzes Algeria and spreads malignantly across the Mediterranean.

Listen to some of the answers —and allow me some comments.

Outside a winter sun yet manages to shimmer the Seine with golden slivers. Inside an imposing embassy a diplomat says:

"With her principal power bogged down in Algeria, France is not a serious factor in the North Atlantic Treaty defense of Europe. Billions of dollars of American aid is being wasted in the colony. Khrushchev has good reason to smile tonight."

How awfully true! Almost all of France's trained manpower including the brass-knuckled Foreign Legion is concerned with killing Algerians — and perhaps other Frenchmen. With the military so involved in North Africa, France is naked—Moscow could take Paris by telephone. Continuation of such a situation could mean that more American troops would have to serve on this continent.

A French journalist I've known at a dozen international headline-winning stories sips his apertif and says:

"In France almost every citizen is for de Gaulle. If the army tries to force him out, if paratroopers drop in the Champs Elysees, Paris will rise. Everywhere there will be barricades."

Are paratroopers dropping on Paris a Pernod-inspired nightmare? Not at all. In the first Algerian colonial revolt which brought de Gaulle to power, chutists were within hours of being loaded into air transports. A signal for their takeoff was to have been:

"The carrots are cooked . . .carrots are cooked."

A sophisticated political police officer—who can make an arrest in English, Spanish or Italian—shrugs and says:

"The craziest thing is that the Communists will be active for de Gaulle. They're well-armed and know the best positions for sniping in every Paris district."

The local Red rod-and-gun clubs don't love de Gaulle. He's long been number one on their hate parade. But they figure that in the turmoil of any civil war, they'd sell more party cards.

An old friend who lost his right foot to an Algerian land mine, but who has corked his bitterness, says:

"The army and the colonialists who defy de Gaulle are like children having a tantrum. They are shrieking for a lost cause. France simply cannot break the guerrillas in such terrain."

PARISIANS WHO marched for de Gaulle in 1958 (above) would do it again if the Army moved against him.

I know that terrain. You can hide an entire camel caravan from jet fighters by day and move to sneak attack by night.

"Perhaps," said my friend, deeply depressed, "France as it loses its colonies will become like Spain after she was driven from the New World. The Spanish army with no foreign employment went into local politics and took over in Latin American fashion."

The answers to sad questions in these days are so sad for France.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ernest Hemingway wrote his only play, "The Fifth Column," in 1937 while awaiting an offensive in the Spanish Civil War. It finally reached a mass audience on television Friday night.

The title, which became part of the language, refers to the saying that the rebels had four columns advancing on Madrid and a fifth column of sympathizers attacking the city's defenders from within.

The author wrote of the play: "It has the defects of being written in wartime, and if it has a moral it is that people who work for certain organizations have very little time for home life. But if being written under fire makes for defects, it may also give a certain vitality."

Hemingway wrote his own review. The play did have its defects but it was exceptionally vital. For, while it appears too slim for the stage, "The Fifth Column" made a good teleplay.

The dialogue was far superior to what is normally heard on the home screen. While the plot progressed fitfully, there were excellent scenes played by vivid characters.

The production was splendidly done. Richard Burton is one of today's best actors, and he played the hero with spirit. The rest of the cast was top-notch, especially Sally Ann Howes and Maxmilian Schell.

John Frankenheimer's direction was at its best in intimate scenes. When he tried to use movie technique in crowd shots, the effect was jumbled and noisy.

Hemingway's dramatic executor, A. E. Hotchner, did a good job of expanding the bare frame of the original. It sounded like the master with such lines as "I've never seen a politician die well" and "Never thank anyone in wartime." If it isn't Hemingway, it should be.

Article Tells Of 'Teaching Deaf Child To Read'

Miss Eloise Kennedy of the faculty of the Illinois School for the Deaf is author of an article appearing in the most recent issue of the American Annals of the Deaf. The article is entitled, "Teaching the Deaf Child to Read," and is concerned with various techniques and materials used in the Primary Oral Department of the local school.

The American Annals of the Deaf has the distinction of being the oldest educational journal in continuous circulation in the United States. Volume 1 is dated 1847-49 and the 1959 issues are Volume 104. During the Civil War there was an interruption of publication of several years.

The Illinois School for the Deaf is in possession of a complete file of all issues, with extra issues of later years, which are available to schools and libraries which are attempting to extend their files. There are only five or six libraries in the United States which have complete files. The early volumes are quite valuable. The ISD library also possesses a complete file of the Proceedings of the American Instructors of the Deaf, dating from 1850.

The Illinois School for the Deaf has had a library since 1870, although the need for one was mentioned in the Legislature of 1859-60. Under the management of the present librarian, Miss Elisabeth Johnson, and of her immediate predecessors, Mrs. Stella Heinl and Miss Anne Wakely Johnson, the library has acquired about 7,000 books for children, especially chosen for their suitability for deaf children, and almost two thousand professional books relating to the education of the deaf.

Mrs. Friedrich Engelbach, 1400 Mound Avenue, Jacksonville, plans to attend the 37th annual session of the Wellesley College Alumnae Council, February 4, 5 and 6 on the campus in Wellesley, Mass.

The Council is comprised of some 300 alumnae who have been chosen to represent their classes, regional clubs, and geographical fund areas.

This year's Council session will include several workshops concerned with Wellesley's continuing Personal Call Program. This is designed to acquaint all alumnae with news of recent campus developments and of Wellesley's most urgent requirement today: to raise as soon as possible $15,000,000 for improvement of faculty salaries. The Personal Call Program last fall, in which most of the 24,000 alumnae were callers or were called upon, has already resulted in increased support of the college in numbers of donors as well as numbers of dollars.

Following the traditional pattern, the main speaker at the opening meeting of the Alumnae Council will be the president of Wellesley College, Miss Margaret Clapp. At a later session, Council members will hear Miss Mary E. Chase, vice president and director of admission.

A new note this year will be an "Informal Report from the Trustees." The Honorable Charles C. Cabot, an attorney and former associate justice of the Massachusetts Superior Court, as chairman of the board will preside at this discussion program. Participants will be John R. Many of the Alumnae Council events will take place in the Jewett Arts Center, Wellesley's newest building which contains facilities for art, music and theatre and which has been acclaimed as an outstanding contribution to campus architecture in this country.

The unique stage wagon in the Jewett Center will be used for the concluding event on the Alumnae Council program, a presentation of intensely dramatic scenes from a 19th century drama by Schiller and from a recent Broadway production. Two outstanding students will perform both scenes, illustrating the adaptability of the theatrical facilities at Jewett as well as the range of offerings of the campus dramatic association.

When Salesman Gets His Shoe In Door It Can Lead To A Sock In Your Wallet

By JERRY BENNETT
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— Next time a stranger rings your doorbell and says he is a fire department official, poll taker or health inspector, make him prove it before you let him in the house. There's a good chance he may be the shyster type of door-to-door salesman.

This warning comes from officials of the Federal Trade Commission who are fighting deceptive house-to-house sales techniques. They explain that gaining entrance to your home under false pretenses is one of the most prevalent sales gimmicks used today.

Daniel J. Murphy, Assistant Director of FTC's Bureau of Litigation, recommends you always ask for a stranger's credentials before letting him get his foot in the door. Another safeguard is to check his identity with the company or agency he claims to represent.

Murphy says that it's just as important to take these steps when the stranger admits he is a salesman since small time hucksters often pass themselves off as representatives of well known manufacturing firms.

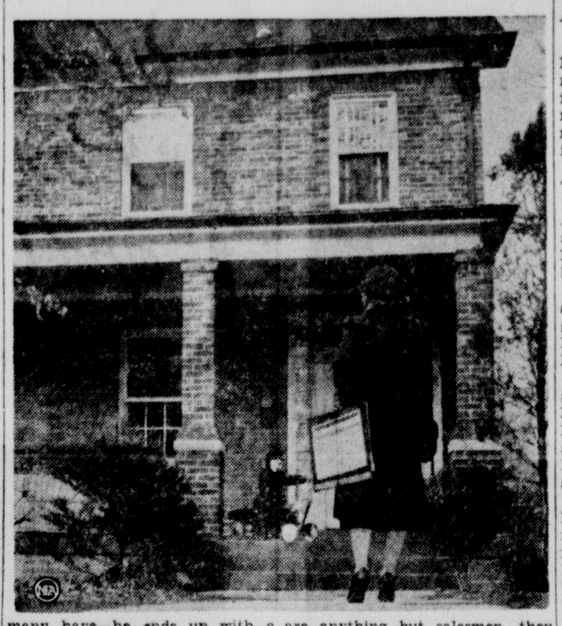

• • •

If the salesman's company is unknown to you, Murphy recommends you check its reputation with your local Better Business Bureau before buying anything.

One frequent fraud involves furnace company salesmen who pose as city utility inspectors. Claiming that they are conducting a safety campaign, they ask their victim to let them check his furnace.

The inspection calls for them to take the furnace apart. Once it is lying all over the basement floor, they announce it is a fire hazard and refuse to reassemble it. They quickly explain, however, that the householder can solve his problem overnight by purchasing a type of furnace that they highly recommend.

They just happen to have order blanks with them. If the dismayed householder is foolish enough to swallow this line—and many have—he ends up with a new furnace that he didn't need.

A similar deception is used to sell fire alarms. Claiming to be city inspectors, the salesmen tell a person his house has been selected to demonstrate the alarm. Then they show him newspaper clippings and ghastly photos of fire fatalities.

Their pitch is that the only way he can make sure the same horrors won't befall his own family is to buy the alarm. The conscientious victim often takes the bait.

FTC officials say that cooking utensil salesmen sometimes pose as health experts. By spieling scientific sounding nonsense, they convince a customer that their product will not only improve his health but also reduce fuel and food bills.

Commission officials say that some encyclopedia salesmen use another deception. Since it is too difficult for them to claim they are anything but salesmen, they often rely on impressive looking testimonials from school teachers to sell their books.

• • •

Murphy warns:

"Don't be misled by the production of a letter from sonny's teacher which indicates the purchase of the encyclopedia is necessary for his education. A little payola may be involved."

Murphy also warns you to be leary of signing anything when dealing with door-to-door salesmen. Many victims who think they are signing documents for credit checking are actually putting their names on promissory notes.

After he leaves the victim's house, the salesman sells the note at a discount to a bank or individual. This guarantees him a profit even if the sucker discovers that he has been cheated. The victim still has to pay the new owner of the note.

Negro's Voice Is Far Greater Than White Man's In Methodist Church Government

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

The average Negro in the Methodist Church has a greater share in its over-all government than the average white member.

It's an incidental result of a pattern backed by Southern white Methodists.

The roots of it are in subdivisional church segregation.

"It's a curious paradox," said New York attorney Charles C. Parlin, chairman of a 70-member commission to study the matter. "Segregation in the church has achieved complete integration in its governing bodies."

An "end-run victory," he called it.

The circumstances, however, have stirred a complex and troubling question in America's largest Protestant denomination: Should it continue a system of race segregation, or drop it at a present cost to Negro influence in the church?

It's up for a decision at the church's quadrennial general conference this spring in Denver, with advance tensions high, and clouded by the complications.

The church as a whole has repeatedly condemned segregation. But the commission, after four years of study and hearings in 24 cities, has recommended no forced change in the segregated structure.

"It's a compromise," said the Rev. Ralph Sockman, noted pastor of New York's Christ Church, and a commission member.

"Theoretically it's wrong because it puts Negroes in a separate classification. But practically, it gives them more representation."

In fact, the Negro's per capita voice in the church nationally is far greater than that of white members. In the 10-million-member denomination, only about 360,000, or 3 per cent, are Negro.

In contrast, however, 10 per cent of the church's bishops-four of 37-are Negroes. Of its 694 American policy-making delegates, 48, or 7 per cent, are Negroes. Of 692 members on 20 major boards and agencies, 64, or 9 per cent, are Negroes.

On the commission, which advises against any revision in the segregated subdivisions except by voluntary steps, 10, or 14 per cent, of the 70 members are Negroes. In all key churchposts, they surpass their numerical ratio.

Basis for the disproportionate Negro representation is the church's organization into five geographical jurisdictions, all overwhelmingly white; plus a separate one for Negro churches, the central jurisdiction, overlapping all the others.

Each jurisdiction elects its bishops, and gets certain representation on national governing bodies and agencies. Since the Negro unit has only about a sixth the membership of any regional unit, its representation per member is higher.

In its survey, the commission of Northern, Southern and Western churchmen, including both segregationists and antisegregationists, met strong opposition among Southern whites to any junking of the segregated system.

Some testified such action would splinter the church. Eight Southern white bishops said it would mean disaster. Negro bishops urged a go slow approach.

The commission urges numerous actions to further church integration at various levels voluntarily, including use of a four-year-old amendment whereby Negro churches or conferences may transfer to white jurisdictions.

Two jurisdictions have a standing invitation to any Negro church to join them if they wish, wherever they are. Only six have done so, with 36 others in the process. All are outside the South.

Five Draw Sentences On Burglary Charges

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP)—Five Lawrence County residents, ranging in age from 16 to 30, pleaded guilty to burglary and larceny charges Friday in Crawford County Circuit Court.

Denzil Collins, 16, and George Alexander, 22, were placed on two years probation. Ross Montgomery, 25, and Robert Fulton, 23, were sentenced to 1-15 years in prison by Judge Caswell J. Crebs. David Bryant, 30, was sentenced to 1-10 years.

State's Atty. J. Stanley Bradbury accused them of operating a burglary ring in Illinois and Indiana last year.

Bradbury said Bryant's wife provided authorities with the tip. Bradbury said she came to his office after a New Year's Eve fight with her husband and said a television set in the Bryant trailer home came from the Crawford County Country Club. Burglars looted the club in October.

Crebs ordered young Collins to serve 30 days of his probation in jail after his classes end this spring at Lawrenceville High School. Alexander was ordered to spend 90 days in jail.

Fulton, former St. Francisville man who has been living in Hammond, Ind., was denied probation because of previous complaints. Montgomery failed to get probation because of a burglary conviction nine years ago in Olney. Bryant, who has been living in Jacksonville, faces a forgery charge in Lawrenceville.

Two other defendants, Marvin Lee Wells and Lee Conover, were scheduled for hearings later.

Motivational Researchers Find:

Teddy Bears Are Not For Kids

Men Courting Insecure Females With Stuffed 'Animals'

By WARD CANNEL
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA) — Quick, everybody: bury your motives. It's psychological merchandising season again — this time in the bedroom.

The reason is a surprising rise in the nationwide sale of stuffed toys, especially those big, floppy tigers and lions. U.S. demands are so great, in fact, that imports from West Germany's leading toy maker have jumped to 6,000 per day.

Under circumstances like this, an industry would have to be off its collective rocker to hire motivational researchers (the probers into the deeper reasons for buying).

But several producers and merchandisers are frankly worried by the searing question behind this new prosperity, namely: "What did we do right?"

* * *

The situation is further muddied with a discovery by the Steiff Co., the world's leading producer of the Teddy Bear:

● More than half of these lions and tigers never see a nursery.

● They are, instead, bought expressly for the bedrooms and beds of young marriageable but unmarried young ladies.

● But these young ladies do not buy the stuffed animals. Young, marriageable but unmarried young men buy them.

Well, under circumstances like these, motivational research is clearly necessary. And so is a good dose of psychotherapy. Because, as it turns out, the motive-probers have been at work on this matter for some time.

* * *

Now, the motive-industry in the U.S. usually experiments on only small rodents and monkeys for the answers to human needs. So, to understand the problem of modern men, women and tigers, according to Dr. Ernest Dichter of the Institute of Motivational Research, we must understand what a roomful of nursing baby monkeys did in a recent experiment.

"Given the choice between an armor-coated real mother and a dummy made of a soft material, the babies chose the dummy.

IN OR OUT of bedroom, stuffed toys give girls secure feeling.

"Given the choice between an armor-coated real mother and a soft but non-nursing real mother, the babies chose the non-nursing mother.

"In every case," Dr. Dichter said, "baby monkeys preferred any kind of mother, as long as it was soft."

* * *

And now, the real-life application of the experiment.

"There is a basic feeling of security provided by softness," Dr. Dichter explained. "At the same time, there is a greater degree of insecurity in young, unmarried women."

Quite often, he said, the solution is a soft, cuddly dog or cat. But there are certain disadvantages to these animals which something else—like a fur coat—might not have.

Now, young men know this, Dr. Dichter said. And at the same time they have their own problems in courtship. They must camouflage their virility with soft, cuddly protective coloration.

But society has come to frown on young men who give young women fur coats. Besides, fur coats cost several hundred dollars. And while candy and flowers are less expensive in the short-run, the flowers soon wither and the candy is fattening.

So they give stuffed tigers and lions to the young ladies who naturally put them on their beds —harmless, cuddly, inexpensive, long-wearing, non-fattening and protective.

"You see," Dr. Dichter said. "It is all very simple."

Motel Guests Find The Price Is Right; They're Not Tipping Everyone In Sight

By WARD CANNEL

NEW YORK—(NEA) — Watch closely folks. The outstretched hand is quicker than the eye, bigger than the pocketbook.

American hotels sold 250 million guest rooms last year. About 80 per cent of the guests arrived by car. In rapid order they: tipped the doorman (25 cents) for taking the car, tipped the bellhop (25 cents) for taking their bags to the desk, tipped another bellboy (35 cents) for taking their bags to their rooms.

They also tipped (25 cents) each time they used their cars. And they paid in addition ($1 to $5 per day) for garage charges.

These statistics come from the American Hotel Association, the American Automobile Association, the New York Visitors Bureau and a fellow named Harold Steinberg who is cashing in on the whole mess.

His invention is called the Skyline Motor Inn, New York City's new, first motel—but not the last by a longshot. Things are so good that he's going to open two more across the street. And better (or worse), six competitors are building motels in the same neighborhood. The reasons:

● A week after it opened Skyline was filled to capacity while competitive hotels were running at their normal 70 per cent.

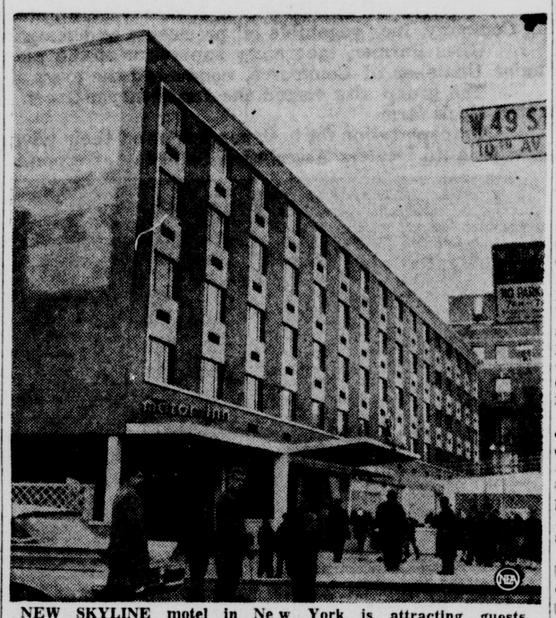

● One advertisement in a dozen eastern newspapers brought 20,000 answers. He has bookings well into September.

● The rates ($14 to $18 per night) are equal to same-size accommodations in plush mid-town hotels, and there is no parking charge and nobody to tip.

For the island of Manhattan, this is an enormous consideration. A square foot of midtown sells for at least $200. An average resting auto occupies $11,000 worth of land while a sleeping man occupies only $3,600—proving, as Detroit has claimed for years, that cars are worth more than people.

Consequently, the New York Hotel Association smiles blandly on Steinberg's motel and the others soon to spring up.

"This is no threat to us," an

NEW SKYLINE motel in New York is attracting guests. Rooms are booked well into September.

Association spokesman said. "We are not worried at all. Hotel business is better than ever."

But meanwhile, in one of those little mix-ups in signals, the American Hotel Association is saying: "Tough situation, those New York hotels. Maybe they can convert them into geriatric clinics. Or tear out the ballrooms and lobbies and put in parking lots. They'd better do something."

And in another part of the forest, the rush toward in-city motels is on by — oddly — the hotel owners themselves.

Veteran hotel watchers tell me that the Knott, Fields, Sheraton and Hotel Corp. of America people are going ahead with plans for in-city motels. The Manger company has just about finished its first try in Charlotte, N.C. And Treadway, in Rochester, has had a successful motel for some time.

It's more than enough to make a big trend in the hotel business. But it's only a nick in the U.S. tipping industry as there is still no invention to replace the hat-check girl, headwaiter or ball park usher.

Discussion On Safety Held By Woman's Club

BLUFFS—The Bluffs Woman's Club met Thursday afternoon in the Civic Club rooms with twenty-nine members and two children present. Mrs. Donald Mullen, vice president, presided at the business session.

The meeting opened with the pledge of allegiance to the flag led by Mrs. Jane Woodson, followed by prayer by Mrs. Cornelia Leonhard. Roll call was answered by assigned topics. It was reported that the club sign at the south edge of Bluffs has been put in place. Correspondence was read by chairmen of various projects.

The draperies committee, Mrs. Harvey Vortman, Mrs. Paul Welch and Mrs. Everett Neese, were given a sum of money for the purchase of material to replace the drapes in the Civic Club rooms with the permission of the Civic Club. Mrs. Leroy Vortman was appointed art chairman replacing Mrs. Ralph Jones.

A free-will contribution was made to the New March of Dimes. Mrs. Oliver Chambers showed a cookbook, given to her as a gift, which had been typed by a victim of polio by using a stick between her teeth. She is completely paralyzed with the exception of a slight movement of her head.

The club voted to take charge of the "cake walk" at the Band Boosters carnival March 11 and 12. The committee for this project is Mrs. Clarence Nortrup, Mrs. Oliver Chambers and Mrs. Freda Parker.

Mrs. Robert Bailey, American home chairman, presented material about the sewing contest. The president announced that all reports are due Feb. 1. Literature was available from the federation service bureau. The ways and means committee is being asked to recommend a money making project.

Mrs. Paul B. Smith had charge of the impromptu program for the afternoon. Mrs. Marla Carls of Virginia was unable to attend the meeting because of illness. Mrs. Smith recently attended the White House Conference and gave a very brief report of this meeting, pointing out that we need no more organizations but each organized club or group doing a better job in their various lines of endeavor.

Safety was one of the topics discussed. Mrs. Smith had the ladies divide into "buzz groups" and at the end of a time each group, through an appointed spokesman, presented their views on "Did you know we need to be concerned about safety in our town."

Some very interesting facts were brought out, such as observation of rules of the road regarding pedestrians, the need of improved sidewalks in our town to make better walking and observation of good sanitary rules regarding cold prevention.

Safety in the home was stressed by two groups in regards to care in the handling of electrical appliances and cords; don't use a chair for a step-ladder; don't pile things on stairsteps; be careful of those throw-rugs, don't let them throw you and be cautious of cleaning rags with combustible materials being used at house-cleaning time.

One woman spoke of a safety measure, sprinkle a little flour in the grease when frying eggs and the grease won't pop on you. The new speed limit signs were pointed out, these were recently placed in the school area on route 100.

Mrs. Jane Woodson displayed the oldest flag in Bluffs, one that has been in her family for about 75 years. It has thirty-six stars. Her father, Dr. Carver, had a flag staff on the top of one of his buildings that could be seen for several miles. She spoke in a most interesting and informal manner about the use of the flag, flag etiquette and how to properly display the flag. At the close of this portion of the program the group joined in singing "The Star Spangled Banner." Mrs. Woodson read a brief history of our national anthem.

The hostesses, Mrs. Guss Andres, Mrs. Ethel House, Mrs. Joe Smith, Mrs. Ollie Green and Mrs. James Baird, served cookies, nutmeats, mints, coffee and tea from an attractively appointed serving table. Mrs. House poured coffee and Mrs. Green poured tea.

Courtesy Club Ballot Curtain Falls Saturday

The official ballot for voting in Jacksonville's "Friendliest, Most Courteous" employee award election appears for the last time in next Saturday's Journal.

The deadline for voting is midnight Saturday, Feb. 6. Vote as many times as you wish between now and then, casting your ballots at the Journal Courier office, Elliott State Bank or Farmers State Bank.

Meanwhile the ballots are coming in by the hundreds. It will be quite a job counting them.

The man and woman selected Jacksonville's "Friendliest, Most Courteous" employees will each receive $50 U. S. Savings Bonds. But even more important than that, they will receive attractively framed Courtesy certificates "In recognition of your friendly service to your business contacts each day."

Your votes will help name the persons who will receive the special community honors.

Remember, the deadline for voting is midnight Saturday.

And here is the latest list of nominees and their places of employment. All will receive "Courtesy Club" membership cards.

Report Hungarian Reds Executed 150 Teen-Agers

LONDON (AP)—Britain's state-sponsored radio Saturday broadcast a report that Hungarian Communist authorities last month executed 150 teen-agers for taking part in the 1956 anti-Communist uprising.

The teen-agers were reported to have been held in jail until they were 18 and old enough legally to be executed.

The broadcast quoted a dispatch from Douglas Stewart, Vienna correspondent of the British Broadcasting Corp. quoting what he called reliable reports filtering out of Hungary.

The dispatch said that in addition to the teen-agers, 54 adults had been executed as rebels over the past six months.

The British Foreign Office refused to comment on the report, but some authoritative sources regarded it as well-founded.

The Hungarian government has denied charges voiced in the United States that it was holding large numbers of youths until they reached the legal execution age. The regime claimed it had never tried or sentenced anyone under the age of 21.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — C. W. Threinen and his Wisconsin Conservation Department crew have little sympathy with folks who have trouble thinking of names for their offspring.

Members of Franklin Elementary School PTA in Jacksonville voted Thursday, Jan. 28, to support the school board of District 117 in its efforts to pass an increase in the school tax at a referendum Feb. 20th.

The action followed a discussion of school district needs as outlined by board members Dr. E. C. Bone, Mrs. C. L. Kanatzar, Mrs. Freidrich Engelbach and Charles Williamson. Merle Wade, assistant superintendent, moderated the discussion after the group was presented by program chairman, Hugh Bradshaw.

Before the resolution was passed a large number of interested mothers and dads questioned the board members.

The meeting held in the school auditorium, was annual Dad's Night. The special speaker was Dr. Frank Marston, pastor of Grace Methodist church. His topic was Parent Responsibility.

Kilauea Volcano Continues On Destructive Path

KAPOHO VILLAGE, Hawaii (AP)—New lava flows from the relentless Kilauea volcano threatened Saturday to wipe out the few remaining buildings in this tiny, abandoned farming village.

The eruption was in its 17th day.

New flows were diverted toward the village on Hawaii Island by debris from cinder cones.

A surge Wednesday night and Thursday wiped out all but eight buildings in the evacuated village in which 300 persons had lived.

Most of the fiery river was pouring into the ocean three miles from the volcano.

The lava was pushing toward the sea along a 9,000-foot front.

Forty-nine homes and buildings have been destroyed. Damage is estimated at more than four million dollars.

Louis Jean Heydt, Completes Scene, Collapses, Dies

BOSTON (AP)—The show went on at the Colonial Theater Saturday following the dramatic death Friday night of Louis Jean Heydt, 54, veteran stage and screen actor.

Heydt was the victim of a fatal heart seizure shortly after completing the opening scene in the play "There Was a Little Girl." He walked to the wings and collapsed as action on the stage continued.

William Adler, understudy for Heydt, immediately took over the role following an announcement to the audience that Heydt was unable to continue.

Company manager David Lawlor said Saturday Adler will continue in the role temporarily.

Ike, McDonald Meet, Discuss Steel Prices

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—President Eisenhower and David J. McDonald, head of the United Steelworkers Union, had a 90-minute breakfast chat Saturday. And there were indications the steel price question may have been discussed.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, described the session as mainly social. But he added in reply to a question that he assumed there was some discussion of the recent settlement of the marathon steel strike.

The breakfast meeting was at the Southern California desert resort home of Eisenhower's vacation host, Washington's George E. Allen. And Allen, also at the breakfast, is a director of the Republic Steel Corp.

That fact, and Hagerty's remarks seemed to make it likely there was some talk around the table of whether steel prices will go up eventually as a result of the strike settlement, which was to a great extent on the McDonald Union's wage-increase terms.

At Eisenhower's direction, Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, played key roles in the settlement of the 116-day strike.

McDonald, a Democrat, is expected to be a delegate to the party's presidential nominating convention in July.

Some key steel company officials said after the settlement they had no plans for any immediate boost of steel prices.

Nixon, at this time a sure bet to win the Republican presidential nomination, stands to benefit politically so long as prices are not hiked. But the settlement he helped negotiate could boomerang in the event of any inflationary price rise in the next few months.

Eisenhower will leave Palm Springs about 7 a.m., Monday and travel by jet airliner to Denver where Mrs. Eisenhower has been visiting her seriously ill mother, Mrs. John S. Doud.

After two hours at the Doud home, he and Mrs. Eisenhower will fly to Washington, arriving there by 6 p.m.

Doctor Calls Pilot Lucky

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "He was a fantastically lucky man," a physician said of Air Force Capt. Adam E. Tyra who emerged alive from the crash of a supersonic jet.

The pilot today is in the Portland Air Force Base hospital to undergo X-rays and further examination. Surgeon Ronald Rohlfing said Tyra suffered burns on his face and arm, possible internal injuries and possible fractures of the spine and knee.

Tyra's F102A Delta Dagger went down Thursday. Tyra was knocked unconscious when the jet crashed on Davis Peak, 42 miles north of Portland.

When he came to, he found the wreckage in flames. Tyra beat out the flames then crawled away from the jet.

He spent Thursday night in a lean-to fashioned from a parachute. Friday he set out limping to find help. After two miles, he came upon an abandoned cabin. A logger who lives in the area found him there.

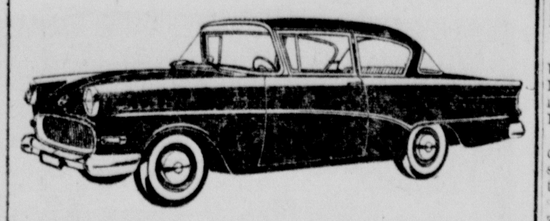

SHADE ASSURED

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Perhaps, as Joyce Kilmer said, only God can make a tree, but the city of St. Louis can, and does, give them away.

The city's residential sections have long been known for their shady tree-lined streets. But the trees, many of them planted more than 100 years ago, are beginning to die off.

So the city department of parks, recreation and forestry raised some shade trees, and they're free to any St. Louis home owner or renter. Each tree is from eight to 10 feet tall.

30 Under Care At Oak Lawn Sanatorium

The executive committee of the Morgan County Tuberculosis Association met in the board room at the Jacksonville Public Library to discuss facts pertinent to the work of the Association and to hear reports. Dr. McKendree M. Blair conducted the business meeting. A report from J. A. Long, treasurer of the Association was given, after which Mrs. Verne Anderson, Secretary gave a report of the successful 1959 Christmas seal sale.

The sale this year was the largest that Morgan county has had, which makes it a Beacon County again for the fifth consecutive year. Becoming a Beacon means the Seal Sales receipts were ahead of receipts on the same day the previous year.

Mrs. Anderson stated this again proved the interest and concern of the residents in the Morgan County area of the work being done, and the facilities available at Oaklawn Sanatorium. The seals were prepared for mailing by volunteers and added to many hours work. The Morgan County Chapter of 8 et 40 Auxiliary have the stuffing of the Christmas Seals as their project each fall and work diligently until the thousands are in readiness for the post office.

Mrs. Anderson stated the year ends March 31, 1960 but any who have misplaced their envelopes may still get the contribution in the mail as any and all are welcome at any time to carry on the work representative of the selling of the traditional Christmas Seal.

Dr. Morris Greenberg, medical director at Oaklawn Sanatorium, gave comparison figures and reported during the period August, 1958 and August, 1959, 2,623 x-rays were taken.

Of that figure 565 were from outside Morgan county, leaving a total of 2,056 Morgan county residents using the facilities offered locally. Approximately 2,000 skin tests for TB were made on children and personnel in Morgan County Schools and residents of Morgan Co. besides tests being made where School Districts overlap. In these skin tests, the school nurses or health nurses assisted Dr. Greenberg. The supplies for the tests are furnished through the sale of the seals along with literature relative to the skin test as well as the consent cards sent to the parents before the children and older students are skin tested.

The sanatorium now has 30 patients, including one school age child who is being reached regularly by the home bound teacher furnished by School Dist. 117.

Chinese Junk Market Sinking

Too Much Of Good Thing Lowers The Boom On Sales

By WARD CANNEL

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Inside tip on the market: if yo u own shares of Chinese junk, sell fast. The boom is over.

This is the sad but authoritative word from top-level management in the industry. And if anything was at fault, they say, it was too much of a good thing.

Briefly, for the few Americans who have never heard of it, a Chinese junk is a great big thing made out of teak and Borneo hardwoods and used in the Orient as a sail boat, fishing smack and beach-front residence. It is built today as it has been built for thousands of years—by primitive tools and very cheap coolie labor.

Very, very cheap. A U.S.-built 25-foot cabin sailboat can cost $5,000 or more. A same-size Chinese junk costs only $750 in Hong Kong (plus another $750 to import). Besides a junk needs no painting, polishing or other general upkeep, so it is much cheaper in the long-run to import a junk instead of a coolie.

* * *

Now, the U.S. boom in these boats began three years ago when a fellow named Charles Schreiber and his wife decided it would be nice to have a small model junk to decorate the fireplace mantel in their three-room apartment.

"So," said Schreiber, "we wrote to Hong Kong about it and they wrote back immediately. But apparently they misunderstood the words 'small model' because pretty soon we found we had contracted to buy a 25-footer."

Moments after this news, Schreiber and his wife formed the Trans-orient Boat Co.—sole American importers and distributors of 25-foot Chinese junks to be called the "Seadragon" class. Sales price: $2,500.

CHINESE JUNKS, such as one above, are sailing off market.

Within six months they had three competitors. Another six months and two more competitors.

* * *

Immediate leader in the field was a Long Island company called Woodbridge Imports which rushed into the market with 28 of various lengths. Price of the 30-foot family-size: $5,000 including opium lamps and like that.

By the beginning of this year there were 75 junks for sale from Seattle to Miami. There were also several outright purchases in Detroit, Houston and the West Coast.

Boom-starter Schreiber, however, did not make one sale. Consequently, he cut his price to $1,900. And while Chinese Junks, Ltd. and Cathay Boats, Ltd. held firm, Woodbridge imports retaliated with a special offer of two-for-$5,000.

"We got a lot of interest," Woodbridge president Ray Henry said. "But only one sale. A marine museum in Connecticut bought a 19-footer to set on their grounds."

* * *

It gave Henry a new idea. "You don't have to sail the junk," he said. "You can use it for a front porch or put it in your backyard as a tea house. Makes a wonderful conversation piece. And very durable."

So far, however, no response in the dwindling market. And only once in the recent slump did Schreiber see a chance for profit. That was when the U.S. Navy announced an atomic submarine to be called "The Sea-dragon."

"I had paid $75 to register that name," Schreiber said. "I went to see my lawyer. But he wouldn't sue. So I sat down and wrote the Navy and they wrote back immediately inviting me to the christening.

"I was going to go and make a scene. But my wife gave birth to a son and I had to go to that christening instead."

Airlines Seek Ways To Prevent Sky Murders For Insurance

By JOY MILLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

If you're the nervous type of plane passenger, the past few weeks' may have been more unsettling than an air pocket.

Have recent reports of possible sabotage in two airline disasters made you look uneasily at travelers around you?

One plane crashed into the Gulf of Mexico last Nov. 16, taking 42 lives. Investigators are looking into possible connections between the tragedy and a man named Robert Vernon Spears, a heavily insured ex-convict who was supposed to have boarded the doomed craft but didn't.

And 34 died in the mysterious crash of a DC6B near Bolivia, N.C., Jan. 6. Among the victims was a young New York lawyer, Julian Frank, who had nearly a million dollars worth of insurance.

Whatever the outcome of investigations of the two crashes by the Civil Aeronautics Board, the FBI and other agencies, the problem of preventive steps has once more come into focus. How can you avert plane sabotage by people bent on dramatic suicide or mass murder for gain?

Airlines are concerned about the situation. A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Agency, which writes and enforces civil air regulations, says the problem is being studied from all angles. So far, however, a feasible plan has not been advanced for detecting bombs, and it seems just about impossible to check all baggage.

Inspecting every piece of luggage at every loading point just isn't practical, even if airlines had enough personnel. Passengers would resent the delays, even the snooping.

For general checking, two frequent suggestions are to use gadgets which fluoroscope baggage, or examine it with magnetic devices.

The fluoroscope, though, would ruin any photographic film. Furthermore, it only supplies a shadow outline and couldn't detect bomb devices that hadn't been assembled.

Use a metal-detecting device, and it would sound alarms when it spotted innocent traveling clocks, electric shavers, irons.

Even a thorough inspection of all luggage wouldn't necessarily hamper a determined psychopath, says one airline official.

"There are lots of possible ways around it. The bomb could be hidden in his clothing.

All this doesn't mean that airlines aren't doing something about the threat, he adds. Employes at ticket counters, on the ramp, and in the hangars, are alerted for suspicious baggage, cargo, or people.

Trained security personnel of airlines have methods of detection which, understandably, they don't like to publicize.

The other day James Pyle, FAA deputy administrator, said it was not so much a problem of inspecting passengers' luggage as it was of checking their minds.

Air flight is just one of the ways in which now and then someone chooses to act out his aggressions or criminal urges.

On Nov. 1, 1955, an airliner exploded in flight over a sugarbeet field near Longmont, Colo., 11 minutes after taking off from Denver. It was the United States first commercial plane sabotage disaster.

Among the 44 killed was Daisie E. King. Her 23-year-old, crewcut son, John Gilbert Graham, had taken her to the airport, bought her $37,000 worth of flight insurance. Inside her suitcase he had slipped a bomb made of 25 sticks of dynamite, set to go off 90 minutes later.

Ironically, the insurance policy was invalid because Mrs. King hadn't signed.

Graham, who helped his mother in her drive-in restaurant, was married, with two children. His wife said he had told her, after reports the plane had been sabotaged, that "anybody that would do a thing like that would have to be completely out of their mind."

He refused an appeal after his conviction, asked to be executed as soon as possible. Before his death in Colorado's prison gas chamber, he told a minister he hated his mother. He felt she hadn't loved him because she had put him in a welfare home to be raised after the death of his father.

As a means of suicide, planting a bomb aboard an airliner is not always effective. But it worked for a 62-year-old retired jeweler of North Hollywood, Calif., named Saul F. Binstock.

In the summer of 1957 he hurtled 7,500 feet to his death in California's Mojave Desert. The CAB said he dynamited himself out of the plane. The blast tipped a 40-foot hole in the aircraft, but 15 others aboard were unhurt in the emergency landing. His wife was beneficiary of $125,000 in flight insurance.

It didn't work for Alfred del Valle in 1953. His packaged bomb exploded just after it was removed from a Mexican airliner at Mazatlan. Three airport employes were killed.

Del Valle, a middleaged Hermosillo, Mex., banker, confessed planting the bomb so relatives could collect insurance. In any event, the plan wouldn't have worked: his luggage accidentally had been loaded aboard a different plane from the one he took.

He received a 20-year sentence, but the next year he took poison in a Mexican penal colony. That time, he succeeded in suicide.

CLOTHING MANUFACTURERS CONSULT EDITOR

Robert M. Capps, president of J. Capps and Sons, Lld. (at left) and Joe Bagale, sales manager, consult with Mrs. Clara Hancox, Editor of the Young Man's and Career Shop Division of the Industry Trade Paper on the subject of further development of their traditional national shoulder division.

All three were present at the semi-annual sales meeting held Thursday and Friday of this week at the clothing company.

J. Capps & Sons Hold Semi-Annual Meeting; Unveil New Styles

Representatives of J. Capps & Sons, Limited, held their semi-annual Sales Meeting Thursday and Friday of this week to review the experiences of the last year and to hear of the development and plans for the year 1960. At this time they were presented with their complete Fall lines of fabrics and models; also their advertising, promotional, and merchandising for the coming Fall 1960 season. Nine territorial salesmen, the Chicago office manager, and members of the advertising agency joined the members of management in the two day session.

It was announced during the Sales Meeting that J. Capps & Sons would for Fall '60 present an entire new division of clothing called "The Natural Shoulder Division," this to be dedicated to the new growth in style of traditional or natural shoulder clothing, which has had a profound influence on the men's wear industry nationwide.

In Stock Many Years

It was pointed out that, although J. Capps & Sons have carried this styling for many years, their approach would be somewhat different this Fall with more concentration on the packaging of the various elements of this style concept.

Mrs. Clara Hancox, Editor of the Young Man's and Career Division of Daily News Record, (The industry daily newspaper) was flown in from New York to discuss the pertinent problems of traditional or natural shoulder clothing from the retail point-of-view.

Salesmen Stature

Mr. Lee Farris, Vice-President in charge of marketing of the Biddle Company, J. Capps advertising agency, spoke to the group on the subject of Salesmen Stature. He pointed out that in his travels he found that the company's corporate image among fine retailers throughout the country was an exceptionally good one, that they as salesmen were highly regarded, and their products and management were both highly regarded.

It was announced at the meeting that the Agency, under the direction of management had instituted an advertising program for Fall of 1960 which was considerably larger than ever before, that four national ads in Sports Illustrated, Esquire, Gentlemen's Quarterly, and Playboy magazines would run during the Fall season. A continuation of their local level advertising through their seven hundred and fifty customer's local newspapers would also be intensified, and that they expected to distribute between 300,000 to 500,000 mailing pieces through their retail dealers.

New Models

A professional model was brought in for the presentation of the company's new models developed and presented by E. R. Manzi, Vice-President in charge of Manufacturing and Design.

Beside the further development of the natural shoulder models four new coats had been designed—two topcoats, a new continental type sport coat, and the Transo model, which is a new continental suit style.

The largest and most complete selection of fabrics ever to be shown by the company was presented by Donald Pavlick. He pointed out during this meeting that the development of our better quality lines had shown the greatest growth—that more and more the consumer was looking to J. Capps & Sons for smarter styling and finer fabrics, particularly in the import field.

Enlarged Group

He further pointed out that by the separation and development of the Natural Shoulder Division this group of fabrics had been greatly enlarged and made as authentic as any to be found in the industry.

Mr. Pavlick also explained that, whereas the trend in color had not developed into an extremely light period, medium tones would be strong, and more use of color would be employed in fabrics. This was particularly true of gold and olive, which he explained was J. Capps & Sons color theme for 1960.

Meetings held were under the direction of Robert M. Capps, president, H. A. Hammitt, Executive Vice President, and Joe Bagale, Sales Manager.

The salesmen left Jacksonville for their territories over the weekend. J. Capps & Sons distribution extends from an area west from Ohio to the Pacific coast. It is expected that their Fall trips will continue from now until the 1st of June.

William Hannant, 48, Killed In Cave-In

PITTSFIELD — William Hannant, a 48-year-old Perry resident, was killed in an accident in Quincy Friday afternoon. Hannant, an employe of the Quad City Construction Co. was working alone at the bottom of a 15 foot sewer excavation at the corner of 7th and Spruce streets. At about 4 p.m. the sides of the excavation caved in, covering Hannant.

Fellow workers dug toward Hannant, uncovering his head and shoulders. He was still breathing and able to talk to them. A police emergency unit arrived at the scene and fed oxygen to Hannant while the workers sought to free him.

As dirt was removed the loose walls continued to cave in. Finally a crane lowered a section of pipe, four feet in diameter, over Hannant to protect him from further cave-ins.

Two hours after the cave-in Hannant was removed from the excavation. He was pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Hannant was born in Perry, Jan. 5, 1912. His father, Charles, preceded him in death. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Calvin Liehr; his wife, the former Laverne Huston; two children, Mrs. Barbara Gordley and Kent Hannant, and one grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the Perry Methodist church, in charge of Rev. Ralph Johnson and Rev. Russell Rose. Burial will be made in Wilson cemetery, with Masonic rites.

The remains are at the Rounds Funeral Chapel in Mt. Sterling, and will be removed to the Perry church at 10 a.m. Monday.

Briton's Animal Lovers Seeing Red Over Ireland's Trading In Horses

By TOM A. CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON — (NEA) — There is nothing that arouses the British to fighting fury more than cruelty to dogs or horses.

Every time the Russians send a dog into orbit in one of their sputniks there is an outcry from British animal lovers. The same is true every time a consignment of rhesus monkeys arrives here for use in medical experiments.

Just now the Irish government is bearing the brunt of the animal lovers' fury.

The British are up in arms against the shipment of Irish horses to the continent for slaughter. About 7,000 horses are shipped abroad each year for this purpose, horsemeat being part of the French and Belgian diet.

No one here would object if the horses were slaughtered in Ireland under humane conditions and their meat quick frozen for sale to the Belgians and the French. The trouble is that the Irish send their horses by sea to continental ports.

Recently, the British press has been full of pictures of horses dying or dead on the cobblestone quays of Antwerp and Dieppe. "Bloody . . . fiendish . . . abominable . . . cruel" are some of the adjectives used to describe the quayside scenes.

* * *

His Holiness, Pope John XXIII, has become indirectly involved. In a front-page editorial The Daily Mirror (over 4,000,000 circulation) wrote:

"Clearly, the time has come for intervention by Pope John XXIII, the farmer's son who has been called The Pope from the Fields."

(A Vatican spokesman hastily replied that the Holy Father "could not possibly intervene, but it is certainly not his wish that any dumb creature should be subjected to unnecessary hardship.")

* * *

Headquarters for the International League for the Protection of Horses has been averaging 300 letters a day, all against the Irish horse traffic.

"Some of the women are getting quite hysterical," says Kay Colvin, the press secretary. "They want to know why we don't go over and shoot the Irish prime minister."

"No one yet has suggested that the British send a battleship up the Liffey River, but I expect that someone will," Colvin added.

"Let us all refuse to buy a single Irish article until we have forced the Irish to consider humanity before money," says Mrs. Gertrude Collier, secretary of an animal protection society in Sheffield.

The present furor began on Dec. 28, when the bloated carcasses of a dozen horses, some with their legs tied together, were washed ashore in western Wales.

Investigation disclosed that they were part of a shipment of 100 horses which left Dublin for Dieppe on Dec. 19 aboard the 620-ton City of Waterford. A total of 47 horses died during a gale in the Channel, and another 11 were shot when the ship arrived in Dieppe.

THIS HORSE NEVER made it to the slaughter house.

Horses, according to Colvin, suffer sea-sickness just like human beings, only they cannot relieve themselves by vomiting. "In addition, many of them get knocked about and trampled by other horses during a rough passage. They arrive bruised and bleeding."

* * *

A reporter recently described what happens on the French side of the Channel. "I have seen dying horses which could not stand," he wrote, "hitched to a lorry by ropes and dragged out of railway wagons to lie gasping in the snow."

As a result of these disclosures a number of animal lovers, both Irish and British, have been picketing the Dublin sheds every time a shipment of horses is due to leave port.

At the moment there is talk of banning Irish racehorses from the Grand National, Britain's top racing event, until the Irish government stops shipping live horsemeat. To a nation as mad about racing as Ireland this could be the bitterest blow of all.

She Practices The Teachings Of Her Religion—

Finds Her Life's Challenge In Work With Children

BY NEA SERVICE

NEW YORK—(NEA) — Dorothy Beers is a Christian who practices what her religion preaches—charity and compassion. She recently returned to her New York apartment for a brief vacation after spending six years setting up child care centers for Jewish children in poverty-stricken Moslem villages in Morocco, Tunisia and Iran.

Miss Beers, a Presbyterian, is chief consultant on child care for the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, whose welfare agency is supported by the United Jewish Appeal. Dorothy, who doesn't like to waste time on words, simply calls her supporting committee "The Joint."

"Ours is a fascinating job with deep satisfaction in human values," she says. "We work entirely with underprivileged children, youngsters we can do something about. The early years of a child's life are the most crucial.

"Children we bring into our centers are so lacking in living essentials that some might think of them as vegetables. Our workers bring them in from dirty streets, give them a bath, a haircut, food and clothes.

"If I were to seat one on a chair at that stage, he would stay there all day without moving unless we started him in his new way of life. It seems like a miracle when in a few months they begin to sparkle.

"When The Joint goes into an area, feeding and medical care are our first duties," she explains. "These children had never known milk and at first they don't like it. We teach mothers how to use powdered milk, first step in overcoming malnutrition. Though mothers are illiterate, we do a lot with them.

"We include religious education, teach Hebrew songs and dances. Families have been so impoverished that they are ignorant about their own religion. The children we are teaching will not change their world, but their children will have better advantages."

Asked how it came about that a New York Protestant happens to be doing an important job for a Jewish organization, Miss Beers, who holds a masters degree in child education, says:

"I had the professional training and considerable experience. I had some skill in knowing how to influence an environment. This organization had a job for what I could do. Its officers were willing to have me apply American techniques in training native teachers and using our system with children. "The job calls for helping local people establish centers. We go in at their request to help solve their problems and we train local girls for our staff. Change is taking place. We see it constantly. A girl who worked for us is now a typist and receptionist at the American embassy. Iran has gone ahead faster than the other countries."

Dorothy Beers

Miss Beers returned to America in the hope of recruiting workers, preferably young Jewish women who have specialized in education at early childhood.

Her schedule calls for her to interview girls in Chicago, Milwaukee and Grand Rapids. Near the end of January she will be at headquarters in Geneva, then off to Morocco, Tunisia and Iran.

"I find it hard to understand why more people are not clamoring to come and join this work," she says. "It offers travel and opportunity for a professional person to use her skills in new environments.

"We don't want anyone under 30. A teacher must be strong enough to endure occasional loneliness, to sit alone in a luxurious dining room in the off-tourist season, also strong enough to have developed judgment about people.

"A foreign Jewish organization is in a delicate position in a Moslem environment."

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP) — The fourth successive net gain in the butcher hog market advanced prices 25 to 50 cents a hundredweight the past week and boosted them to their highest levels since September.

The top of $14.35 on Thursday was the highest peak since $14.50 was paid on Sept. 11 and the average cost that day of all barrows and gilts hit $13.46, the highest since Sept. 23.

The supply of 43,000 head for the period was the smallest for any five-day trading week since October. The small offerings and a good general demand were credited with the continued strength.

The offerings of slaughter steers declined about 10 per cent from the previous week but general trade on that class was steady to 50 cents lower while some heavy choice grade and below were as much as $1.00 lower.

Buyers again were very selective and influenced somewhat by weights with that factor a controlling influence again in the bidding. Lighter weights were preferred.

After Monday's sharp setback, the sheep market improved somewhat but finished the week no better than steady and in some instances still 25 cents lower. Offerings of 10,000 head for the week were down about 5,000 from a week ago.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK AP)—The stock market took one of its sharpest losses in history as the first month of the "golden sixties" ended.

Total quoted value of issues on the New York Stock Exchange skidded 19 billion dollars to about 288 billion, based on the fall in The Associated Press average. The total listed value was down to 288 billion.

The AP 60-stock average fell $13.80 from its Dec. 31 close to $216.70. It hit a record high of $235.80 last Aug. 3.

The Dow Jones industrial average was down to 622.62, a fall of 56.74 since Dec. 31.

Even though the present loss lacked such dramatic reasons, it was most closely comparable with the Sputnik market of 1957. Then The AP average toppled from a high of $188.80 July 12 to a low of $150.90 on Oct. 22—a loss of $37.90 by the time the first Soviet Sputnik had been in orbit a month.

The January market started strong on the crest of a steel strike settlement. On the second day of trading, Dow industrials hit a historic closing high of 685.47. That was the last show of strength all month.

Volume was 14,005,490 shares compared with 14,219,090 the previous week.

The five most active stocks on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Studebaker - Packard (when-issued), off 2 at 13⅜ on 235,300 shares; American Motors, off 5⅜ at 73⅜; Studebaker-Packard Common, off 3¾ at 17¾; General Motors, off 2¾ at 47⅞; and Ford, off 4¾ at 79⅛.

Short-term money rates eased a shade this week as U.S. government bonds advanced and corporate securities drifted lower.

Volume amounted to $28,494,000 par value on the New York Stock exchange, compared with $27,316,000 last week and $33,210,000 for the corresponding week of 1959.

GRAINS END LOWER ON BULLISH MARKET

CHICAGO AP)—The grain futures market bucked a bearish outlook almost all week and ended mostly on the downgrade with old crop soybean contracts leading the setbacks on losses ranging to more than three cents a bushel.

By far the major volume of business again was in the soybean pit and fluctuations were rather broad most days. Tuesday, soybeans attracted their best demand of the week and moved well ahead as brokers expected at least a slightly bullish government report on the stocks of that commodity in all storage positions Jan. 1.

However, the figure of about 454 million bushels available was far above expectations and the pressure of liquidation thereafter was virtually constant.

The grains, little affected by storage figures, gradually drifted downward despite a fairly good export total for the period.

At the end of the week, only corn approached its low levels of the crop year. All old crop contracts were within two cents or so of the bottom.

Wheat closed ¼-1⅝ cents a bushel lower than a week ago, March $2.09⅝-¾; corn ½ lower to ½ higher, March $1.14⅛-¼; oats ½-1 cent lower, March 75½-⅝; rye ¼-1 cent lower, March $1.26⅜-½; soybeans 3⅛ lower to ¾ higher, March $2.14¾-15.

DE GAULLE WINS U.S. ESTEEM IN HANDLING OF ALGERIAN CRISIS

Paris last September. He reportedly stressed to De Gaulle U. S. interest in seeing France adopt an Algerian policy this country could support. Eisenhower left Paris in hope this would happen.

Eisenhower failed, however, to make any progress with De Gaulle in ending the weakness De Gaulle created, in Washington's view, in the NATO defense system. He has wanted for France a voice equal to that of Britain and the United States in making global decisions concerned with deployment and possible use of nuclear weapons. Failing to get it, he barred U. S. nuclear weapons from bases in France.

Such De Gaulle actions have drawn heavy criticism here and in other Western capitals. Similarly, De Gaulle irritated Macmillan and Eisenhower late last year by stalling off an East-West summit conference until next May.

Eisenhower, however, has repeatedly emphasized to officials here that De Gaulle has contributed one quality of inestimable value to the Western alliance — consistency and stability in French politics and policy making.

His handling of the Algerian crisis has been in keeping with this aspect of his character. Washington authorities had feared he might weaken under pressure and that this in turn would sap his strength and that of the French government. Alternatively, they feared that if he took a bold line, denouncing the insurgents and demanding that they drop their arms, many French officers might refuse to follow orders. Again the ultimate U. S. fear was of weakness, even chaos, in France.

Such apprehensions have been largely dissipated by word that Army elements were rallying to De Gaulle's call to restore order and that the momentum of the insurrection was slowing down.

SOVIET OFFICIALS TO EAT ROAST BEEF WITH STRATTON

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Prime roast rib of beef will be the staple of a luncheon-reception held here next Sunday for 12 visiting Soviet officials.

Gov. William G. Stratton and other state and local officials will be host to the 12 Feb. 7-9. Stratton was one of nine governors who visited Russia last summer and whose visit is being returned by the Soviet officials.

In the three-day stop at Springfield on an itinerary of 15 U. S. cities will be D. S. Polyansky, who is head of the delegation.

They will visit Lincoln shrines, schools, factories, the state fair grounds and a farm while here, an announcement by the governor's office said Saturday.

RANDOLPH GIRL WRITES WINNING ESSAY ON LINCOLN

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)— Jacqueline Sheets, 13, of Randolph in McLean County wrote the 150 winning words in an Illinois contest on "What Made Abraham Lincoln Great?"

"Love of mankind," wrote Jacqueline, Heyworth school eighth grader. She will be presented an award by Gov. Stratton Monday.

So will Nancy Werdrick, 17, of (817 Lakeside Place) Chicago, senior at Immaculate High School. She wrote that Lincoln exemplified the Golden Rule in everyday life.

Cheering Mob Shouts Defiance At De Gaulle

forces of Brig. Gen. Jean Gracieux, parachute troop commander.

2. Sealing off of the barricaded ar in downtown Algiers with a ring of paratroopers, shoulder to shoulder, and detailing others to roofs overlooking the insurgent positions.

One by one, the effect of each move was challenged.

Most of the insurgent territorials clung to their positions, stocked overnight with fresh supplies of food, firewood and ammunition. A few filtered out for muster in response to Gracieux' command.

Courtesy cost the paratroopers a break in their cordon when a mob of anti-Gaullist Frenchmen roared in from side streets to demonstrate in behalf of the insurgents. Some troopers, fearful that women caught in the mob would be crushed, opened the line to let them through. Then the mob streamed in to the barricades shouting "Algeria is French!" "Down with De Gaulle!"

Then Pierre Lagaillarde, a fiery, tommygun-carrying insurgent leader, took to the microphone to announce the insurgents would not give up. Through loudspeakers, he said the army had called for unconditional surrender of the stronghold.

"Conscious of my responsibilities," Lagaillarde said, "I have rejected this ultimatum, which is an insult to our dead and against all those who in the past five years have been fighting (the Algerian nationalist rebels) so Algeria can remain a French land."

Top U. S. Defense Men Believe:

Khrushchev Seeks To Buy Time And Men With Easily Reversed Armed Forces Cut

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON—(NEA) — Hear these chilling words. They're the private thoughts of some key men in U.S. defense planning after reading Nikita Khrushchev's plan for cutting his armed forces by a third, from 3.6 million to 2.4 million men.

First, Khrushchev needs time and more men—for a nasty surprise.

There is evidence here the Russians are on the verge of some important advances in powerful missiles and in maneuverable military space craft or space platforms. There is evidence, too, that these will take five to six years to put into operation.

This could put the Russians out in front militarily — in the same way the atomic bomb kept the U.S. out in front after World War II.

So Khrushchev might be planning a little lull before a new storm five years hence when he might hold the trumps and really threaten.

For to make this potential military might mean something, Khrushchev must build his economy at a faster pace and wipe out some key weaknesses.

But Soviet Russia is sorely short of men for this economic buildup. Beginning with 1960, many of the children who would just now be growing into manhood weren't born because their "fathers" were killed in World War II.

Russian losses from 1941 to 1945 were estimated at 10 million. Russia will feel this shortage of new young men intensely — especially for the next five years. Khrushchev has already had to take many young people out of school to make up in part for this shortage. But he needs more.

Second, militarily, the cuts mean little or nothing.

The Russians can mobilize 3.5 million well-trained reserves and have them in frontline divisions within 30 days. The reserve program is being stepped up. Within three years, Khrushchev will have nine million ready-for-action reserves. Many of the men that will be "released" will go into a new national guard.

Khrushchev is now beefing up his armies down to the smallest units with new equipment and missiles. The 125 to 130 divisions he will have in 1962 will have far greater firepower than the 175 divisions he has today.

The Soviet Union has been phasing out long-range bombers and surface ships and phasing in long-range submarines and missiles for some time. Fighter planes will be kept—or so it looks. Soviet military doctrine holds atomic subs can do anything surface ships can do and do it better. The Reds never have been very happy with their big bombers, while their missiles have worked out well.

Note, too, that Khrushchev can change his mind at will. His cut from 3.6 million to 2.4 million can be reversed in less than two weeks if he gets his break-throughs more quickly than he expects, or if he sees an opportunity for mischief—say in the Middle East.

Third, this could give Khrushchev what he wants — partial world disarmament without inspection of Russia.

Premier Khrushchev outmaneuvered the U.S. some time ago on a cessation of atomic testing. He proposed a ban. The U.S. answered that America would consider no ban without foolproof method of inspection.

So Khrushchev went ahead with a unilateral ban on testing. This forced the U.S. into going along.

Thus Mr. K. got what he wanted—a ban on atomic testing with no system of inspection.

The U.S. has no way of knowing whether the Soviet Union is now conducting secret underground tests or not.

Khrushchev has also proposed disarmament. The U.S. said no unless there is a foolproof method of inspection.

Now Khrushchev is going ahead unilaterally with reducing his armed forces. If the West — for reasons of public opinion — follows suit, Khrushchev will again have what he wants — no inspection.

No one will ever know whether the Russians really have cut their forces—or whether they reduced their men and kept them reduced —or whether they reduced, then built up their forces again in secret.

Kennedy Loses Two Opponents In New Hampshire

CONCORD, N. H. (AP)—With more than a month left before New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential primary, Sen. John F. Kennedy Saturday knocked out two of his three Democratic opponents. But he failed to stem a growing feud among his own supporters.

Kicked off the ballot after the Massachusetts senator's campaign aides said faked signatures were used, were TV cowboy singer Elton Britt of Damascus, Md., and Lar (America First) Daly, a perennially unsuccessful candidate from Chicago.

Secretary of State Harry E. Jackson announced the decision to newsmen at his Manchester home seconds after Kennedy backers presented him with sworn affidavits documenting their charges that nominating petitions filed for Britt and Daly bore signatures of dead men and nonexistent voters.

The unprecedented action left Kennedy with Chicago pen manufacturer Paul C. Fisher as his only rival in the Democratic preference poll section of the March 8 primary.

But there was some bad news for Kennedy to share with his victory.

Four prominent Democrats, including the chairman of the state's delegation to the 1956 convention and the top delegate votegetter in both the 1952 and 1956 primaries, filed as pro-Kennedy delegate candidates to oppose Kennedy's official slate.

Their move raised to eight the number of Kennedy candidates who will battle the senator's streamlined 20-member slate, publicly endorsed by him and pledged to vote for Kennedy as long as his name is before the convention.

Results of the New Hampshire preference poll, or so-called "beauty contest," are not binding on the state's convention delegates.

The dissidents said they resent the Democratic State Committee's action in "hand-picking" the official slate which was okayed by Kennedy.

Leap Year Babies Only Join Order Of 29ers

By LAWRENCE A. BARRETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PITTSBURG, Kan. — (NEA) — Are you acquainted with anyone who will be eligible for his first birthday cake in four years on Feb. 29 by virtue of having been born in one of those quadrennial periods known as leap years?

If so, why not have them join the World Chapter No. 1, Order of 29ers, which will send a free membership scroll to anyone in the world — provided he or she was born on Feb. 29.

Every four years since 1928, the Pittsburg, Kan., Headlight-Sun newspapers have offered free membership scrolls to anyone admitting to a Feb. 29 birthday. Requests have come in from all over the United States and a few from foreign countries.

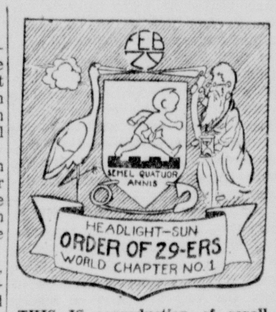

The organization has no initiation fee, no membership dues, no meetings, no badges nor pins and no officers—except secretary, who is Kenneth L. Simons, managing editor of the Pittsburg newspapers.

• • •

To get a scroll one need only write to Simons giving date and place of birth and name and address to which one wishes the scroll mailed. The offer is good through January and February and on into March if requests still come in.

Parents of children born on leap year day this year may get scrolls for their babies if they will write for them giving place of birth and names.

The scrolls for babies born on Feb. 29 of this year are printed in gold. The scrolls for those born on Feb. 29 in any other previous leap years are printed in purple on white.

THIS IS reproduction of scroll awarded to leap year babies.

Among the order's members is Frank J. Starzel, general manager of the Associated Press. He gave his birthdate as leap year day in 1904.

• • •

The order started in 1928 when F. W. Brinkerhoff, editor and publisher of the Pittsburg papers, expressed his sympathy for those "poor souls" who because of the vicissitudes of modern calendars are limited to but one birthday every four years. The paper offered free scrolls to leap year birthday people. Every four years since that time the offer has been made with more applicants each year.

Along about March the secretary will put away his books and the World Chapter No. 1, Order of 29ers, will go into hibernation until 1964.

Piece Of Paper Stands Between Chessman, Death

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Calif. (AP)—"I am one piece of paper removed from the gas chamber," Caryl Chessman told a news conference Saturday.

He is scheduled for execution Feb. 19 for several crimes including perverted sex acts, rape and kidnaping at Los Angeles.

Chessman didn't know it, but about the same time Gov. Edmund G. Brown said he would review his denial of executive clemency for the convict.

The man who has spent 11 years on death row told newsmen the "piece of paper" would be an appeal to the U.S. Appellate Court of Friday's denial by U.S. Dist. Judge Louis E. Goodman of his appeal for release from prison.

However, the judge suggested the governor might reconsider clemency.

The San Francisco News-Call Bulletin reported Brown, at Santa Barbara, said: "I have a deep respect for Judge Goodman. Anything he said I would take a serious look at."

Chessman also said, "Almost certainly we will get again to the U.S. Supreme Court."

He said no action will be taken on a request for a stay of execution unti lthe Appellate Court rules.

He told newsmen he felt Judge Goodman did not make a decision on the merits of his case.

"Let me say for the record," Chessman declared, "that I am not the red light bandit. Ultimately I have no doubt that will be established."

ASHLAND—Final rites for Mrs. Lucretia Bailey were held Thursday afternoon at the Methodist church at 2 p.m., with Rev. J. William Jones, pastor, in charge.

The floral offerings were cared for by Mrs. Bernice Hayes, Mrs. Steve Benson and Mrs. Dwight Blank.

Pallbearers were nephews of the deceased: John Blank, Dwight Blank, Duane Smith, Donald Smith, Robert Smith and Harry Smith.

Interment was made in the Ashland cemetery.

STUFFING EGGS?

For half a dozen hard-boiled eggs to be stuffed, mash the yolks with a quarter cup of mayonnaise-type salad dressing, half a teaspoon of dry mustard and salt and pepper to taste. The sharp tines of a kitchen fork will "flute" the stuffing after it has been piled back into the egg-white cavities.

Fog, Wind Delay Gulf Search For Plane Wreckage

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Navy divers, harrassed by fog and wind in their search in the Gulf of Mexico for the wreckage of a commercial airliner, will remain on the scene until the weather permits them to resume the diving operations.

Based on the weather forecast, the Navy said Saturday the diving will not be resumed until Tuesday.

Two Navy ships, the Vigor and the Penguin, are assigned to the operation of hunting for the National Airlines DC7B that crashed into the gulf last Nov. 16 and killed 42 persons. Rescue workers found only bits of the wreckage and 10 of the victims.

The Vigor, a minesweeper, detected objects earlier on the gulf floor with sounding equipment. But so far divers' findings are negative.

The FBI and Civil Aeronautics Board want to determine the cause of the crash.

The search was spurred by the FBI's recent arrest of Robert V. Spears, a Dallas, Tex., naturopath who was listed as a passenger on the Miami to New Orleans flight.

Spears had taken out $100,000 in travel insurance in September and when arrested in Phoenix, Ariz., FBI agents found explosives in his luggage.

Spears' wife said her husband told her that William Allen Taylor of Tampa, Fla., replaced him on the airliner. Taylor had been missing since the crash.

3 Bandits Slug Storekeeper, Flee With $948

VENICE, Ill. (AP) — Three armed bandits held up 23 persons, including several children Friday night, at a Venice, Ill., grocery store and escaped with $948, after pistol-whipping a co-owner and the manager.

Morris Gittel of University City, Mo., said the robbers entered New Way Market at 1051 Douglas St. posing as customers. They stayed for about 30 minutes, selecting groceries, before two of them slugged co-owner Louis Isaacs at a check out counter. Then, they ordered the other owner, Harry Newman, to empty the cash registers.

Twelve customers and nine employes were herded behind the meat counter by the third bandit, who hit Gittel over the head with his gun and took $62 from his wallet.

Witnesses said the men flourished their weapons constantly during the stickup.

They escaped on foot.

WHIP IT UP

Small wire whips are inexpensive and indispensable in making many sauces; use it also when you are whipping up an envelope of instant potato granules. Interestingly enough, a whip will make the potatoes whiter than will a spoon because with it a goodly amount of air is incorporated.

Mike Scott, a member of Upper Iowa University's basketball team, and his teammates are enjoying a well deserved laugh at the sportwriters in that vicinity. The writers had tabbed the Peacocks for last place in the Iowa Basketball Conference this season but a home-grown product, namely Mike Scott, is making the forecasters eat their typewriter ribbons. Scott scored 30 points and sank two charity tosses in the final 13 seconds of play to give the Peacocks a 69-68 victory over Wartburg in a battle for the conference lead.

—O—

Upper Iowa is pacing the eight-team loop with a 6-1 mark and an overall mark of 9-1 with the only loss being to Dubuque. Mike is among the four players averaging double figures and he has a 20-point game mark. Scotty's highest output for a lone encounter this season was a 32-point performance against William Penn. The all-round JHS product has hit 29, 25, 30, 27 and 32 in his last five outings. Mike will also let the writers know he's around when baseball comes along this spring and when the Peacocks take to the gridiron next fall.

Paul Keller's four-team Invitational Tournament begins Monday night and ends Wednesday with no games slated for Tuesday night at Jonathan Turner Junior High. Game times are 6:30 and 7:45 both nights. Admission for adults is 35 cents and 20 cents for students. St. John's of Quincy appears to be the team to beat as they are undefeated and just recently won a 16-team tourney in Quincy. They have a 1300 enrollment. Turner is also better than its 6-6 record indicates. The team is the smallest in 10 years but Keller has some good shooters in addition to several fine ball-handlers. Turner's defense is based all the way on a press. Keller has two six-footers to insert into the line-up in seventh graders Steve Bone and Tom Andrews. Tourney officials are Jack Fairfield and Ernie Savage.

—O—

I believe Chuck Swebel, my cohort on baseball nights, and myself probably felt the tournament pressure just as much as any coach during the long week of elimination. However, we aren't complaining as this is our job and we want to express our appreciation to the correspondents for fine news coverage via telephone. The eight tournaments nightly was the bulest playoff week I can recall in five years.

—O—

Illinois Schoof for Deaf is to be commended for being splendid hosts to the PMSC Conference Tournament with Coach Jim Bonds serving as tourney manager. Everything went according to 'hoyle', including the pre-tournament ratings as picked by the coaches. To all ISD personnel that helped make the tourney a success, we say a 'good show' for your untiring efforts. The ISD cheerleaders assisted Art Yates in making the presentations of awards following the championship game.

—O—

Picking an All-Star, All-Tournament PMSC team would be a tedious task but if I based my requirements on a-b-i-l-i-t-y and a-t-t-i-t-u-d-e then these players would be my top choices. The selections are based on tournament play only. The first five would consist of Fred Curtis, Routt, and Lee Fredrick of Bluffs at guards; Dave Walter of Virginia at center; Alan Anderson, Triopia, and Louie Edwards of ISD would be the forwards. Walter played only one game in a 60-54 loss to Bluffs but he proved he could play just as a consistent brand of basketball as the other four did throughout the three games their teams saw action in.

—O—

Some of the other lads I would pick played steady ball one or two games and several even waited until the final night to make their marks and on this showing alone they are rated top consideration. Routt-Tom Shanel, Bill Tobin; Triopia-Earl Dufelmeier, Karl Hansmeier; ISD-A. C. Parish, Bob Higdon; Bluffs-Burl Fargo, Harold Kund; Virginia-Dave Marr; Meredosia-Gary Rausch; Perry-Ken Hannant; Chandlerville-Jim Reavis. My coaching staff, well, it would have to be Bob Winstead, Glenn Ambler, Jim Bonds, George Danhaus, John Murray, Fred Witham, Phil Morris and Gene Farmer because this is the order in which they rated each other to finish. Variety and spice and ability would prevail among my coaching staff. When the schools split the kitty next month at the conference meeting, the PMSC Tournament will be replayed all over again. That what makes my boys so interesting to be around.

—O—

Jim Woodward and Bob Stansfield who starred in football and basketball respectively for JHS several years ago, are slated to graduate from Western this spring and both plan to go into the coaching ranks. They may end up as a team in their respective sports somewhere in this locale. It would be a pleasure working with them again only this time it would be on a coaching level.

—O—

Coach Al Rosenberger's 'pride and joy', the annual JHS Freshmen basketball tournament will be held next Saturday with afternoon sessions at the JHS Bowl and the consolation and championship games that evening at Jonathan Turner Junior High gymnasium. Al's annual yearlings have copped the affair four times in six years and they have high intentions of offsetting Havana's championship last year. JHS meets Rushville at 1 p.m. in the opener, Winchester faces Havana at 2:30 to wind up the afternoon card. That evening at Turner, the afternoon losers vie for consolation honors at 7 p.m. with the championship slated for 8:30. No admission and no trophies are awarded.

—O—

Gene Farmer, an Ashland product and a graduate of Illinois College, has resigned as coach at Chandlerville. The resignation becomes effective June 1 and Gene was undecided on whether to fulfill his military obligation or take a year's deferment and coach for another season. In his two years at Chandlerville, Gene has had the misfortune of not having any talent and as a result it has been one big headache in the losing column.

—O—

Charlie Vaughn, Southern Illinois, John Hornacek, Illinois Normal and Larry Brown of Illinois College continue to rank first in individual NAIA District 20 (Illinois) averages. Vaughn tops the scoring with a fine 26.5 average with 451 points in 17 games. Hornacek has a torrid percentage of .529 with 46 of 87 field goal attempts. Terry Ransom of IC is second with a .514 percentage. Brown raised his free throw average from .909 to .922 and this is tops in this department. Brown has made 35 of 38 attempts from the charity line.

—O—

Mid-semester exams have caught up with a few athletes and this holds true for Coach Bill Wall's MacMurray Highlanders. Bill lost four players on grades but the one big blow was the loss of starter Larry Krulac, who has been a key factor in MacMurray's fine 10-4 record before the athletes broke for the classroom two weeks ago. With the absence of Krulac, MacMurray may be at a slight disadvantage in its 10 remaining contests.

Successful Putt Ends Marathon In 4-Ball Meet

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Joanne Goodwin of Haverhill, Mass., sent a 12-foot putt scooting over a near-darkened eighth green Saturday night to assure herself and Doris Phillips of Belleville, Ill., a 26-hole 1-up victory over Judy Eller of Old Hickory, Tenn., and Betty Probasco of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., and a shot at the 15th annual Women's International Four-Ball Golf championship.

Her successful putt ended a marathon duel, second only to a 27-hole battle over the 6,188-yard Orange Brook golf course won by Cookie Berger of Buffala, N.Y., and Vonnie Colby of Dania, Fla., six years ago.

Miss Goodwin and Miss Phillips will tee of in the 36-hole finals against Brbara McIntire of Lake Park, Fla., and Judy Bell of Wichita, Kan., at 8 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Miss McIntire and her partner also were involved in a sudden death decision in ousting Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore and Marge Lindsay of Decatur, Ill., in a 20-hole thriller.

It marked the first double extra hold semifinal in tournament history.

Miss Goodwin, confronted with an uphill putt as dusk settled and the gallery shrank to 100, rolled the ball in while Miss Eller prepared to try a four-footer for a halve.

If her putt had fallen, tournament officials were ready to suspend the match and call a sudden death playoff at 7 a.m. Sunday before the finals.

Both winning teams averaged 1959 semifinal setbacks in gaining their first title berths. Miss Goodwin, who teamed with Betty Kerby of Akron, Ohio, last year, lost to eventual champions Marlene Streit of Fonthill, Ont., and Ann Casey Johnstone of Kansas City.

Miss McIntire and Miss Bell were beaten by Bobbie Hartson of Dallas and Francis Rich of Bainbridge, Ga.

Farlow Retains Seniors Lead After 3 Rounds

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Charles Farlow of Greensboro, N.C., carded a two-over-par 74 for his third round in the PGA Seniors Golf Tournament Saturday to retain the two stroke lead he held at the halfway point. His three round total is 212.

The runner-up at the three-quarter point in the 72-hole tournament over the 6,609-yard National PGA course, was a different man. Charles Sheppard of Highland Park, Ill., second after the first two rounds with 140 to Farlow's 138, soared to a 78 Saturday for a 218 total.

Dick Metz of New Orleans jumped into the runnerup spot by carding a 73 to add to his 141 total of the first two rounds for a 214.

Paul Runyan of La Jolla, Calif., in the 146 bracket at the halfway point, carded a snappy 70 to jump into third place at 216, one stroke ahead of defending champion Willie Goggin of Coyote, Calif., and Tony Longo of Clark's Summit, Pa. Longo is low among the 55 and over age group.

Pott Wrestles Lead Away From Mike Souchak

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Young Johnny Pott shot a 6-under-par 66 to take a one-stroke lead over veteran Mike Souchak Saturday in third round play of the $20,000 San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

The 24-year-old expectant father from Shreveport, La., showed no sign of nervousness as he birdied seven holes for a 32-34—66 over the 6,716-yard Mission Valley Country Club course.

Pott, with a 201 third round total, was one stroke up on Souchak, who shot a 34-33—67.

Pott and Souchak, of Grossinger, N. Y., cashed in on their distance hitting. They two-putted for birds on three of the course's four par-five holes.

DOUBLE DOSE OF TROUBLE

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP)—Oleg V. Suzdoleff, 27, found that trouble comes in double doses. He reported to Patrolman Kenneth Schiflet his car had been rammed on its left side. An hour later, Suzdoleff was before Patrolman Schiflet again. This time Suzdoleff's car had been battered from the rear.

Illinois College Trips Springfield Concordia To Snap Losing String

By CHUCK SWEBEL

Balanced rebounding and a good exhibition of shooting paid off for the IC Blueboys Saturday as they downed the Concordia "Kings Men" from Springfield by 7 points, 66-59. The King's Men, who are in second place in the Prairie College Conference with a 5-2 record, got off to a slow start in the early minutes of the game which proved to be a fatal blow as the Blueboys played a strong game all the way.

As the contest opened the Blueboys controlled the tip and broke ice first with a tap in from Terry Ransom. Both teams then matched baskets until with six minutes gone the Blueboys ran up a slim 4 marker lead. Around the midway mark of the stanza the IC offense slowed down and with 8 minutes remaining in the period the King's Men came to within 1 point of the Merris men, but then let their offensive drive dwindle as the host five ran the score up to 20 points with the Concordia squad holding a 4 point deficit as the visitors from Springfield called for a time with about 6:30 sec. left.

With time resumed the King's men made two more markers via the charity line as the Blueboys added 6 more. Time was again called with 5 min. left in the stanza, this time by the Merris men with IC leading by a scant 6 points. The remaining minutes of the period were pretty even although the visitors outscored the host five and drew to a 3 point deficit by the time the end of the first half arrived, 35-32.

Again inn the second half of play the Blueboys enjoyed the control of the tip and settled down to play solid, deliberate controlled ball. Before 2 minutes were up IC lost the ball and blew a lay-up which let the visitors draw up to within 1 point, but the Blueboys came back with 3 quick baskets and with 16 minutes left in the period again enjoyed a 7 point lead. With the game underway again the King's Men started another drive and outscored the IC five until Blueboy Captain Larry Brown called for time to think things over with a little over 8 minutes remaining in the game.

The last five minutes of the game were rugged but the Merris men pulled out to lead by 13 with 4 minutes left, the biggest lead of the game. In the final minutes of the game the King's Men connected on long jump shots and moved to within 7 points of the lead as the final horn sounded, giving the Blueboys the victory and an end to their losing streak.

Offensively the winners played one of their better ball games with Terry Ransom putting 10 field shots thru the hoop. Brown 17 points, and Bill Schildman 12. Schildman, big addition to the starting line-up, fouled out of the game in the final 2 minutes after showing fine defensive work for the Blueboys.

The offensive standout for the losing visitors was Tuchardt who put 16 points on the scoreboard and was the backbone of Concordia's rebounding.

Kalthoff, Fray, and Pero racked up 15, 11 and 10 points respectively for the King's Men cause with only one man failing to reach double figures.

Tonight's victory gives the Blueboys a 4-9 record for the season and a 4-3 record for the conference. Concordia now has a 9-4 record for the year and 5-3 in conference play.

Bradley Slips By Marquette In Overtime

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Bradley, the nation's second ranked basketball team, rallied from a 10-point halftime deficit and edged past stubborn Marquette 62-59 in overtime Saturday night for the 14th victory in 15 starts.

Bradley went into a stall against Marquette's tight zone defense in the final minutes of regulation time but a final shot bounced off the rim and the game moved into a five minute overtime with the score deadlocked at 55-all.

Marquette went ahead on a foul shot by Joe Scanlon at 1:38 of the extra session but Bradley came right back to go in front as Chet Walker stole a loose ball and laid it up. Marquette's Jim Kersten knotted the count at 57 with a free throw conversion at 2:25 and Bradley took possession.

Still in its deliberate stall, the Braves set up Mike Owens for a successful shot from the corner. Owens and Al Saunders each converted free throws while the best Marquette could do was score on a driving layup by Walt Mangham before the final buzzer.

Bradley, which trailed 40-30 at the intermission, was handicapped as their big man, 6-6 Walker, picked up his fourth personal foul and retired to the bench after three minutes of play in the second half.

Havana Loses To Mason City In County Finals

HAVANA—In the Mason County Tourney at Havana Saturday night the host Ducks bowed to a strong Mason City five by a 67-45 score. Earlier in the year the Ducks had won out over Mason City but in tourney play they fell short.

In the opening quarter the game was nip and tuck with the score at the end of the first quarter standing at 11-all, but in the second stanza the Mason City squad drew ahead by a comfortable margin to lead the game at the half, 29-15. A tight defense and many missed shots held the Ducks to 4 markers for the second quarter.

In the second half the visitors stayed ahead with little contention from the Ducks and ran the score up at the end of the third quarter to 45-29, with the final score standing at 67-45 favoring the Mason City team.

Last night's win gave Mason City title to the first place berth in the tournament and put their win record at 17 for the season. The only fault listed for Mason City is the one defeat by Havana.

Havana added their fourth loss of the season with the defeat over a respectable 14 win record.

Dutton and Wallace led the offensive drive for the victory with 20 and 15 points respectively with the team hitting 56% of the shots from the field. Havana dropped down in the percentages and made 34% as Prince paced the Ducks and took the high man position of the game.

William And Mary Beats W. Virginia

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — West Virginia's five-year string of 56 consecutive Southern Conference basketball victories ended Saturday night as William and Mary overcame a 42-point performance by All-America Jerry West and shocked the fourth-ranked Mountaineers, 94-86.

It was the first conference defeat for West Virginia since an 84-78 loss to Richmond on the Richmond court Feb. 4, 1956.

William and Mary—which had bowed to the Mountaineers 11 times during West Virginia's sweep past all conference foes—built up a 40-21 advantage at halftime, stood off a West Virgima challenge and wrapped it up for keeps when West fouled out with five minutes to go. At that juncture, W & M led by 11 points, 82-71.

Jeff Cohen captured 20 rebounds and scored 34 points to pace William and Mary. Bev Vaughan added 25.

West poured in 27 points in the last half and once collected 16 points in a row for his team. No other Mountaineer scored in double figures.

Jacks Play Good Ball In 1st Half But Reds Just Too Strong, 79-59

The Decatur Reds, ranked 13th in the AP prep poll, proved the stronger aggregation Saturday night in a 79-59 victory over Jacksonville High in the JHS Bowl.

Coach John Chapman's Crimsons did themselves proud with their showing in the first half. The Crimsons battled the Reds on even terms in the first two periods but then that ole nemisis — bad passes — caught up with Jacksonville in the second half and Decatur High gradually pulled away to chalk up their 14th victory in 15 starts.

Gaither Warnsley led the Reds' attack in the first half with 15 points and then Tom Sidney, held to two points in the first half, scorched the nets for 24 points in the second half to bring about Jacksonville's 12th loss in 13 outings.

The Crimsons surged from behind throughout the first period on some fine rebounding by Shannon Jackson and Ken Norton and managed to come within one point of the lead twice but Warnsley's timely nine points in the quarter kept JHS from ever seeing the lead.

The Crimsons trailed by 11 at the first break, 24-13, due to the seven fouls they were charged with.

Jacksonville got off several beautiful plays in the second quarter and with "Shag" Jackson hitting for eight points, JHS whittled the lead to four points three times and outscored the Reds in the quarter, 16-13, but still trailed by eight at halftime, 37-29.

Decatur came out red-hot to open the second half and sank 10 of 15 shots from the floor with Sidney getting 13 points in the 21 point third canto. Jacksonville's attack began to suffer when Ken Norton drew his fifth personal 30 seconds after the opening tip and Decatur had charge of the boards, which enabled them to combine their speed on a fast break.

The Crimson subs got to finish up in the final period and gave a good account of themselves with a 20 point output. Decatur scored 21 points, however, with Sidney's 11 points being tops for Coach Gay Kitner's Reds.

Jacksonville captured a thrilling victory in the preliminary, 67-65, in a game that was decided in the waning seconds on Chip Baldwin's two free throws.

Shannon Jackson led Crimson scorers with 13 points after garnering only one point in the second half. The leading scorer also did a fine job in the rebounding category.

Illini Decision Notre Dame, 71-67

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Illinois downed Notre Dame 71-67 and St. John's defeated Loyola 74-59 Saturday night in a Chicago stadium basketball double-header played before a crowd of 13,901.

The Illini overcame deficits of 10 points in the first and 7 points in the second half while St. John's, held scoreless from the field in the first 9½ minutes, put on a spree early in the second half to romp past Loyola.

Illinois, a contender in the Big Ten race, fell behind 14-4 in the first half but rallied when Ed Perry tossed in four straight baskets to help the Illini grab a 28-27 halftime lead.

Notre Dame came out in the second half to move into a 37-30 lead before Illinois began catching up. With a little more than 10 minutes to play, Illinois went ahead to stay 44-43 on a basket by Govoner Vaughn.

With John Wessels and Vaughn leading the attack, Illinois pulled out to a 60-50 lead which Notre Dame couldn't overcome even though Bill Crosby made up some ground with four late baskets.

CARTHAGE, Ill. (AP) — Kent Crear hit 28 points and Augie Schmidt added 21 to lead Carthage to a 68-60 basketball victory over Parsons of Iowa Saturday night.

Carthage was ahead all the way and in front 34-28 at halftime. Art Wardlow topped Parsons with 12 points.

CHICAGO (AP) — Walt Bellamy stuffed in 34 points tonight in heading Indiana to an 82-78 basketball triumph over De Paul.

The 6-foot-10 Bellamy rammed in a field goal in the last 14 seconds that put the game out of reach after De Paul three times had come to within two points of catching up in the last two minutes.

De Paul led as much as eight points in the first half and was on top 36-31 at intermission. In the second half, the Hoosiers romped into a 63-53 lead behind the shooting of Bellamy and sophomore Charley Hall, and stayed ahead.

Howie Carl and Bill Haig combined for 46 points for De Paul's best showing.

NORMAL, Ill. (AP)—Illinois Normal with five men scoring in double figures rolled over Millikin 112-86 Saturday night in a non-conference basketball game.

Normal took an early lead and were never threatened. They commanded a 67-42 spread at halftime.

Ohio State Crushes Michigan State, 111-79

Buckeyes Garner 5th Victory Against No Defeats In Big Ten

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State, scoring its highest point total ever, buried Michigan State under an avalanche of baskets Saturday enroute to a 111-79 Big Ten victory.

The Buckeyes, atop the conference standings with a 5-0 mark, opened up a 57-42 halftime advantage and coasted. It was the worst Big Ten setback ever for Michigan State.

Jerry Lucas, Ohio's sophomore phenom, whipped in 25 points despite a bronchial ailment that kept the 6-foot-8 center out of the contest for more than 10 minutes.

But Michigan State's Horace Walker garnered 27 to lead all scorers. The loss evened the Spartans' Big Ten record at 3-3.

The smaller Spartans were no match for the Bucks but kept within striking distance until about the 15:00 minute mark of the second half.

Ohio State led at that point, 69-59 but out scored the Michigan team 30-10 in the next 10 minutes to make it a rout.

10-Man Speed Skating Team Picked For U.S.

By AL CLINE
Associated Press Sports Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) —A 10-man speed skating team, highlighted by three top sprinters, was selected Saturday to represent the United States in the winter Olympics.

Given the best chance to win a gold medal is Bill Disney, the 27-year-old rug cleaner who Friday skated 500 meters in 40.1 seconds. The time, a 10th of a second under the world record, was unofficial.

Five sprinters and five distance men form the squad:

The sprinters:

Disney, Alhambra, Calif.

Terry McDermott, 19, Michigan Tech student from Essixville, Mich.

Don McDermott, 30, Englewood Cliff, N.J., who was second in the 500 in the 1952 games but failed to place in the '56 games. Don and Terry are not related.

Bill Carow, 25, Madison, Wis., fireman who was sixth in the 500 at Cortina, Italy, four years ago.

Eddie Rudolph, 18, Northbrook, Ill.

The distance skaters:

Dick Hunt, 24, Los Angeles fireman and coholder of the national indoor speed skating title.

Keith Meyer, 21, a student at Wheaton College, Ill., and North American champion.

Floyd Bedbury, 22, St. Paul, Minn., lithographer who won national titles at 16.

Ross Zucco, 25, a plumber from Hollydale, Calif.

Arnold Uhrlass, 28, a carpenter from Elmhurst, N.Y.

NCAA To Adopt Two-Year Plan For TV Contests

CHICAGO (AP) — College football's TV programs for 1960 and 1961 will be drafted by the 1960 television committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. Tuesday through Thursday.

At the recent NCAA convention in New York, it was decided to formulate a two-year program to proffer a potential network sponsor better continuity of advertising.

For the past decade, the NCAA's controlled TV plan was drafted on a year-to-year basis.

The NCAA's 1959 TV committee patted its program on the back and there appears likelihood the 1960-61 programs will follow the same pattern as last year's lineup of 10 national and 3 regional dates.

If anything, the regional ratio may be lowered. Outside the Big Ten, regional offerings were not particularly attractive last year, one qualified source said.

The Big Ten will be represented at the committee's hearings, but has little hope of gaining NCAA approval of a three million dollar TV package offer made to that conference.

There seems no probability the Big Ten would bolt the NCAA to do TV business at its own stand. But, as a conference spokesman said: "They know how we're thinking and they may pay some attention to us."

The offer to the Big Ten called for telecasting football, basketball and other conference events over a three-year period, giving members a million dollar melon to split each year.

On the other hand, the NCAA's projected two-year TV football program may be worth five million dollars. Last year, the National Broadcasting Co. got the NCAA contract for $2,200,000 (M), each game giving participating teams about $209,000 to split.

After hearings at which member schools and conferences and "other interested parties" can submit suggestions and proposals, the committee will devise the 1960-61 programs. These will be submitted to the membership in a mail referendum requiring two-thirds approval of those voting.

The 12-member committee has a mandate from the NCAA convention to give "full and careful sideration to the possible and probable impact of subscription, closed circuit and delayed television upon college football."

TAKES SPECTACULAR SPILL

WILDHAUS, Switzerland (AP)—Madeleine Chamot - Berthod, Switzerland's top woman contender for Olympic ski medals, suffered bruises and scratches during the downhill of the Swiss Alpine championships Saturday.

Just before the finish of the 2.3-kilometer (1¼-mile) race, she took a spectacular spill in which she also strained a shoulder muscle. She was badly shaken and will not compete in Sunday's slalom event, but her injuries were not considered serious.

Charley Conerly of the New York Giants completed 113 of 194 passes for 1,706 yards in 1959 National Football League games. Fourteen of his passes went for touchdowns and only four were intercepted.

JHS Yearlings Defeated, 70-40

DECATUR — MacArthur's freshmen routed Jacksonville High's frosh team here Saturday morning, 70-40, in an issue that never was in doubt. The loss was Jacksonville's seventh in 11 tries.

MacArthur led all the way for win number nine in 10 starts.

The Crimsons committed 28 fouls to the winners' ten.

Oakland Awarded Eighth Franchise

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Oakland, Calif., was awarded the eighth franchise in the American Football League Saturday.

The California city was picked to fill out the fledgling professional football league by the unanimous vote of the seven founding cities, Commissioner Joe Foss announced.

Oakland was selected after five days of meetings during which Atlanta was the first choice. But the votes swung overnight in favor of Oakland, which plans to use either Candlestick Park or Kezar Stadium in nearby San Francisco.

Atlanta was leading when the league recessed its meeting Friday so Foss could go to Milwaukee to make a speech.

Byron Hilton, owner of the Los Angeles franchise, returned Friday afternoon and apparently was the reason for the change in the vote that was said to be 5-2 in favor of Atlanta. Hilton has advocated taking in Oakland because he thinks it will furnish a natural rivalry for his Los Angeles club.

Other AFL teams are Houston, Buffalo, Boston and Denver.

Twisters

ARCADIA, Calif. — (NEA) — Track announcers are in for more tonsil-tangling names of running horses this season, if the entry lists for the early juvenile races are any indication.

In the first race for the new crop of two-year-olds at the New Orleans Fair Grounds, the runner-up was a Louisiana-bred colt named Calcasieu Boy. It's easy to see that the name comes from one of the parishes in the state, but how is it pronounced?

There was an entry at Santa Anita which apparently was afflicted with a lisp — a filly called Kolacky Kween.

Goo'ness gwayshus.

Right Track

COLUMBIA, S. C. — (NEA) — When Scotti Ward, South Carolina freshman basketball guard, goes to the free throw line, he aims the ball to the right.

Ward is practically blind in his right eye because of a childhood accident, but so far the 20-80 vision hasn't hurt.

Scotti hits consistently on long jump shots. He averages 21.1 points per game, sports a 95.7 percentage from the foul line.

STEP LADDER SCORES

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP)—Members of an insurance bowling team here turned in a "step ladder" game. Competing in the Eagles Goodfellowship League, Howard Schmitz hit 187, Bob Leys 188, Jess Bellaver 189, Norm Bell 190 and Herb Gallatin 191.

ANNUAL GRID CLINIC

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. —The annual football coaching clinic, sponsored by the University of Illinois Athletic association and the Illinois High School Coaches association, will be held at the University Ice Rink here Friday and Saturday, April 1-2. The list of speakers will be announced later.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—When Pete Rozelle was in his skinny mid-20's (he's 33 now and still skinny), trying to push University of San Francisco football and basketball, his chief tormenter was Pete Newell.

Newell, the basketball coach of the Dons then and now across the Bay at California, used to plant items about USF in the local press and then storm into Rozelle's office wanting to know how such stuff got into the papers.

The Dons had a little Chinese player named Willie Wong, five feet four inches. Rozelle's phone rang one day:

"Hallo, This Cholly Lee, Chinese Press. Willie Wong, he play first stling this year?"

"Willie," answered Rozelle, "is a very fine prospect, but we do have three veteran starters back."

"What matter? Coach no like Chinese player?"

"Oh, no. Willie will undoubtedly make our traveling squad."

"He start game in Garden in big city of New York?"

"I'd say," diplomatically countered Rozelle, "he has a fine chance."

"So you're the guy," said Newell, resuming his normal voice, "who's been going to the papers, trying to coach my team!"

• • •

And last March, by which time Rozelle was general manager of the Los Angeles Rams, there came a call to the Ram switchboard on Beverly Boulevard:

"Hello, this is Ollie Matson. I'm at the airport. How come there's nobody out here to meet me?"

This was the day after the Rams had traded a small corner of southern California (consisting of nine Rams) to bring Matson to Los Angeles, and there was a frantic scurrying around the Rams' offices. No one seemed to know Matson was due in town. Or what to do about it. Finally, Rozelle got on the phone:

"Hello, Ollie. How are you?"

Newell, trying to disguise his voice: "Fine, Pete, how're you?"

Pause. Then Rozelle sighed, "No, no, not again."

• • •

Now Alvin Ray Rozelle (he hates the Alvin) is commissioner of the National Football League and still a nice guy who can be the butt of another's jokes, or adroit enough to retaliate.

Like when Newell was quoted on his coaching philosophy advocating team work as a unit, subordinating the enterprise of the individual, and received a call:

"This is the president of the Sea Cliff PTA, and I think it was just horrible for you as an educator to say that our boys shouldn't think for themselves."

"But, ma'm," stammered Newell, "what I meant to convey applied merely to athletics."

"It was horrible anyhow," said Mrs. Pete Rozelle, well-coached.

• • •

A sense of humor is what Rozelle will need in his new job. As the general manager of the Rams, he stood in the buffer zone between Dan Reeves' controlling interest of the club on one side and Ed Pauley and his land-yacht traveling companions, who owned the rest.

With the apparent cleavage of the NFL into the Stubborn Seven and Fearless Four (and George Halas in the twilight zone), Rozelle comes out as a nice guy who wasn't offensive to either side and most palatable to all.

He'll have to watch out domineering individuals like George Marshall of the Redskins and Halas of the Bears don't eat him up.

Pete can be tough if he has to. Duane Putnam, a guard for the Rams, broke training on a trip to New York last season, and it's been popularly believed that Coach Sid Gillman suspended him.

Actually, Rozelle confronted the player when he returned to Rams quarters after hours and immediately sent him back to Los Angeles.

• • •

Art Lentz of the U. S. Olympic Association got to know Rozelle when he worked with a San Francisco public relations outfit to stimulate interest in the 1956 Olympic Games for Australia. It was Pete's dramatic idea to bring John Landy to the United States for a pair of dramatic mile races.

"He has," says Art, "what I call a meat-grinder mind. We'd throw a lot of stuff at him, and he could digest it and come up with the core of the situation."

It'll take just such a mind to wade through the muddle of an NFL meeting.

Argo, Geneva Toppled From Thin Ranks Of Undefeated Prep Fives

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Argo and Geneva were toppled Friday from the thin ranks of unbeaten downstate high school basketball teams.

Rock Island, Waukegan and East Rockford were other teams among the top 15 which stumbled.

Ottawa, No. 1, cracken out a 95-57 victory over Hall of Spring Valley. The Pirates with 19 successes remain the only unbeaten team classed in the Associated Press poll.

Thornton of Harvey was the stumbling block for Argo, ninth-rated team which lost 56-53 in its 13th outing.

Geneva went in to an overtime trying to salvage its 18th effort this season, but St. Charles, beaten once before, came out on top this time on its own floor, 49-48.

Galesburg's once - beaten and second - ranked Streaks unloaded scoring power on the fifth-ranked Rock Island team, 80-57. It was the second defeat for the Rocks.

Seventh-ranked Waukegan fell in the path of Highland Park, 74-41. Highland Park administered one of the three previous Waukegan defeats.

East Rockford lost 54-46 on the court of LaSalle-Peru. While compiling 13-2 record, the Rockford team counted a home-court win over the LaSalle-Peru outfit.

Once - beaten Collinsville bolstered its ranking in third place by pasting East St. Louis 72-52. Pinckneyville was idle.

In a game where scoring was sparse, Springfield beat Lincoln 38-35. Kankakee found a little more power to spare in a second defeat of Lockport, winning 57-45. Proviso East uncorked a 73-49 reversal of Evanston.

Other winners among the ranked teams were Decatur over Bloomington 68-58, Litchfield over Pana 71-35, and Peoria Richwoods over Peoria Limestone 69-48.

Among well-regarded teams, Elgin stopped Joliet 58-53, Bridgeport whipped Salem 82-62, and DeKalb topped Mendota 63-48.

West Frankfort cleared Harrisburg 54-53, Toluca won in the Mid-County Tourney 57-52 and Serena topped Leland 56-43. Erie won 63-50 from Mt. Morris.

Granite City continued to rebound from losses to Collinsville and Alton, winning 73-55 from Belleville. West Aurora won 57-49 from East Aurora.

Crystal Lake barely overcame Dundee 56-55, West Rockford scuttled Freeport 71-63 and Pekin tipped Peoria Woodruff 71-67.

Centralia avenged an earlier loss to Herrin, winning 62-55. West Chicago beat Batavia the second time, but more easily, 56-43.

Other winners included Marion, Shabbona, Pittsfield, Flora, Decatur Eisenhower, Macomb Western, Sparta, Robin

Open Bids Feb. 19 On Overhead Bridge For Route 104 Relocation

Sealed bids for building an overhead bridge across the Wabash railroad one mile west of Jacksonville, at a point where State Route 104 will be relocated, are to be received and opened at 10 a. m. Feb. 19 by the Illinois Department of Public Works and Buildings, at Springfield.

Melvin J. Benscoter, Morgan county superintendent of highways, received the announcement Saturday.

The overhead bridge, which will carry traffic from the present State Route 104 to U.S. Routes 36-54, further south, is the first contract of the relocation for which the state has bequeathed bids.

State Route 104 will be routed south from its present location near the Charles Hadden farm. The project is one of four major highway jobs on the construction schedule this year.

The bids to be opened Feb. 19 include both the overhead structure and approaches. Bids for grading and laying concrete for the "cut-off" section will be received at a later date.

Patient Hangs Self With Electric Cord

The electric cord was located between two beds in the ward where the Carrollton man had been a patient since Oct. 8, 1959.

Coroner Elmer O. Sample began an investigation, empaneling a jury at the state hospital. The jury consists of Walter Miles, Don Ray, John Brockhouse, Edward Barnes, H. F. Garrett, and Russell Armstrong.

An autopsy was performed by Dr. Hugh McKinley.

Coroner Sample said the jurors will reconvene Sunday morning to hear evidence and return a verdict.

HONOR ILLINOIS' TOP FARMER-CITIZEN

Selected Illinois' "Outstanding Young Farmer" of the year, Robert R. Wier and Mrs. Wier accept the plaque from Ben Jones of Chicago, president of the Illinois Junior Chamber of Commerce, Saturday night at Jonathan Turner school.

The Wiers live in Marshall county near Lacon, Illinois. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wier will journey to Bakersfield, California, on April 4 as Mr. Wier competes in the national contest sponsored by the Jaycees.

Marshall County Man Named 'Outstanding Young Farmer' Here

A thirty-five year old Marshall County livestock and grain farmer captured the title of Illinois' "Outstanding Young Farmer of 1960" at presentation ceremonies before a crowd of 300 Jaycees, guests and prominent farm leaders here Saturday night.

Ralph R. Wier of rural Lacon, Illinois, received the plaque "in recognition of exceptional progress in agriculture and contributions to his community" from Ben Jones of Chicago, president of the Illinois Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the statewide contest.

Wier and his wife, Delight, shared in a long list of gifts donated by business and industry in the Jacksonville area. Mr. Wier will represent Illinois at a national contest, also sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, April 4-6, in Bakersfield, Calif. The Wiers are the parents of five children. He was sponsored by the Lacon-Henry chapter Jaycees.

Second, Third Place Winners

Second place in the statewide contest was awarded to Eugene Bonneur, 34, Route 3, Morrison, who operates a cattle and hog farm in Whiteside County. Bonneur is married and has four children. He was sponsored by the Morrison Jaycees.

John H. Kent, 35, Mt. Vernon, a Jefferson County dairy farmer, won third place. Kent is married and has two children. He was sponsored by the Mt. Vernon Jaycees.

The three top winners were picked from a field of thirty-three from all parts of Illinois. The Jacksonville Jaycees were hosts to the delegates, contestants and wives for the all-day program.

Contest Judges

Judges for the contest were: Dr. John Herbst, Agricultural Economics Dept., University of Illinois; Leonard Gardner, Associate Director of Research, Illinois Agricultural Association; Les Wright, Assistant State Conservationist, Soil Conservation Service, USDA; Joe Ewing, Agricultural Statistician, Illinois Crop Reporting Service; and Boyce Moore, Morgan County Farmer, Director, Illinois Agricultural Association.

Saturday's Activities

Contestants and their wives arrived in Jacksonville Saturday morning for registration. The contestants were introduced during a social hour and the judges started the second phase of their work. Wives of the contestants were guests at a style show.

Roger Mittelberg, director of field research, Moorman Feed Company of Quincy, was guest speaker at a noon luncheon in honor of the candidates.

The contestants toured farm and industry Saturday afternoon. They visited a vegetable oil processing and manufacturing plant, Anderson-Clayton, Inc., of Jacksonville; and a modern, automated livestock operation, the Davidsmeyer-Green farm, nearby.

The ladies visited several of Jacksonville's outstanding homes followed by a shopping period.

Awards Banquet

The awards banquet was held at Jonathan Turner dining room in Jacksonville with Bill Mason, farm program director, Radio Station WLS, Chicago, doing the chores as master of ceremonies.

Principal speaker for the evening was R. W. Dibble, sales director, farm equipment division, International Harvester Company.

Jacksonville's Mayor, Robert A. DuBois welcomed the guests to the city. F. John Taylor, Virginia, Illinois, national vice-president United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, gave a short talk on the purpose of the nationwide Jaycee project.

Illinois Jaycees President Ben Jones of Chicago made the presentation of awards. Arrangements in Jacksonville were made by C. W. Nicholson, state OYF chairman, and members of the Jacksonville Jaycees.

Winner is Active in Community

Ralph R. Wier of Marshall county earned the title of "Outstanding Young Farmer of 1960" by using his land wisely and contributing to the welfare of the community.

Wier has been farming for the past 16 years, 9 years on his own. He overcame the loss of barn, equipment and livestock by fire and one year of heavy drouth during his farming career. Principal crops are livestock and grain, but he also planted a forest nearby where he harvests fence posts and maple syrup. The forest is also a part of a watershed project designed to conserve the fertility of his croplands.

In his spare time, Wier manages to find ample time for a number of community services. He teaches a Sunday School class in his church; takes an active part in 4-H and youth guidance activities; provides summer vacations on his farm for crippled children as well as a camp grounds for boy scouts; recently became a two-gallon blood donor; flies his own plane and is active in civic and fraternal groups.

'Keystone Cops' Collect $543.05 At Road Block

Diligent 'searching' of cars stopping at the College Avenue-South Main intersection roadblock netted the "Keystone Cops" a total of $543.05 Saturday for the New March of Dimes. The mirthful sleuths stopped cars from noon to 5 p.m. at the intersection asking for contributions for the annual drive.

According to word received Saturday evening from George Ischer, chairman of the event sponsored by the Lions Club, nearly 50 members of the local service organization took part in the amusing collection. Dressed as the traditional 'cops' they accepted donations and distributed stickers bearing the March of Dimes seal to drivers of the cars.

This marks the sixth year that the Lions have aided the local March of Dimes in this manner.

Winchester PTA Meets

The January meeting of the Winchester PTA was opened at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday evening, Jan. 28, in the Band Room of the new gymnasium with the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag led by the president, Pete Spangler. Due to the icy roads the entertainment and program for the evening preceded the business session.

Students of the grade school entertained with instrumental selections. This included a flute trio composed of Janet Lawson, Kay Williams and Cynthia McCullough; a piano solo by Gloria Grindheim and a flute solo by Cynthia McCullough.

E. Fred Evans, of Quincy, a former Winchester teacher, introduced the speaker of the evening, Roy D. Wilcox, Rehabilitation Counselor, Division of Vocational Rehabilitation of the State of Illinois, also of Quincy, and a guest, Richard Shrimp who is with the Rehabilitation of the Blind for the State of Illinois. Mr. Wilcox stated that any handicapped person, either rich or poor, is eligible for rehabilitation benefits.

The Division also gives financial aid to people needing artificial limbs or arms and helps with emotional and mental problems and with the deaf. A child possessing any type of handicap is eligible for a college scholarship. The speaker showed a film entitled "Comeback," which showed the processes of fitting persons with artificial limbs and arms and showed the things they are able to do afterwards in making a living. Mr. Wilcox said that the service and any information pertaining to it may be obtained in Scott County by contacting Mrs. Temple I. Grout of the Department of Public Welfare in Winchester.

The business meeting concluded the evening. Robert Reid reported a balance of $948.29 in the treasury. Minutes of the last regular PTA meeting and of the last Board meeting were read. After much discussion concerning the project for this year by the teachers and the parents it was decided to purchase needed outdoor playground equipment. It was also voted to increase the original budget of $200 for this project to $325 so that enough equipment could be ordered. Tabled until another time was the need of buying folding chairs for use at PTA meetings.

The president noted that the new rostrum recently donated by the Woman's Club was being used for the first time that evening and expressed appreciation on behalf of the PTA. The tally of the room count was taken and resulted in Mrs. Russell Hubbert's second grade room being high in the lower grades and Mrs. Randall Killebrew's sixth grade room being high in the upper grades.

Scandinavian Skansen To Provide Authentic Atmosphere For '60 Fair

BY HAZEL BOTHWELL

Tradition has it there are no left turns in the country of Norway or right turns in Sweden, OR you wind up in the Sea. The same holds true March 5th at the International Fair when at Jonathan Turner Junior High, whether you arrive by 'jernbane or dampskirute' you take the 'ingang dorr' and not the 'ut.' And turning neither to right or left one follows the sound of gaiety and music straight to the festivities of the Skansen.

Skansens are known to every little mountain village for each rosy cheeked hiker with a pack on his back and a yoedel in his heart stops to enter into the friendly bustle and dancing of the Street Festival.

The Skansen will take the place of the Parisian Flea Market of previous Fairs. Games of skill and chance, prizes, food and street dancing will delight the Jacksonville "tourists."

Soup To Nuts Shops

Gay little shops will line the streets where visitors may browse and buy from a selection of articles donated to the Fair. Old books, jewelry, household articles of all kinds, china, sheet music and odds and ends, — in fact, "just what you have been looking for" will be waiting in these shops.

Tired of shopping? Feet hurt? You may rest on wooden benches in the purple shadow of tall Norwegian pine, listen to the strolling minstrels and watch the jolly artists sketching portraits. And don't be surprised if a small mountain goat goes frolicking by.

Or you can climb the hillside to the Kaffe Shop, sweet with delicious pastries, rolls and breads, fit to tempt a Viking.

Many Attractions

Residents of the Jacksonville area will again exhibit their treasures from many lands. Most will be new and different and emphasis will be on those from the Snow Countries.

Two theatre performances will be given by overseas students from the two local colleges. Imported gift and practical items will be on sale and the very popular foreign dinner will this year feature Scandinavian foods.

The general admission to the International Fair is fifty cents. Dinner tickets will be sold in advance and other attractions will be priced accordingly. Proceeds will be used for the scholarship fund for students wishing to work with handicapped children.

Miss Shehorn, Edw. Knapp Betrothed

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Shehorn announce the engagement of their daughter, Marjorie, to Edward R. Knapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Knapp of Winchester, Ill.

Marjorie graduated from Columbus High School, Columbus, Indiana, with the class of 1957. She is plant receptionist and switchboard operator for the Kordite Corporation in Jacksonville.

No date has been set for the wedding.

About 1,125,000 Americans travel to Europe every year.

How Our Teachers' Salaries Compare

The release this week by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce of the results of its survey of teachers' salary schedules was a timely one for local citizens who now are considering a proposition to increase the educational tax rate in order to improve teachers salaries here.

It is interesting to note in the Chamber survey that the salary schedule which now prevails in our school system is well below the median of districts surveyed of comparable size.

For school districts with enrollments of 2,000 to 5,000 pupils, into which classification the Jacksonville district falls, the average minimum for teachers holding bachelor's degrees was $4,300 with a maximum of $6,000. The local schedule establishes the minimum at $4,000 and the maximum at $5,560.

For teachers with master's degrees the Jacksonville system also falls below the average pay scale. The survey shows the median minimum at $4,600 and maximum at $6,500. Locally, the minimum in this classification is $4,240 and the maximum $6,120.

These statistics, gathered on a state-wide basis, show that the Board of Education is well justified in submitting to the voters at a special election to be held February 20, 1960 a proposal to increase the educational tax rate in order to improve teacher's salaries.

The survey clearly shows that our teachers salaries are below par. They should be above par to attract the best possible teachers for our system.

The position of our system is also shown by considering the average beginning salary of teachers graduated from our five state universities. This average starting salary for new teachers was $4,328, compared with our starting salary of $4,000.

One of the school board members, Mrs. C. L. Kanatzar, hit the nail on the head in a panel discussion this week. She declared, "Quality teachers are the backbone of our educational system." She also explained how there is great competition for teachers, especially those with fine records. "Salary is one of the primary aspects in attracting new teachers and holding those who are now working."

There is no doubt but that these statements are correct. If we want quality education for our children we must be willing to pay for it in the form of higher taxes, unpalatable as that may be.

Sizing Up The Delegates—

As the nominating campaigns for president gather speed, many states will one way or another commit their convention delegates to particular candidates well in advance of the big dates in Los Angeles and Chicago.

With no contest shaping up in the Republican fold, no one looks for any holdouts at all right now against Vice President Nixon. It will be a different story in the Democratic camp. All or part of some delegations, including key groups like Pennsylvania's 81, will put the "uncommitted" tag on their state and wait until assembly time in the convention city.

It should never be forgotten, however, that delegates do not go to the convention with blank minds. They will arrive with strong leanings one way or the other. For they all have to vote on the first ballot, "uncommitted" or not.

The astute political observers will not be clocked off, but will look behind the "uncommitted" sign to learn what's really going on.

Communication

Murrayville, Ill.
Jan. 28, 1960.

Dear Editor:

As regards the proposed referendum for a school tax rate increase and recently published budgetary facts: My dictionary defines budget (n) as a plan or schedule adjusting expenses during a certain period to the estimated (or fixed) income for that period! I know of no other word so misused in all fields!

I want a "quality" education for "all" children—and I do not call "frills" "something my child doesn't need!" I especially believe in help for "retarded" children—and I have none! I think the "gifted" will "arrive" without special classes—and I have none! It is my personal belief we could do without kindergarten—and I have grandchildren!

I would devote all-out energy to the "average" child! I would add, that back when only four subjects per year were taught in each grade—and four credits were required, that I believe the high school graduates were superior in knowledge to present day graduates!

I do not overlook the fact that the fault can not all be in the schools. Present day parents expect too much from the school system. If they must have it, "pressure groups" may bring about its being—and certainly it must be paid for! The idea of relying on physical education classes for needed exercise—with Dad and Mom literally knocking themselves out doing daily chores! Also, "counselling" in the home should eliminate the need of it in school! Time was when mothers taught sewing, cooking, and other homemaking talents— and farmer boys learned "agriculture" by "doing" at home.

As for the teaching of foreign languages to third graders—that is just another Russian idea that I do not agree with! At present strides, many parents are despairing of how they will manage to properly feed, clothe, and educate their children! Having a "quality" education available is only one part of the whole process.

These are just expressed opinions of one (who believes our present school board does not represent a cross-section of people district-wide.) I am proud we Americans can still vote on such issues—and I do hope a "majority" will vote so the result will be a "majority" decision! Be it for, or against, I'll go along most willingly. Respectfully, I would say in closing that "poor" school districts should live like poor people—with as much dignity and prosperity as possible—within their budget!

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The issue that delayed for three months the wedding of Ernest Borgnine and Katy Jurado is still unsolved a month after their wedding.

Before the wedding Borgnine told a reporter Katy wanted to make Cuernavaca, Mexico, their home base. Borgnine thinks it should be Hollywood.

"I love Mexico—and its people," said Borgnine, "but I got to make myself available in Hollywood where the jobs are."

Borgnine is due in town this week to finish dubbing on "Pay or Die," a story of an Italian policeman's fight against the Mafia.

His "Marty," first American picture to play Moscow since before World War II, made him an international star. It also won him an Oscar.

He has three films unreleased. "But I got all those jobs from Hollywood," Borgnine explains. In a long distance call from Cuernavaca, he said the argument still rages.

"Katy is keeping her home here in Cuernavaca," he said. "I'm going to find us another one in Hollywood. And then we'll commute."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How does Jerry Lewis, movie production tycoon, deal with Jerry Lewis, funnyman?

"I've never been a believer in Hollywood nepotism," said the busy boss of one of the screen's top box-office stars.

"I don't allow the little jerk any extra concessions just because he is my alter-ego along with being my bread and butter. He has to earn his own way with me, or I let him have it."

Jerry makes all his own pictures under his Paramount deal.

In "Cinder Fella," a farce version of the fairy tale, Paramount cutters were joined by producer Lewis. One source says producer Lewis is ruthless in scissoring scenes of Lewis the comic.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dick Blackwell is the only one of the original "Dead End Kids" to wind up a dress designer.

Blackwell grew up along the East River waterfront and was picked off the street for Sidney Kingsley's production of the famed play back in 1933. Blackwell toured with the national company and eventually came to Hollywood.

He worked in movie versions of the famed band of tough kids and eventually outgrew that delinquent look.

"When I found I couldn't work steady as an actor," he says, "I turned to designing."

Japanese Ambassador Could Have Added Duty— H. S. T. and Columnist Agree on Something

By JERRY BENNETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON—(NEA)— Japanese Ambassador Koichiro Asaki is going to have to open an employment agency in Washington if he doesn't watch out.

When Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi spoke at the National Press Club, somebody sent up a question asking, "How can I get another Japanese secretary? I have one and she's wonderful."

Replied the prime minister: "Write the ambassador."

WHEN FORMER President Truman held his press conference on arrival in Washington for the Democrats' $100-a-plate rally, Newspaper Enterprise Assn. Correspondent Peter Edson asked him whether he would still be against Adlai Stevenson for president as he was in 1956?

"I wasn't against him," said the ex-President. "I just wanted to get out of his road."

Then, pointing a finger at the questioner, he said: "You know, I read your column every day in my home town paper (The Independence Examiner), and some days I don't like it at all."

Under the laughter, the columnist replied in an undertone, "Neither do I."

"EVEN THE Republicans have discovered that they can't win elections without women," said Mrs. Katie Louchheim, assistant chairman of the Democratic National Committee at its meeting here.

To prove her point, Katie told a story about a father who reprimanded his son for a bad report card by reminding him that the girl next door got straight A's. "Are you going to let a mere girl beat you?" the father asked.

"Dad," said the son, "women aren't 'mere' any more."

A MAN recently wrote Senate Aviation Subcommittee Chairman A. S. "Mike" Monroney (D-Okla.) a unique recommendation for preventing bombs from being hidden on planes. He suggested stationing bloodhounds inside air terminals.

Exactly how the dogs would go about their job wasn't explained. The man felt that just having them around would discourage a bomber from setting anything off in the air.

REP. JIM WRIGHT (D-Tex.) tells this one:

In a recent political poll, voters were asked if they favored their state buying voting machines. One person, deploring the trend toward the expanding use of electronics, replied:

"Definitely not. I think that people ought to vote themselves."

A ROACH INVASION has turned usually calm congressional secretaries into the most skittish people in town. Lately Gal Fridays in both house office buildings have been finding roaches inside desk drawers, on bookshelves and underneath stacks of letters.

They have discovered that the best way to bring them out of hiding is to eat at their desks. No sooner did one startled secretary open her lunch bag recently than four roaches crawled out of the bottom of her telephone.

Those Tensions Are Useful; Let Them Work for You

BY MARIE DAERR

"An occasional bout of anxiety and tension is quite normal, and while it may be unpleasant, or even painful, it need not be a cause for additional concern."

That's the cheerful word from a free booklet, "How to Deal With Your Tensions." The book is a joint project of the Advertising Council and the National Assn. for Mental Health.

Anxiety and tensions are just as much a part of life as are hunger and thirst, the booklet explains. They come to our aid in emergencies. They are sources of excitement. They are our self-protective reactions when we face threats to our safey, well-being, happiness and self-esteem.

It is only when emotional upsets come often, shake a person severely and fail to wear off after awhile that it is time to become watchful.

It is also time to try these 11 tips:

- Talk it out. This relieves the strain, helps you see the worry in a clearer light, often helps you to see what you can do about it.
- Escape for awhile. Try a book, a movie, a game, a brief trip. But be ready to come back and face your problem when you're more composed.
- Work off your anger. This makes you better prepared to handle your problems intelligently and gainfully.
- Give in occasionally. It's easier on your system.
- Do something for others. It takes the steam out of your own worries.
- Take one thing at a time. When a work load looks too big, pitch into a few of the most urgent tasks. Let the rest wait.
- Shun the "superman" urge. Don't set yourself records to break in everything you do.
- Go easy with your criticism. Search out another person's good points and help him develop them.
- Give the other fellow a break. If he no longer feels you are a threat to him, he stops being a threat to you.
- Make yourself "available." Make some of the overtures, instead of always waiting to be asked.
- Schedule your recreation. Don't drive yourself so hard that there is no time for play.

If you can't lick your tensions by such suggestions as those, don't hesitate to seek expert help. Go to your family doctor. He may advise going to a psychiatrist or getting treatment at a psychiatric clinic, at a mental hospital or at the psychiatric department of a general hospital.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—All of a sudden the Red Chinese are putting on their Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes and an attitude of butter-won't-melt-in-our-mouths.

Two things have happened in connection with this, one realistic and the other hard to believe.

The realistic one:

Ever since the Korean War the American government has refused to recognize the Chinese Communists as the rightful government of mainland China and has opposed a seat in the United Nations for them.

There has always been some unreality about this, since the Red Chinese not only control mainland China but appear to be strong enough to keep on controlling it into the unforeseeable future.

The American position, in trying to ignore the dominance of the Red Chinese on the mainland, has always been a diplomatic maneuver intended to force the Red Chinese into being less belligerent.

Still, just because this has been the American position, the United States has excluded Red China from any talks about world disarmament, even though any disarmament agreement without Red China would be a farce.

Nevertheless the United States, with four of its Western Allies, was going ahead with plans to meet with the Soviet Union and four Soviet-bloc countries in mid-March to seek agreement on world disarmament.

Then a little over a week ago the Red Chinese made it clear just how much of a joke it would be for the rest of the world to exclude them from an agreement. They did it simply:

They said they would not abide by any agreement which they didn't help negotiate or sign. The State Department quickly agreed this was true and said if the disarmament talks show progress Red China should be brought in.

It would have been more realistic for the State Department to have said this on its own, and long ago. As it is, the Red Chinese took the initiative in pushing the State Department into this admission.

This is the hard-to-believe one:

Thursday in Tokyo a high-ranking Japanese politician said the Red Chinese foreign minister, Chen Yi, told him the Communist Chinese have decided never again to use force against Formosa's Chiang Kai-shek.

The repeated Red Chinese attack on the forces of Chiang, who is not only an American ally but in effect an American responsibility, have been the sorest point of friction between this country and Red China.

The Red Chinese have never told the United States they will abandon force against Formosa. But if their foreign minister was telling the truth to the Japanese politician, then there are perhaps three reasons.

None of the three can be attributed to a sudden development of mildness or international togetherness in Red China. These are the three likely reasons, singly or together:

1. Chiang is an old man. They may figure he won't live long and, since he was their main stumbling block to winning Formosa, once he's gone the Chinese on Formosa can be induced to come over.

2. The Red Chinese by their tactics in recent months have become a kind of bogey-man to their Asian neighbors: They crushed the Tibetans and jittered even peaceful India by slamming troops right up against her frontier.

In short, all Asia now has reason to look on Red China as a menace. From the standpoint of propaganda alone this is stupidity. It seemed only a matter of time before the Red Chinese got wise to themselves. Apparently they have now.

3. Their aggressiveness has been a pain in the neck of Premier Nikita Khrushchev who has been talking peace. They were spoiling any mileage he hoped to get by his opposite tactics. He may have talked them into cutting out the rough stuff—at least temporarily.

But it's hard to believe Red China has decided to be everybody's good neighbor. They haven't been so far. It's possible they've decided to quiet down. But, judging from past performance, it still looks like an act.

The broadwalk at Atlantic City is 60 feet wide and eight miles long, equivalent to more than 2.5 million square feet.

A 68-year-old widow living alone says: "Nobody seems to have time for me any more.

"Neighbors never drop in. Friends have stopped asking me to go places or visit in their homes. Everyone seems to be too busy to bother about me."

As long as you sit around feeling sorry for yourself and expect others to take on the job of keeping you happy and entertained, you are going to go right on being lonely and resentful.

No one is going to change the situation for you. You'll have to change it for yourself. How long has it been since you've done something for a neighbor; baked a batch of cookies or a loaf of homemade bread, offered to baby-sit so that a busy mother could shop or attend a club meeting?

How long has it been since you invited the neighbors in for morning coffee?

How long has it been since you've been the one to think up something interesting to do and have telephoned a friend to go along on the jaunt you have planned? You can't just sit back and wait for others to include you in their plans. You've got to stir things up yourself, you know.

And have you given any thought at all to the women you know who are as lonely as you are? There are bound to be some.

How about doing for them the things you think others should be doing for you? You can always find companionship if you look for it where it is available, instead of wishing that busy folk had more time for you.

And what about all the volunteer work that has to be done in any community. Are you doing your share of that?

Such work will not only keep you busy and give you a sense of feeling useful, but in doing it you will meet people you enjoy.

No able-bodied woman of 68 needs to sit around being lonely and feeling sorry for herself.

There is too much to be done and too much to do and too many other lonely people in the world to waste time being lonely.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

'Religion's What Matters'

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

One would have to be very obtuse, and also completely isolated from his daily and Sunday newspapers if he failed to recognize the immense importance of sports affairs in the minds of a vast mass of the American people—in fact of people in general, an interest intensified and extensified by the TV connection.

My interest is in some religious aspects that appear, or that seem to be involved. I suppose an inevitable comment, especially to one brought up under an inhibitive and strict code of Sabbath, or Sunday observance would be of the extent to which Sunday through sports events has become a day so largely devoted to sports and pleasure, where a generation or so ago it was generally regarded, at least in the U.S.A. and Canada, as pre-eminently a day of rest and worship.

It is obvious that so great a change could not have occurred in so relatively short a time if great numbers of people had not actively or passively tended to resist the religious or legal restrictions, or both.

I remember a ministerial friend in Ontario telling how his forebears had moved from the Ohio frontier to Canada because of the horse racing and similar Sunday excesses of the then frontier community.

But there is a deeper aspect to the reaction that has occurred from observance to laxity. I think much of it has come about because what I am inclined to call the artificial worship OF Sunday, rather than worship ON Sunday, was made of such importance in strict observance.

One incident I recall. I was visiting in a neighboring town, and on Sunday afternoon a friend came with a fine horse and buggy outfit to take me for a drive. The practice of my home and upbringing was against pleasure going on Sunday, and I politely declined the invitation.

I think I may say that it required a measure of moral courage to obey a dictate of conscience, but conscience should never have been put to such an absurd test.

I may now have become too libertarian in my outlook on life and conduct, but I have long felt that acts of sin and wrong-doing are too many, and too real, to set up artificial ones. Like all reactions, the reaction against strict Sabbath observance has gone a great deal too far—so far that for many Monday has become a day of listlessness, if not of rest, recovering from the excesses of Sunday.

Of a counter-reaction there is little real hope. Radio and TV, whatever their defects, have made Sunday more a matter of the home. Otherwise, I think the hope lies in a religious attitude toward life and, whatever else, there may be on Sunday the keeping of time and place for contemplation, worship, and devotion.

All is not lost if there is a vital purpose to keep something of what a day of rest and devotion ought to be.

But religion is what matters. A person without any is like a ship without a rudder and with no means of propulsion. Incidentally, a religion that inclines a man to association and worship with his fellowmen, regardless of difference, is in my judgment a very good religion.

Build a Better Breakfast Around These Tasty Ideas

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

A little more time, a little more planning, could turn breakfast into the most pleasant meal of the day, according to Alan R. Jackson, enjoyer of good living, and author of the attractive new "The Breakfast Cookbook" (150 pages—engagingly illustrated.)

Jackson enjoys soup for breakfast.

Pea and Chipped Beef Soup (For 1 or 2)

One can green pea soup, 2/3 can water, ¼ cup chipped beef, 1 or 2 eggs.

Simmer soup and water. Add chipped beef and mix thoroughly. Add egg, poach until firm. Serve at once.

Corn Bread Hash (Serves 6)

One package corn bread mix, 1 cup finely cut-up chicken (leftovers are good for this.)

Follow directions on package for mixing, adding cup of chicken to mixture. Bake in square pan or muffin tins as directed.

Eggs and Sour Cream

One-half cup bread crumbs (or a good packaged poultry stuffing), ¼ cup sour cream, 4 eggs.

Butter 4 custard cups and pour about 1 tablespoon of melted butter in bottom of each. Put scant teaspoon of bread crumbs into bottom of cup and break whole egg onto crumbs. Top egg with ¼ teaspoon of crumbs. Bake in oven at 340 degrees F. for about 10 minutes or until eggs are set. Teaspoon of sour cream on each egg.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Hot turkey sandwiches with giblet gravy, canned peas, carrots with dill, enriched bread, butter or margarine, cole slaw, canned peaches, chocolate brownies, coffee, tea, milk.

The only reason some clubs hold monthly meetings is that it's been a month since the last one.

Anti-Cyst Nematode Soybeans Sought

Resistant varieties should some day turn back the soybean cyst nematode, remarked a University of Illinois plant pathologist Tuesday at the Illinois Custom Spray Operators' Training School.

"But until then," said M. P. Britton, "stoppage measures are needed to check the disease's spread in Illinois." He mentioned state and federal quarantines of infested fields as one way and growing soybeans in rotation with non-susceptible crops as another.

The soybean cyst nematode turned up in the southern tip of Illinois late last summer. The Illinois Department of Agriculture placed the field under quarantine in October.

The disease, which can cause severe losses in soybeans, has a stronghold in Tennessee, Missouri, Arkansas and other nearby states bordering the Mississippi river. It spreads easily, and indications are that it's marching northward.

Identification Difficult

Britton said that controlling spread of the disease depends greatly on recognizing its symptoms in soybeans. Although positive identification isn't easy, he said farmers should watch for stunted plants. In soils of low fertility these plants may turn yellow.

Nematode infection shows up in patches in which all plants are affected. Stunting and yellowing from water damage look very much like nematode injury.

Farmers should report possible infections to their farm adviser. Collecting samples of soil or roots from suspected areas should be left to experts. All precautions must be taken to keep the disease from spreading to nearby areas.

Rotating soybeans with other crops looks promising as a control measure. Britton explained that some crops are resistant to the nematode. When these crops are grown in a soybean sequence, they can actually trap nematode larvae in their roots and thus kill them. Work is under way in some states to determine what would be good rotations to use against the nematode.

Weeds A Problem

Weed control in the rotation program will also be important. Several weeds are known nematode hosts and definitely contribute to the disease's spread.

As for developing an Illinois soybean that is resistant to the nematode, Britton explained that super-sanitary laboratory facilities are needed first. At present U. of I. pathologists and plant breeders cannot work with the disease here for fear of its spreading throughout central Illinois. A resistant variety, then, is not immediately in the offing.

The cyst nematode spreads with bewildering ease. The eggs are well protected within cysts that can be carried by farm implements, tools, shoes, boxes, crates —almost anything that touches an infected soil. Wind, runoff water and wildlife are other carriers.

Soil fumigation has proved too expensive so far but is still being studied in heavily infested areas. New chemicals or new methods of application may change the outlook.

High-Oil Hybrid Corn To Reduce Supplement Need

URBANA — Several producers will have the seed of "high-oil" hybrid corn available for the 1960 growing season, it was announced Tuesday at the University of Illinois Crop Performance Day.

R. W. Jugenheimer, assistant dean of the College of Agriculture, told the audience that several of these new high-oil hybrids, developed at the University, yield about 20 percent more oil and 10 percent more protein than present commercial hybrids. They match standard hybrids in yield, standability and other traits.

"Feeding trials here show that high-oil corn is a more efficient feed for livestock," started Jugenheimer, who is in charge of experimental corn breeding. Grain from the new hybrids also contain more high-quality germ protein.

To Cut Supplements

It's expected that this nutritionally balanced protein will allow less expensive protein supplements to be used in balancing rations, Jugenheimer said.

He explained that other corn breeding work at the University centers around developing new inbred lines that commercial seed producers may use in forming new hybrids. Another group of promising new Illinois inbred lines will be released this spring.

To Stress Other Points

Jugenheimer also pointed out that the high yield performace wrung from hybrids of late has given U. of I. researchers the chance to concentrate a little more on other characteristics. These include improved standability, higher oil and protein content, improved harvestability, less ear droppage and greater resistance to such hazards as insects, disease, cold and drouth.

More than 750 experimental hybrids were tested in 1959. Results of these tests are outlined in the College of Agriculture Bulletin 652. "Performance of Experimental Corn Hybrids in 1959."

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

With the grip of winter comes the daily chore of feeding hay and silage on many beef cattle farms. Now, hay and silage are good wintering feeds for the cow herd. In fact, they may be better feeds than the dry beef herd needs, particularly if the cows are in good flesh. Dry herds can get along all right on an adequate supply of fescue pasture, and it's an easy way to feed them.

Adequate Fescue Pasture

What is an adequate supply of fescue pasture? We can't depend on fescue to grow much in winter, so we'll need a reserve growth. In other words, we can't graze fescue 365 days a year and expect much winter grazing. So we suggest not grazing it during the summer if it will be used for winter grazing. Under this system, 2½ acres of fescue, seeded at the rate of 20 to 25 pounds per acre on limed and fertilized land, provide winter feed for one mature cow.

Suited to Poorer Land

Two and one-half acres to winter a beef cow sounds like a lot, particularly to the fellow who does the job with corn silage grown on about ¼ acre. And of course it's pointless to winter on fescue growing on ground that is capable of producing a good corn crop or top clover and grass pastures. But a lot of areas will grow fescue best; perhaps these areas are suited for nothing more high-powered than fescue.

Less Than 2½ Acres

Two and one-half acres of fescue per cow is a safe estimate, as this allows plenty of feed. There are systems of management that will reduce the acreage needed for winter pasture. For example, if you can get at least a month's grazing in cornstalks, you can cut the fescue requirement to two acres per cow.

Seed Crop Bonus

Winter-grazed fescue nitrated in March or April with 60 to 70 pounds of nitrogen per acre should return 250 pounds of clean seed per acre. Selling this seed at ten cents a pound will give a fair return over harvest and fertilizer cost.

After the seed is harvested, you can enhance winter grazing and perhaps still reduce the acreage needed to winter each cow. For example, mow the field and roll the hay into round bales. Let the herd self-feed from the bales.

The mowing and bailing accomplishes two things: (1) The fescue stubble and straw is rolled up and protected against leaching that would occur in the standing crop, and (2) the mowed fescue will make new growth that is more tender and nutritious than the dried, coarse stubble. Another 30 to 40 pounds of nitrogen topdressed in the fall will increase both the quality and the quantity of winter fescue.

Yield of Fescue Bales

A yield of 3,000 pounds of fescue stubble and straw, after the seed is combined, is a liberal estimate. If you get such a yield and the cow wastes half in self-feeding, you will still have enough feed in one acre of bales to carry one cow for about 75 days.

Baling stubble fescue, using nitrogen fertilizer and getting some winter grazing from cornstalk fields makes the 2½ acres of fescue per cow a liberal figure. In most years you could expect to have a surplus of feed.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

SOYBEAN MEAL AND OIL LOWER

Farmers held 198 million bushels of soybeans on farms January 1. That amount was only 2 percent less than they had held a year before, although the 1959 crop was 7 percent smaller than that of 1958.

Farmers owned at least an additional 13 million bushels that were stored in warehouses. They had placed that amount of warehoused beans under price support before December 1.

Why are farmers holding so many beans? They are holding some to postpone income to 1960. Most farmers expect prices to go up. As one farmer said, "The farm magazines and everybody said, 'Hold beans.'"

Such advice was widely given last fall. At that time many people expected bean prices to sag well below the support level, especially at harvest time. But harvest time is long since past, and prices have been well above the support level, recently by as much as 10 to 15 cents a bushel.

There is no surplus of soybeans. The carryover last October 1 was only 62 million bushels, or 11 percent of the previous crop. The prospective carryover next October will be smaller, probably about half as much as last fall.

Export Fine, So Far

The export demand for both beans and bean meal has been very good. Last summer's severe drouth in northern Europe cut feed production and thus increased the need for soybean meal. Exports of beans in October-November plus beans inspected for export in December totaled 57 million bushels, 39 per cent more than a year earlier.

But the biggest part of this export demand for beans may soon be over. Foreign buyers have probably purchased about enough beans to carry them until new grass is available.

In spite of the 1959 drouth in Europe, the value of the oil and meal in a bushel of beans is considerably less than it was a year ago.

Soybean oil was recently priced around 7 3/4 cents a pound, or 1.5 cents less than a year before. A bushel of beans contains a little more than 10 pounds of oil, so the oil in a bushel of beans was worth about 15 cents less than it was a year before.

The recent price of soybean meal was $63 a ton, or $4 less than a year earlier. About 40 bushels of beans are required to produce a ton of meal, so the meal in a bushel of beans was worth 10 cents less than it was a year before.

Product Value Down

About 15 cents less for the oil and a dime less for the meal makes a total reduction of around 25 cents in the value of the products that can be obtained from a bushel of beans. But the price of beans was down very little—in some markets not at all.

CCC stocks of soybeans are small, only about 12 million bushels on January 1. Sales from October 1 through January 1 totaled 27.5 million bushels. CCC has announced that its minimum sale price through March will be the support level plus 20 cents a bushel. This minimum sale price has been in effect since October 1.

Any substantial price increase for soybeans seems to depend upon some new development, such as a new international crisis or reduced production of beans or competitive crops in 1960.

Deadline for making application for price support loans and purchase agreements is January 31.

Last year's highly successful school won for Morgan county a soil conservation education plaque offered by the Illinois Bankers association. Other 1959 county winners were Boone, Marion and Stephenson.

This year's students taking the advanced course are Steve Joy and Allan Anderson, Victory 4-H club; Kenneth Hess, Bob Hadden, Clyde Werries and Ron Tomhave, Northside; Gordon Heaton, Lynnville Hustlers; Melvin Thies, East Side Juniors.

Bluffs Farmer To Address Greene Group

CARROLLTON — Royal Oakes of Bluffs will show slides and talk concerning his recent visit to Russia at the 20th annual meeting of the Greene County Soil Conservation District to be held in the Methodist church in Carrollton Tuesday, Feb. 2, at 6:30 p.m. Mr. Oakes, who will discuss farming methods in Russia, has been interested in crop varieties for years having conducted wheat plots on his own farms.

The banquet will be followed by a business session reporting the activities of the district for the past year, the election of officers and a report by LeRoy Reeder, farm planner.

Tickets for the banquet may be purchased from the Soil Conservation District office, the Greene County Farm Bureau office, or any of the directors of the district who are Tom Ford, president; Frank Kuhnline, secretary; Harold Hyde, Joe O. Smith and Claude B. Ruyle.

At Peoria Conference

Jerry Walker, Murrayville; James C. Ranson and Wayne Tomhave of Jacksonville last week attended the fourth annual Illinois Farm Bureau Young People's Training conference held in Peoria at the Jefferson hotel.

About 250 Illinois youths attended the four day school, which is designed to help develop rural leadership.

Arriving in Peoria last Sunday the delegates established a cooperative to handle a refreshment stand which dealt in soft drinks, milk, apples, candy, ice cream, cigarets and chewing gum. Business was good, so good that the cooperative was able to declare a 5% dividend on stock and a 20% patronage dividend.

Terry Flatt Tells Steps Toward A Good Farm Pond

A Good Pond For Your Money

Are you going to pay good money for a poor farm pond?

Of the thousands of farm ponds being built this year, many will not hold water or will not hold enough water to fill farm needs, according to R. C. Hay, agricultural engineer at the University of Illinois.

Hay says there are two factors that justify building farm ponds in poorer land areas.

First, you'll get better results with a pond that has a heavy clay subsoil rather than a pervious subsoil. Clay subsoils provide a large amount of runoff water and also act as a seal on the bottom and sides of ponds.

Second, Hay says that hilly land is usually better for locating a pond than good level land. It's easier and cheaper to put a dam across a valley than to dig a pond on level land.

If you plan to build a pond, see your soil conservationist first, advises Hay. He will help you plan your pond.

Here are some of the essential steps in building a good farm pond: Choose a good location. Take soil borings. Survey the site for dimensions of reservoir and dam. Plan needed spillways. And protect the dam and sides by liming, fertilizing, seeding a grass mixture and covering with a mulch.

The speaker will be Conley Burgess, principal of Perry school. He is associated with the Civil Defense administration of Pike county.

Murrayville Man At Land Conclave

Earl W. Wright of Wright Land Improvement, Murrayville, attended the national convention of the Land Improvement Contractors of America held last week in Peoria.

The group consists of leading independent contractors who specialize in earth-moving on projects to conserve natural resources.

Speakers at the convention included specialists on small dam and spillage construction, terracing and drainage. Watershed development was one of the primary topics of discussion.

Approximately 250 members attended the convention, which was held in the Pere Marquette hotel.

Announce Tests Of Dwarf Corn

URBANA — The first results of tests on dwarf corn were released Tuesday at the University of Illinois Crop Performance Day.

Jerry Ross, crop testing technician, reported that in general yields of the dwarf hybrids were lower than normal hybrid yields at the same test locations. The average dwarf yield at DeKalb was 90.5 bushels an acre; at Greenfield, 69.2; at Urbana, 70.7 and at Browntown, 68.1.

Highest average yields of the "normal" commercial hybrids came from the Galesburg test field 112.8 bushels an acre, and the test field at Stanford yielded 112.6 bushels. To gear yields to actual farming conditions all fields were mechanically harvested.

Average yields of normal hybrids at other test locations were 106.5 bushels an acre at DeKalb, 103 at Woodstock, 101.7 at Urbana, 94.7 at Greenfield, 92.2 at Bowen, 89.1 at Ashkum, 84 at Wolf Lake and 81.7 at Browntown.

84,000 Pound Arm

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

The arms of the centrifuge at the naval Air Development Center weighs 84,000 pounds when completely equipped with gondola, gimbals, counterweight and gimbal control mechanism.

To develop the right kind of g (gravity) forces or tests this weight must be spun under close control to go from a dead stop to 180 miles-per-hour in slightly less than 7 seconds.

To do this General Electric supplied one of the largest vertical mounted DC motors ever built. It starts right off with 16,000 horsepower, then levels off to 4,000 horsepower. The rotor (part of the motor which spins) weighs 160,000 pounds and the whole motor weighs 180 tons.

To make the centrifuge even more useful three free-swinging cars have been hung on the arm at 23, 30 and 37 feet from the rotor end of the arm. These make it possible to do several centrifuge tests at the same time. They are used mainly for testing inanimate (non-living) objects and equipment.

The centrifuges built earlier than the Navy centrifuge take a longer time to develop high g forces than a spaceship would during re-entry maneuvers. This is especially bad because g force is more damaging when it builds up quickly. The Navy centrifuge, however, can develop high accelerations almost instantly.

The older centrifuges also have free-swinging cars and the length of their arms varies from a minimum of 12 feet to a maximum of 23 feet. This results in a difference in g stress between the head and feet of a seated subject, which may be as much as 25 per cent. This, of course, would not be the case in a rocket launching.

Also, an airplane, or spaceship, could never pull out of a dive in an arc (part of a circle) anyway near 23 feet. These conditions naturally caused a difference between test results and the actual situation.

Like Real Flight

These differences are practically all eliminated by the 50-foot arm and controlled positioning of the gondola in the Navy centrifuge. Besides this, the position control of the gondola makes it possible to examine any g stress pattern desired.

The Navy centrifuge can stop as fast as it starts, and also make its gondola spin and tumble. This makes it possible for the Navy's Flight Surgeons the type of accelerations that would occur during a crash so they can develop proper protective devices.

OUT OF THE PAST

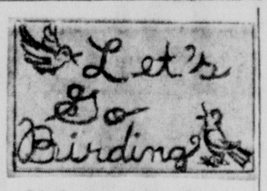

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—About 300 million years ago, says the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, a vest inland sea extended from what is now Lake Erie south across Ohio to West Virginia. It deposited salt up to 300 feet thick in some places and this is now the basic ingredient for about 14,000 manufacturing and industrial processes.

During 1958, 1,000 divorce decrees were granted each day in the United States.

Littlest and Loudest

By Emma Mae Leonhard

After a series of warm foggy days in January, followed a nippy but sunny day. In spite of the coolness, the birds were behaving as if it were spring.

As we were sauntering along a road leading to a woods near the Mauvaisterre, we heard the spring calls of Cardinals and Chickadees. On our way to this spot we had already heard a chorus of many Meadowlarks—a medley of song not quite so air-splitting as that on a real spring day, but a soft, sweet reminder of it.

An oak grove lay before us. From it came the calls of many Woodpeckers: the Flicker, the Hairy, the Red-bellied, and the Downy. The Yellow-Shafted Flicker hammered and clamored as it wooped from one side of the pond to the other. The zebra-backed Red-bellied Woodpeckers were everywhere, uttering their loud "cherr, cherr, cherr."

The sole Hairy was letting out its high-pitched, emphatic single "peek" intermittenly; the Downies were competing with their "pick" and rolling staccato notes almost like an excited stuttering.

Then from across the pond came a loud rattling drumming upon a hollow tree. The rapping increased in volume and speed and then died away, repeating itself rhythmically several times.

After a pause of several minutes, the same hollow rattling rolled on. Almost in unison we asked what woodpecker could make such a noise; we knew that it had to be a woodpecker. Could it be the Pileated?

We tried to find the rapper from where we stood. We turned our binoculars in the direction of the rat-a-tat-tatting but could not find the source of the sound. We looked everywhere that woodpeckers would naturally be performing, we thought.

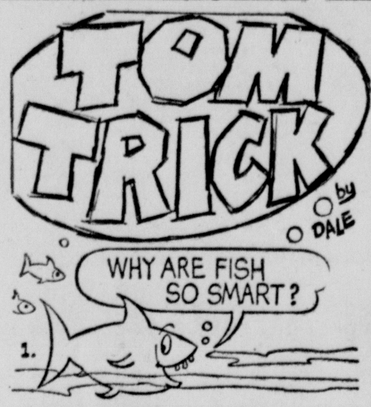

At last we decided to find a way around the pond and up the hill in order to locate the source of this ambitious rapping. As we hiked along, we saw several Red-bellied Woodpeckers that were bounding from tree to tree, uttering their loud "chunk, chunk, chunk," but they didn't pause to rap.

There He Is!

Then all of a sudden the same hollow rat-a-tat-tat sounded right above our heads. At the topmost dead branch of a tall leafless tree a tiny Downie Woodpecker, preening itself in the sunshine. There it sat in a place where no woodpecker should have sat, silently and naively observing the and the earth. Surely, we thought, this small bird could not have been filling the whole woods with that rapping.

Our thoughts were soon interrupted with the same rat-a-tat-tat. Yes, there sat the Downie, its head vibrating vigorously, as it tapped the end of the evidently hollow branch.

From the littlest woodpecker in the woods came the biggest noise We had to wonder why its tiny bill wasn't pushed back into its head as the littlest bird hammered on, but it wasn't worried.

BIRTHDAY PARADE

HERE THEY COME

Yes, here come our Birthday Marchers, boys and girls, so heads up!

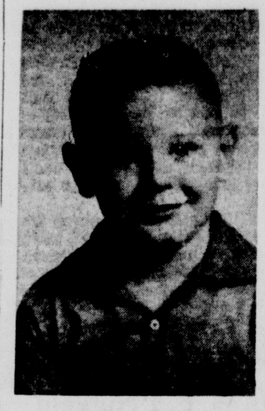

Johnny Six, who celebrated his 5th Birthday by entertaining some of his friends in Chapin, marches first. Johnny's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Six.

Games were played and moving pictures were taken of the group Johnny opened the many lovely gifts after which Birthday cake and ice-cream were served.

Those present were Elaine Alderson, Barbara Medlock, Debbie Hazelrigg, Tommy Griffen, Chris Fedder, Bobby Gobbel, Trudy and Alysia Brockhouse.

Lu Ann and Mike Sidwell, Doug and Michael Burgess and Roger and Regina Nergenah. After school, Johnny's brother and sister, Jim and Judith, joined the party. Bruce Surratt was unable to attend because of illness.

During the afternoon, Johnny's mother was assisted by Mrs. Wayne Brockhouse and Mrs. Chester Griffin.

Robert Paul

Robert Paul, son of Mrs. Dorothy Paul of Arenzville, had six candles to blow out when he celebrated his Birthday January 22.

• • •

Helen Kay Ronat was 7 years old January 25. Helen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Ronat of 322 N. East St. She is in the first grade at Jefferson and has a sister Cheri, 9 years old, and a brother Billy, age 2.

Tim Kircher

Concluding our Birthday Parade for today, but first of the February Marchers, is Tim Kircher who has only one day to wait for his eighth Birthday, February 1.

Tim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kircher of 861 W. College and moved to Jacksonville from Griggsville recently when his father started work for Anderson Clayton.

All the Junior Page readers and your editor join in wishing these Birthday Marchers a VERY HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

Your Birthday

To march in the Birthday Parade, just send your name, address, age and birthdate to the Jacksonville Junior Journal Courier two weeks before your birthday. Send a snapshot if you have one; the photo may be called for as soon as it has appeared in the paper.

If you have a party, tell us about that later.

More On Power Supplies

While studying the examination questions a number of important facts are pointed out and warrant being stressed again.

Although the lower priced amateur transmitters do sometimes use a common power supply for both oscillator and final amplifier, for the sake of economy, plate-voltage variations can appear on the plate of the oscillator (caused by the varying load appearing on the plate of the final amplifier). This can cause instability and chirping in the keying of this oscillator. Of course its obvious remedy is the use of either regulated voltage for the oscillator or a separate power supply for the oscillator.

As stated before, the output of a full-wave rectifier supply has a higher ripple frequency and can, therefore, be filtered out more easily than can a half-wave rectifier system. Consequently, transmitter supplies are usually full-wave affairs basically.

In high voltage supplies (over say 1 KV) you use a swinging choke to improve voltage regulation. This is accomplished through the use of increased inductance and an aiding induced E.M.F.

Some stored up energy is added to the voltage as current flowing through the choke is decreasing. This tends to keep the output-voltage constant with a varying load.

As the load decreases the choke increases in inductance. As load increases the choke decreases in inductance so as to maintain a mean level of inductance or a CRITICAL level of inductance for better overall degree of regulation under a varying load.

Use Mercury-Vapor Tubes

For these high voltage supplies one usually uses Mercury-Vapor type single diode rectifiers. These tubes (such as the 866As) have a fairly high current rating, and lower internal voltage drop (due to less internal resistance) than is found within a Vacuum-Type rectifier (AE 5R4GY), but require the use of a choke imput type filter (both a swinging and a smoothing choke) so as to limit the voltage peaks.

Mercury-Vapor tubes possess a rather critical peak inverse voltage and current ratings. Incidentally, the PEAK INVERSE VOLTAGE rating of any particular Mercury-Vapor tube is that given voltage that it can stand up under between the plate and cathode or filament when the tube is not conducting. (Per example: 866A—10,000 volts). The maximum P.I.V. of a High-Vacuum rectifier is only limited by its internal built-in insulation.(An example: 5U4GB—1,550 volts.)

Filter Out D.C.

A filter is used in all cases to filter out the pulsating D.C. component of the rectifier which, in the case of a full-wave rectifier, is pulsating at the rate of 120 C.P.S. Thus the filter smooths out the voltage by filling in the "Valleys," so to speak, between pulses.

If such a filter should either short or become very leaky, it will put an abnormally heavy load on the rectifier or rectifiers causing the tube plates to glow red. Often times this will cause the tube to short and burn out.

CAUTION

The fuse in the 117 volt A.C primary circuit of the supply is put there specifically to protect the supply from such an unexpected overload. Incidentally, bleeder resistors CAN AND SOMETIMES DO OPEN. When they do, there is no return path to ground for the filter capacitors to leak off through. Therefore, lethal voltage charges may appear across these capacitors for some time after a high voltage supply is shut off. So, for safety sake ALWAYS SHORT THESE CAPACITORS TO GROUND EVERY TIME BEFORE WORKING ON SUCH A HIGH VOLTAGE SUPPLY!

D. C. should never be applied to the primary of an A.C. type power transformer. So doing will result in excessive current flowing through the primary winding, overheating it, and quite possibly burning it out.

EXERCISE CAUTION WHEN YOU WORK ON THAT HIGH VOLTAGE POWER SUPPLY AND YOU WILL LIVE LONGER!

Preparing Own Meat In Long-Ago Days

By Mary Pence Claywell

Part I: Hard To Believe

Today, as we wheel little carts up and down the aisles in our big modern grocery stores, picking up food packages of this and that, much of it is ready for eating without further preparation. Then we turn to the spotless meat counters and show-cases with their attractive array of fowl, fresh meat, and cured delicacies all ready for the skillet.

Our children of today sometimes find it hard to believe that in the early days, their ancestors raised their own hogs, killed and dressed them, and cured their own meat and preserved it in various ways to last them the whole year through. "Frys" were unheard of except in season, and that was around the Fourth-of-July on, until they were too large for anything older than stewing and baking. So pork cured, fried down, pickled and what not, was stored for use in any month or season.

Thinks Auntie Is Joking

No wonder Andy, a little boy of these modern times, found it hard to take Great Aunt Jane seriously when she asked "How would you like to prepare your own bacon, Andy, from 'pen to table'?"

"Don't be funny, Aunt Jane . . . what boy or girl ever killed a hog and got him ready for breakfast," answered Andy as he reached for another slice of crisp, lean-streaked "store" bacon.

"I don't think I'd like it; ugh, what a messy job it would be!"

"Folk didn't think of it that way in my day," said Aunt Jane, "butchering day was one of the biggest and best of the whole winter season."

Then Aunt Jane, in imagination, slipped back through the portals of yesterday, and became a young girl again on her father's farm, many years ago; and guess what, girls and boys . . . Andy also in imagination, tagged along joyfully in Aunt Jane's wake as she reminisced, feeling for the world like a deliciously stuffed, little pioneer boy, at the end of the happy jaunt.

"When the days were crisp and cold, either before or right after the holidays," began Aunt Jane, "farm families and folk in the small villages killed and cured their own meat. Sometimes when the winters were unusually hard and long, butchering parties were held all over the countryside, even as late as the last week in March.

Game To Play

By Joseph A. Smith

Fun With Balloon

If you have two or more friends there with you and you have a basement where mom will allow you to get rather active without fear of breaking something, then this can be a lot of fun.

Blow up a dime store balloon to about one foot in diameter, and tie the open end quite tightly (or use rubber bands) to prevent air escaping too rapidly.

Clear out an area of the floor about 8 by 12 feet. Across the exact center stretch a width of string as high as the ceiling will permit and yet allow you to knock the balloon over the string.

Now choose equal teams and take up position each side of the string. We are now set up for balloon volley ball.

Follow the same rules as with regular volley ball, GOING UNDER THE STRING DOEN'T COUNT!

Balloon Basketball

If you're a crack shot with a basketball, then while down there in the basement why not demonstrate your skill with that same balloon?

Borrow a round shaped waste basket from upstairs, place it up as high as your particular set-up allows, try shooting at it from different angles as in "Rounders", and try different ways of throwing it. That balloon won't always go exactly where you want it to, so that a so-called "expert" may be fooled!

Each successful toss counts one point. The regular game of 21 points might be played.

Three Jet Balloons

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Mother came home with three jet balloons, a green one for Charles, a yellow one for Henry and a pink one for William. Up they bounded to the ceiling as fast as the boys could blow them into long bulging shapes that romped above their heads squeaking signals until they dropped here and there about the room.

Charles ran to the telephone to call to his grandmother "The jets are flying over the boys' heads! Can't you hear them?"

"No!" she answered and ran out doors to ask Grandfather "Have you heard jets? they are over the boys' house!" But neither could see anything except sky in the sky.

After while two boys came rushing into their kitchen, but Charles followed slowly. In his hand swung three silky strips, a green one, a yellow one and a pink one.

Before they got their caps off Grandfather asked "Where were those jet balloons?"

"Why they were in our house, couldn't you hear them? Look!" Each began to blow into his colored strip; longer and lumpier they swelled, bobbing higher over their heads until Charles' began to rise. How it romped across the room in the warm air beeping "Here I come!"

"Quick, quick," yelled Grandfather, "Don't let it touch the stovepipe!" Hurriedly they swished it into a safer corner where it began to drop and again looked like a piece of green ribbon.

Better Airport

Then Henry and William sent their jets aloft, but Grandfather reached for his hat, saying "Put on your coats and caps, boys, there is a better airport out of doors."

Now the balloons eddied higher and higher, carried upward in a light breeze.

Their colors shone more brightly through their calls came faintly downward. When they lowered slowly, the green rubber alighted on soft brown grass, the pink dropped easily on garden soil, and the yellow wafted its way over the fence to a neighbor's lawn.

"One more blow, boys, the wind is getting cold, we must go indoors," Grandfather signaled across the airport.

Charles' green jet and William's pink one rolled and whirled skyward together, but Henry's was not quite fully inflated. As he walked toward the house he blew more air into its throat until it seemed longer and pulled harder to get away than ever before, then he held it high to watch it bounce.

But with a sharp twist it broke away from his mooring hand.

Work progresses on giant 24-foot-diameter first stage of Saturn. Struts leading from center section to outer "wagon wheel" will provide support for a cluster of eight rocket engines.

Saturn's proposed water journey from Alabama to Florida.

SATURN: Ark of Space---

Even while testing goes on with the little one-man Project Mercury capsule, which will put an American astronaut in space within the next two years, a gigantic rocket intended to carry men to the moon and beyond is under construction. This is Saturn, the most ambitious plan yet devised by this country. Saturn's first stage alone will generate 1.5 million pounds of thrust and will be able to orbit a 15-ton payload. So huge will it be that it will probably have to be carried by barge from Huntsville, Ala., the building site, over inland waterways and the Gulf of Mexico to Cape Canaveral, Fla. (See map, left.) Some 150 million dollars will be spent on Saturn this year by National Aeronautics and Space Administration, but many claim that is not enough, that lack of funds is stalling the program. The first stage is expected to be tested early this year. The first full-fledged space mission for the complete three-stage Saturn is scheduled for 1964 or 1965.

Completed three-stage Saturn will stand some 200 feet high.

Committee Meets Tuesday With Mrs. Brownell

The executive committee of the United Council of Church Women met Tuesday with the president, Mrs. Archie T. Brownell, serving dessert at 1 o'clock.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Mrs. Farrell Patterson. Mrs. Alice Englebach reported that 240 blankets and $86 were collected by the churches. The blankets were taken to Eades storage for shipment abroad.

Mrs. William Hawkins reported there were a great number of used nylons taken to the annual meeting. These have been sent to Japan where they will provide employment.

The president made the following appointments: chairman of the "Church Woman," Mrs. Farrell Patterson; historian, Mrs. William Hawkins; public relations, Mrs. Tom Muntman; chairman for World Day of Prayer, Mrs. John C. Primus; chairman for Lenten Day Services, Mrs. Malcolm Stewart and nominating committee, Mrs. Lyle Davis, Mrs. A. G. Stewart and Mrs. G. A. Mann.

Mrs. Engelbach announced the state meeting of the United Council of Church Women of Illinois would be held at Evanston on May 12 and 13. She urged all who could attend to contact her for further arrangements.

The treasurer, Mrs. Russell Lewis, read the budget for 1960. It was adopted. The state dues were increased to $55 for this year. Mrs. Primus reported the material for World Day of Prayer had been ordered. The date will be March 4, the place to be decided later.

The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Primus.

Amvet Meeting Held Tuesday At Post Home

The regular meeting of Jacksonville AMVET Post 100 was held at the AMVET Post Home on Jan. 26. Commander Fred Daniels presiding.

Colors were posted by Provost Marshal C. Hayes and semi-monthly financial report was given by Finance Officer H. W. Dodsworth.

Past Commanders Arthur Burns and John Beadles gave a report of the Third District meeting which they attended on Jan. 24 at Springfield.

The following four new members, William Joe Doyle, Don Willis, Jack Kilver and William Due, were elected into membership of the local AMVET Post and 21 renewal memberships were also received.

Junior Vice Commander Mervin Poole announced that there would be a free dance for Amvet and Auxiliary members and their guest on Saturday night, Jan. 30 at the AMVET club rooms, with Lloyd Bieber at the organ and piano.

Mention was made that the next State Executive Committee meeting would be held in Champaign on Jan. 30 and 31.

During the Post meeting, Commander Daniels presented Gus A. Bennett with a Gold Star Father Life Guest Membership Card. Presentation was made on the eve of the birthday of Mr. Bennett and was given in memory of Amvet William Alvin Bennett, who was killed in action in Korea on Aug. 7, 1950.

The next regular meeting of Jacksonville AMVET Jost 100 will be held on Feb. 9 and all members are requested to attend.

At the close of the meeting, membership stood in a moment of silence in memory of their departed comrades, colors were retrieved and meeting adjourned.

Community Club Of Nortonville Meets Friday

The Nortonville Community Club met at the hall on Jan. 22 with Mrs. Melvin Koehler and Mrs. Jack Ralston as hostesses. The meeting was opened with the song "America the Beautiful." The pledge to the flag and the club collect followed.

During the business session a letter was read from the Jacksonville State Hospital thanking the club for the gifts sent to patients at Christmas. Mrs. Lester Starner also thanked the members for the Christmas box sent to her son Marvin, who is in service.

A letter concerning the civil defense goal was read. Mrs. Curtis Blair read a letter concerning pardons for Hungarian teenagers who are awaiting execution for their participation in the Hungarian uprising in 1956. A petition was passed around for those who wished to sign.

Mrs. Lewis Foster and Mrs. Paul McKinnon were voted on and became new club members. Mrs. Virgil Vedder gave a talk on safety. Mrs. Bertha Henry presented Mrs. Edwin Clayton who played "Sleight Ride" and "Winter Wonderland" at the piano.

Roll call was answered by 20 members giving a safety hint. Since the club has several elderly women who aren't always able to participate, the club voted to make them honorary members. They may attend any of the meetings but will not have to participate in the program. They may also keep their secret pals.

The meeting closed with the club prayer.

The social hour was in charge of Mrs. Roy Kelly, Mrs. Robert Whitlock won the contest.

The hostesses served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

The next meeting has been changed to Saturday, Feb. 6, with Mrs. Hugh Burnett and Mrs. Clyde Gass as hostesses.

ASHLAND JUNIOR WOMEN TO MEET THURSDAY

The regular monthly meeting of the Ashland Junior Woman's Club will be held Thursday, Feb. 4, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Art Falls. Dr. David Chatara, Ashland physician and a native of Russia, will speak on the Soviet Union.

MANCHESTER METHODIST CHURCH NEEDS HELP FOR SECOND OBJECTIVE TOWARD CHURCH CENTER

Three months ago our little church of less than 20 active families undertook the establishment of a Church Center.

Within a few days our first objective will be completed and we will have a new basement with 1200 square feet of floor space with all outside and inside fundamentals in place. It will be free of debt — made possible by generous voluntary donations of labor, use of equipment, money and material.

The major items of the second objective now being undertaken will consist of installing a water system — securing light fixtures — providing lavatories and closets for two wash rooms — furnishing and equipping the basement with modern kitchen and dining room facilities and otherwise fitting it up as a Church Center within reason of cost. The material is estimated to cost between $1,600.00 and $2,000.00. This is the amount we will need to complete our Church Center.

In moving toward our second objective, we plan no solicitations but thinking there are those who might want to help we are taking this means of letting our needs be known.

Contributions will be most welcome and genuinely appreciated. The coupon below will aid in making your desires known to us.

Man In Charge Of Antarctic Operation Is Sure Today's Youth Still First Rate

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every time he reads how soft U.S. youth has become, or how juvenile delinquents are taking over, Rear Adm. George J. Dufek has a quick chill.

For the retired admiral, who had charge of Operation Deep Freeze in the Antarctic, is sure it isn't so.

"I know it isn't," Dufek said Thursday. "It's absolutely wrong. Of course, it's more interesting to read about those who are in trouble than the big majority who aren't."

Saturday at 9:30 p.m. EST on NBC, Adm. Dufek will narrate a television show, "Assault on Antarctic." He thinks this will help show what he has been maintaining all along: that this country can still round up some first-rate young men, and it's time a little appreciation was shown them.

But, first, why would any man want to go knocking around the South Pole, especially those who volunteer for a full year there?

Well, according to the admiral, patriotism is not dead. Tell a youngster his country needs him, and he may quickly decide to give up a year of his normal life.

But there are other reasons: the call of adventure, the desire to prove he's able to stand up against the elements, the hope of the career man that this will look good on the record.

Now we come to the most practical reason of all.

"The older married man goes to save money," Dufek said. "His wife takes a job, he lives on maybe $10 a month, and he comes home with a nice nest egg, practically a year's salary."

It's a sore point with Dufek that no special pay or privileges are given those who go to the Antarctic.

"They get no more for this duty than the guy in Honolulu," he said.

Nor do they get any special preference on their next assignment.

With The Girl Scouts

Next week at the Scout office the first of the new basic training sessions will be held for Brownie and Intermediate Girl Scout leaders. These meetings will be held on Tuesday and Thursday, Feb. 2 and 4, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 3 p.m. It is vitally important that all new leaders attend these training courses or send a representative if unable to attend.

This will be the first of the enlarged programs set up by members of the Training committee of the Board of Directors of our Council to comply with suggested procedures in all Councils. Formerly, basic training courses were given for one day only. The two-day session will enable leaders to obtain more program material and held with their new troops and receive more advice in leading songs and games as well as crafts.

Camp Committee

Members of the Camp committee will meet Wednesday, Feb. 3, at 9:30 a.m. at the Scott office for an important planning session and work day. Those attending are asked to come dressed in work clothes for taking an inventory of camp supplies.

The Program committee of the Board of Directors will meet at the Scout office on Friday morning, Feb. 5, at 10 o'clock.

Last week ground work was laid for new troops at Gard school in Beardstown, in Roodhouse and in the second grades at South Jacksonville school and at Jefferson school. These troops will be registered in the near future.

Mrs. Carroll Rexroat was elected chairman of the Membership-Nominating committee at their organization meeting held Wednesday evening at the Scout office. Five new members were elected to this committee at the Council meeting as reported last week.

A large group of leaders attended the workshop on weaving held Tuesday at the Scout office. Many interesting projects for troops were presented and those attending received mimeographed sheets with program suggestions for their troops.

The next film workshop entitled "Dolls, Puppets and Diversions" will be presented Tuesday, Feb. 9, at 9:30 a.m. at the Scout office.

Troop Activities

Senior Girl Scouts of Troop No. 1 entertained their mothers at a lovely tea and investiture service held Saturday afternoon, Jan. 30, at the home of their leader, Mrs. R. Y. Rowe, Jr., on South Webster avenue. Five new girls were welcomed into the troop: Jocelyn McNamara, Linda Thompson, Roselyn Wagner, Terri Bushell and Janet Hofmann. The girls planned the program and refreshments, serving sandwiches and punch from an attractively decorated table.

On Friday, Jan. 22, Brownie Scouts of Troop 64 of South Jacksonville school went to the New Method Book Bindery with their leaders, Mrs. Howard Carter, Mrs. Leroy Hedrick and Mrs. JoAnn Smith. The Brownies enjoyed the tour very much, especially watching the girl on roller skates and seeing the huge machines in operation. Vickie Slaid, reporter.

Twenty-five Girl Scouts and three leaders of Troop 65 of Meredosia enjoyed a waffle supper in their club room last Tuesday evening. Each of the three patrols gave a dramatization of a story for the Second Class requirement as entertainment. Then the girls were divided into five groups, each of which mixed and baked their own waffles. Mrs. Lois Cloyd, Mrs. Chel Young and Mrs. Charles Adams are troop leaders.

The Scout office would like to have news items or pictures of any troop giving a birthday cake to a Boy Scout troop during the coming week. February 8 is the Boy Scout 50th anniversary.

We are a United Fund agency.

ASHLAND CHURCH HAS FELLOWSHIP FAMILY SUPPER

ASHLAND—A large attendance enjoyed the January Fellowship supper in the Church of Christ basement Monday night, Jan. 18.

The evening's program was in charge of Ray Robison. The meeting opened up with the singing of three hymns, and a solo, "God Will Take Care of You" by Carol Graham, with Mrs. Leta Hammack presiding at the piano.

The scripture was read by Mrs. Imogene Way. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jones were guests of the evening, and they showed beautiful colored slides of England and Scotland from a trip in which Mr. and Mrs. Jones and their two daughters took by plane in June, 1959, and visited with Mrs. Jones' mother, whom she had not seen for 14 years. Mrs. Jones' home is at West Hagley, England. Closing prayer was offered by Bud Way.

South's four spade bid was bad indeed as Terence Rees points out. With only a five card suit and a side king he should have let his partner play three notrump but South wanted to play the hand himself and his play was excellent indeed.

He decided that West's trump lead marked East with the king and that an unusual trump play would be necessary if he wanted to collect 10 tricks.

He counted five tricks outside the trump suit and proceeded to make five trump tricks as follows:

He rose with dummy's ace of trumps, led a club to his king and a second club back to the ace. Then he ruffed a third club, played a diamond to dummy's ace and ruffed dummy's last club while East discarded a diamond. Next he led a diamond to dummy's king, ruffed a third diamond, led a heart to dummy's ace and played dummy's last diamond.

At this point South had nine tricks home and was down to the singleton queen of trumps. He had to make it since it did not matter what East did because South played after him.

LIGHT OR DARK FLOORS?

There is no rule which insists that the color of the floor covering should be darker than the walls, however for a long time this was an accepted practice. Today, we plan our floor colors to suit our decorative purpose, and frequently it is the lightest color in the room.

Whether you choose a light or a dark color for your floors will depend on several factors. To be completely satisfactory, the floor covering must be practical. Light-colored carpets show spots more readily than do deep-toned rugs, and for this reason are not always the best choice in homes with children. Darker rugs, on the other hand, show dust and lint and need to be vacuumed more frequently.

A medium-toned neutral beige carpet was chosen for the floors in both rooms and the stairway in the above sketch. This choice not only unifies the rooms, but it gives unlimited leeway for introducing other colors in furnishings and accessories.

A patterned or sculptured carpet would have been equally effective in this setting, particularly since the walls and furnishings are not patterned. Whether you select a plain or patterned floor covering depends upon the decoration of the entire room, and on your own personal tastes and preferences.

Whether you're buying floor coverings, large basic furniture pieces, or small decorative accessories, you'll find just what you're looking for here in our store. Come in, browse around leisurely and let us assist you with your selections. Our latch string is out.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

With terms like "The Ugly American", "Yankee Go Home", and other such un-endearing titles rendered us generally in many countries, it was a pleasure to read that a group of famous Hollywood names are donating their time and efforts, at no pay, to a government program designed to tell Americans about the culture and custom differences of other lands in a series of films. Too often have GI's and tourists alike unconsciously made social blunders which would be harmless here, but in extreme poor taste to another people. Producer-director John Ford who heads the program together with cowboy star George O'Brien, concedes that these films may not start off a host of "Yankee We Love You" signs, but we'll bet a bald eagle to a hammer-and-sickle that a lot of the "Go Home" signs will soon disappear.

If you are interested in a Compact Car, wait and see our Valiant. We'll have them in a few days.

In Atlanta, a burglar who robbed a drugstore was identified by his dental plate, which dropped out as he left the store. Might be called "acci-dental" identification. But it's no accident that the finest used cars are identified with our lot. We have a selection of cars in every make and model, all cleaned and reconditioned before we offer them for sale. We invite you to see our cars and then compare our prices. E. W. Brown, 406 South Main. Phone 5-4333.

Bryan Wore 'Whiskers' While Practicing Law In Jacksonville

(Final installment of a paper on William Jennings Bryan, presented before the Morgan County Historical Society by Alfred Hodgson, editor of The Waverly Journal.)

"Photographs of William Jennings Bryan taken at different periods indicate that the only time he wore 'whiskers' was during the year he practiced law in Jacksonville. A letter to his future wife, Mary Elizabeth Baird, during his senior year in college mentioned having shaved off his moustache.

"One of the factors which influenced Bryan's decision to leave Jacksonville for Lincoln, Nebraska involved Richard Yates and their failure to form a law partnership which had long been under consideration. Yates was city attorney and a candidate for re-election. Bryan proposed to run for the office on the Democratic ticket and so be assured that the city attorney's salary would stay in the Bryan-Yates office. Yates objected to the proposal on the assumption that his majority over Bryan would be less impressive than the majority he could amass over any other Democratic candidate for the office and would not help in furthering the Yates political career.

"A Morgan County Biographical History printed two years later fails to mention any Bryan's ever having lived in Jacksonville, but only four years later, Congressman Bryan of Nebraska gained nation-wide recognition in a single afternoon with his Tariff Reform Speech. His ideas for that famous speech he credited to Professor Julian Sturtevant's lessons in economics at Illinois College.

A Triumphant Return

"His famous Cross of Gold speech won him the nomination for president in 1896, and when he returned to Jacksonville during his campaign tour, he drew one of the largest crowds ever to assemble here up to that time.

"Arriving on Saturday night, the Bryans were housed at the Dr. Jones home while the press corps pitched tents on the Jones lawn. Among the reporters covering the campaign was Julian Hawthorne, son of the novelist, Nathaniel Hawthorne.

"On Sunday morning, they attended services at the Presbyterian Church, and that evening they were guests of honor at a dinner in the M. F. Dunlap home. One of the many tokens carrying out the 16-1 theme which they received during the campaign was presented to them at dinner that evening when a messenger arrived with an arrangement of one yellow and 16 white chrysanthemums.

"On Monday, the candidate gave four addresses. In the morning he spoke from the Dunlap veranda and addressed Illinois College students at chapel where he praised Dr. Sturtevant and his textbook, Economics, or The Science of Wealth. This set off some partisan debate as to whether Dr. Sturtevant would have been a free-silver advocate if he had lived.

"In the afternoon, he spoke from the bandstand in the square, and in the evening, his fourth speech of the day was addressed to ladies assembled at the Opera House.

"In his book, The First Battle, Bryan recalls that Mr. Dunlap accompanied him on a swing of his whistle-stop campaign. Seated behind him on the rear platform of the train, Dunlap proved a most effective time-keeper. A tug on the Bryan coat tail was an indicator that it was time to stop talking if the train and its speaker were to reach their destination on schedule.

Oratory Touches Off Alarm

"By the end of the campaign, Mr. Bryan was recognized as one of the nation's greatest orators. Mrs. Bryan, in recalling the work he had done to perfect his talent, liked to tell of a May Day party planned by Mrs. Jones. The woods pasture which was the scene of the party adjoined the State Hospital grounds, and Bryan went to the site early in order to practice on an oration. When Miss Baird, Mrs. Jones, and the rest of the party approached the woods, a farmer who had once worked for Mr. Jones left his plow and ran to them, waving his arms and calling 'Don't go in there. There's a man over there shouting and waving his hands. I think he must have escaped from the asylum.'

"Speeches made while he was in public life demonstrate Bryan's belief in the right of the people to rule in political parties as well as in government, and in two instances, at least, he turned to old Jacksonville friends to help overthrow the traditional Cook County machine.

"Prior to the 1904 national convention, he recalls writing to Mr. Dunlap to carry out his mission, and on another occasion, a series of four letters to Judge Owen P. Thompson points out four consecutive steps to be taken in throwing a wrench into Roger Sullivan's Cook County machine.

Staunch Friend Of College

"Bryan's interest in and affection for Illinois College were demonstrated in 1903 when he turned over funds from a $50,000 bequest to various worthy causes. Among 18 colleges receiving a share, the Bryan Scholarship established here for the aid of poor boys desiring a college education was the largest. In 1905 he was elected chairman of the board of trustees. Urging alumni and interested citizens to support the college which was having serious financial difficulties, he said, 'I want this college to be an ideal college in an ideal town, and if we work together, we may make it what we will.'

"The attempt to solve the difficulties failed, and while Bryan was on a trip around the world, the trustees voted 'to accept any funds solicited by individual members of the board and given under conditions which make an acceptance possible. This would include a Carnegie gift which Bryan called 'tainted money', and Bryan therefore cabled his resignation from the board in a cablegram which contained the comment that 'commercial highwaymen are now subsidizing the college to prevent the teaching of economic truth.'

"A letter to John Ayers in 1906 went even further. The scholarship he had established in 1903 was to be continued, but he no longer wished to have his name attached to it, and if it were possible, he asked that his name be removed from the alumni list.

Bryan Clubs Organized

"Jacksonville was the first city to form a Bryan Club during his last campaign for the presidency, and cities all over the nation followed its example. At a feast for 450 held in Strawn's Hall, Bryan was the principal speaker, and the event received three full pages of coverage in the Courier, although a good portion of this space was devoted to complete publication of the speaker's address.

"After this appearance, most of his speaking engagements in this city were before the Chautauqua throngs at Nichols Park. One such speech was scheduled very close to press time for Jacksonville's afternoon paper, and a rising young reporter on that paper, thinking it might be a feather in his cap if he could publish the story that same afternoon, copied Mr. Bryan's address from the Galesburg paper where he had spoken previously.

Reporter "Sweats It Out"

"The reporter became concerned when the afternoon train and Mr. Bryan were quite late in arriving. He misjudged some of the Bryan mannerisms, too, in dressing up the story to give it local color, for at one point where he mentioned 'the smile of Mr. Bryan,' the speaker was at his most serious—almost scowling. He began to worry about his job, but he didn't lose it, for that young reporter was Birch B. Ridgway who is still turning out copy for the Journal Courier.

"When Jacksonville observed its centennial in 1925, the old favorite son returned once more. In a reviewing stand erected in front of the Court House, Mr. Bryan received a pennant from his fellow members of Sigma Pi Literary Society.

"While seated in the reviewing stand, he turned to his old friend, Judge Carl Epler of Quincy and said, 'Carl, I feel that this will be my last visit to Jacksonville.' Later in the day he addressed the crowd on the square. Here he mentioned his upcoming work at the Scopes trial. Six weeks later, on July 26, William Jennings Bryan died at Dayton, Tennessee.

"Jacksonville's last association with the Bryan family was through the daughter, Ruth Bryan Rohde, who to a great extent followed in her father's footsteps. One of her last public appearances was in this room in 1940 when she addressed the 20th District Convention of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs."

Mr. Hodgson expressed his appreciation to many people who gave him help in gathering material and in relating personal recollections; among them were Dr. Deckard Ritter and the staff at the Illinois College library, the staff at the Jacksonville Public Library, Mrs. W. F. Bailey, secretary at the Presbyterian Church, the circuit clerk and county clerk, Birch B. Ridgway of the Jacksonville Journal Courier, Miss Carrie Dunlap, and Frank Wemple.

Ernest Hoagland Presides

Ernest Hoagland, president of the society, presided at the business meeting at which Miss Fidelia Abbott, Dr. Alfred Henderson, and Mr. Hoagland were re-elected to membership on the board.

Mr. Hoagland also paid memorial tributes to Olivia Dunlap and Arthur Fairbank who were members of the society for many years.

Members were asked to notify Miss Helen Sweeney if they have foreign-made or native pre-1875 articles which they will lend for display at the International Fair to be held at Jonathan Turner Junior High School on March 5.

The invocation was given by Reverend Clarence Bigler, pastor of Brooklyn Methodist Church.

Rockets Annex PMSC Crown In 46-44 Win Over Triopia

Both Clubs Evenly Matched In Close, Hotly Contested Tilt

By STAN SPOTTS

Routt and Triopia of Arenzville-Chapin-Concord gave a sterling exhibition of basketball in an evenly - matched affair Friday night before one-thousand fans in a jam-packed ISD gymnasium but it was Coach Bob Winstead's Rockets taking the final nod, 46-44, in the game that meant the PMSC Conference Tournament crown.

It was the first time in quite a spell that all the clubs finished in the order they were picked in the pre-tournament ratings with the top four teams, Routt, Triopia, ISD and Bluffs placing one-two-three and four in that order. In another thriller that got the grand finale underway saw the host Illinois School for Deaf Tigers shading Bluffs, 50-45, play. Coach Jim Bonds' Tigers controlled the ball in the in a game that had been tied, 42-42, after three quarters of play. Coach Jim Bonds' Tigers controlled the ball in the fourth chapter and outscored the Bluejays in a low scoring period, 8-3.

A Battle Royal

The Routt-Triopia clash for the championship lived up to advanced billing but both teams went a little farther and treated the big turnout to one of the finest exhibitions ever witnessed in a tournament final.

In the first quarter after the score had been deadlocked twice, Fred Curtis put Routt on top to stay for the remainder of the initial period with 4:19 left to play. A tally by Bill Tobin plus another long jump shot by Curtis boosted the Rockets into a commanding 10-4 spread with three minutes to go.

Triopia broke its four minute scoring jinx with a free throw but center Tom Shanle and Curtis connected for a 13-5 spread, the biggest lead to be enjoyed by either team in the remaining three quarters. After Curtis had connected with 2:01 left, Routt went scoreless the rest of the way while Coach Glenn Ambler's Trojans collected three more points to trail, 13-8, after eight minutes of play.

Triopia Threatens

Center Tom Shanle proved to be a tower of strength under the boards for Routt in the first quarter and he continued his fine work in the second canto to keep Triopia from catching up. Earl Dufelmeier, who had been a silent partner in the scoring for Triopia in its other two tourney games, caught fire for the Trojans with six points in this stanza and Routt's lead began to dwindle midway through the period.

Then Alan Anderson, Triopia's final all-around athlete, hit two straight to pull the Trojans within two points of the margin, 21-19. With 1:38 remaining before half-time, Mike Abernathy sank one charity toss and Routt's lead was cut to one, 21-20, but the eventual champs led at the intermission, 23-21.

Basket-for-Basket

Triopia caught up with Routt for the first time since the first quarter when Dufelmeier connected 30 seconds after the opening tip got the torrid third period underway. Then for six minutes the two teams traded basket for basket with the lead changing hands nine times before Tom Shanle's free throw with 37 seconds left gave Routt a 35-34 third quarter lead.

Shanle and Curtis paced Routt's scoring in this fraime with six points each while Dufelmeier's six was tops for Triopia.

Deciding Period

The Rockets managed to stay just ahead of the hustling Trojans in the fourth quarter but Triopia finally evened the count at 38-all with 5:02 left on a fast break layup by Karl Hansmeier.

Guard Fred Curtis put Routt out in front to stay on a driving shot with 4:40 remaining in the playoff before Tom Shanle got an easy two-pointer on a rebound for a 42-38 lead.

After a bad pass by Triopia, Routt began to stall which lasted for a minute and a half before the Trojans regained possession on a bad pass. After the losers came within two points twice on baskets by Werries and Anderson, the champs opened up a three point lead on a free throw by Trutter and went ahead by four points on another charity toss by Shanle with 17 seconds showing on the scoreboard.

With eight seconds to play, Alan Anderson hit from the side and the Trojans were down by two points, 46-44. Triopia got another chance for a shot when a Rocket pass fell into the wrong arms, namely Alan Anderson's, but the horn sounded before he could get the 35-footer away.

The win was Routt's 18th in 21 starts while the setback was only Triopia's third against 14 triumphs. The narrow victory was sweet revenge for Routt, who had lost to the Trojans in the second game of the season, 54-38.

Routt made 31 per cent of its shots in the first half and wound up with a 41 percentage for the game. Triopia hit 38 per cent from the field for the contest and hit the same percentage in the first half.

Curtis and Shanle spearheaded Routt's scoring, with 15 and 14 points respectively. Billy Tobin, who followed with eight, hit some clutch shots in the first half that aided Routt's lead.

Earl Dufelmeier and Alan Anderson each turned in a sparkling floor game and led Triopia's offensive attack out front with 14 and 13 tallies apiece.

Controlled ball playing and stalling for time paid off for the ISD Tigers in the consolation game of the PMSC Tourney held at the Tiger fieldhouse Friday night, as the Tigers overcame the Bluffs Blue Jays in the final quarter of play to win the contest 50-45.

The first quarter began as a nip and tuck battle with the Tigers and Blue Jays matching baskets for the first three minutes of the game. After a Bluffs time-out Thompson put the Tigers ahead with a 30 foot jump shot from the corner. Not to be outdone the Blue Jays came back and tied the game 10-10 all with a little over 4 minutes remaining in the quarter and again at 14-all with 1:10 seconds left. The Blue Jays then went out in front as Hutton racked up the 19th tally for the Bluffs five with 10 seconds remaining, but Parish brought the deficit to 1 point with a 20-foot shot from the side as the quarter came to a close with the score 19-18 for the Blue Jays.

ISD controlled the tip in the second quarter but lost the ball, and with 3 minutes gone in the stanza the Blue Jays began to creep up on the Tigers via the charity line, and at the midway line of the quarter Bluffs again tied the game 20-20. The Tigers then went into the lead and ran the score up to 31-27 at the half, giving the Blue Jays only 9 tallies for the quarter, all from the free throw line.

In the second half the Tigers maintained the lead for the first 5 minutes but Fredrick tied the game with a free throw, 38-38, as the clock read 2:55 left in the third quarter. The Tigers forged ahead by 4 points but Hutton and Fredrick each put a shot through the hoop to put the game in a standstill situation at the end of the quarter, 42-42.

With the opening of the final quarter the Tigers slowed down and tried to maintain a tight control on the ball. After making a lay up and a charity toss the Blue Jays again took the lead by 1, 45-44, and the Tigers called for a time out. With time resumed the Tigers went into a freeze with 5:11 remaining to be played in the contest. After Grob racked up 2 points for the Tigers and Parish a free throw, the Tigers were back in the lead and still holding the ball. The Bluffs five then had a chance to tie the game but missed a set shot as the score read 47-45 Tigers, and with 1:20 left the Blue Jays stopped to think things over by calling a time-out. With the game resuming the Tigers collected three more charity tosses as Grob made 2 and Edwards 1 to give the ISD Tigers a 50-45 edge over the Blue Jays.

In the first half of the game the host Tigers outshot the Bluffs squad with ISD shooting 49% and Bluffs 26%. The overall standing for the game was 43% for the winners and 29% for the losers.

Bluffs had the offensive standout in Fredrick who collected 17 points for the evening. Hutton also assisted the Blue Jays off the boards and helped Fredrick with the offense task.

Parish and Edwards were the offensive guns for the Tigers with 13 and 11 points respectively, and Thompson played a good offensive ball game collecting 10 for the Tiger effort.

DECATUR — The Illinois College Blueboys dropped an exciting contest to the Millikin five Friday night by a 78-71 score as Bill Schildman set a high for the year for IC with 29 points on 13 field tallies and 3 charity tosses.

The Blueboys found themselves behind after the first ten minutes as Millikin took the lead and kept it. The visitors came to within 6 points of the lead in the final quarter but could not muster enough strength to overtake the Millikin squad.

Bill Schildman, recent addition to the Blueboy lineup, drew four fouls in the first half of play but did not let that hinder him as he went ahead and set a new scoring high and collected honors for the high man of the game.

The victors had balanced scoring as 5 of the 7 men reached the double figure column as Bruce Grimes led the Millikin offense by collecting 20 points. The win gives the winners their third win of the season over 15 losse, while the Blueboys hold the same amount of wins over 9 losses.

Waverly Tops Ashland For Tourney Crown

ASHLAND—The Waverly Scotties slipped past the Ashland five Friday night to take the final game in the 32nd Ashland Invitational Tourney by winning the contest with a 66-52 score.

Paced by John Ford, the Scotties came from behind in the second stanza to take over the lead and hold it for the rest of the game. Although he collected 25 tallies, Ford was not high man as Wendell Stephenson of the losing Ashland squad managed to drop in 26 points and edge the high scoring honors.

Percentage wise the two teams fired pretty close together as the Ashland squad shot 35% and the Scotties 35%.

In the preliminary contest the Tallula five dropped the game to Petersburg in a 69-57 decision.

The high point position was a three way tie with Dawson and Moats holding it for the winners and Bandy taking in for the losers with 18 each.

Robertson Misses Record By Four

CINCINNATI (AP)— All-America Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati missed by four points Friday night setting a new three year college basketball scoring record. But his 29 points was the big punch in a 64-43 Cincinnati victory in a game kept at a snail's pace by The Citadel.

Robertson needed 33 points to crack the mark of 2,538 points left when Frank Selvy wound up his varsity career with Furman in 1954.

The Citadel came within one point of a tie, 11-10, early in the first half, then faded fast and did not threaten.

Robertson got off to a slow start, missing his first six free throws. At halftime he had 14 points and against The Citadel's slow-motion play there was little chance he could reach the record.

Robertson also went six minutes at start of the second half without a point, but with the aid of a fast break with his teammates pulled his scoring up near his 36.3 season average.

The miss from Selvy's record means Robertson will likely break it early in next Monday's game at Drake.

Cincinnati has a 15-1 mark, The Citadel is 10-5.

McLISH BEAT TOP TEAMS

CINCINNATI (AP)—After checking Cal McLish's record against the stronger teams in the American League, the Cincinnati Reds are more elated than ever. McLish, obtained in a trade with Cleveland, last year beat the White Sox four times in five decisions. Against the third-place Yankees he was 6-1 while the rest of the Cleveland staff was 5-10.

McLish won 19 games for Cleveland. In 1958 he won 16 games.

New Experimental Class In Philosophy At J.H.S.

Embarking on a two-year program of study in college-level philosophy are students in the above picture, juniors at Jacksonville High School.

They are part of a three-year experimental program conducted at JHS by MacMurray College with sponsorship of $36,000 by Lilly Foundation of Indianapolis. The only course of its kind taught in the United States, it comes up for renewal in April, with the possibility of being extended into Jacksonville area high schools next year.

President Louis W. Norris, who first suggested the course to Lilly, states: "From our experience with this project during these two years and a half, we are convinced that the program deserves to be extended to give other types of schools a chance to study it and to allow for time to perfect the material used."

Dr. Garrett, who teaches the course, joins the President in declaring that "we are pleased with the mounting evidence that philosophy as a specific discipline can yield valuable returns as a high school subject. It sharpens methods of thinking for students who do not go to college and definitely assists those who do to adjust quickly to the demands of rigorous college work."

The first course, established three years ago, was one for superior high school students with high achievement records. It included the teaching of psychology, logic, and ethics under the title "Principles of Philosophy."

Students would study each of the three areas part of the year, with assigned reading and class discussion a major part of the program.

Thirty-five of 43 students enrolled in the first two years continued to college. Dr. Garrett states, while two of the remaining eight entered military service. Twenty-two currently are enrolled in this senior class, qualifications for which are based on: (1) I.Q. (2) Reading score (3). University of Illinois Academic Aptitude Test, given to all high school seniors in Illinois, with the top 12% admitted to the class (4). Grades.

This year, a new course was added with the class pictured above. It is called "Introduction To Philosophy."

"Philosophy might well be studied at an earlier period in the educative process," Dr. Garrett said in explaining reasons behind the addition of this course.

Students in this course study "basic issues in philosophy, including such theories as materialism, realism, idealism, existentialism, and pragmatism," Dr. Garrett states. "We also include the study of such problems as communism, religious values, freedom, etc."

"Part of the Lilly experiment is to determine the advisability and practicability of philosophy taught to those less mature," Dr. Garrett states. Students in the junior class average 16 years of age.

"Gifted Drifters"

A special second section was added last year with a class for high I.Q. students with low achievement records, sometimes called "gifted drifters." It was discontinued this year only because one professor can handle only two classes, with the present junior class experiment felt desirable.

The only difference between the "gifted drifter," Dr. Garrett points out, and the first class, "is lack of proper motivation to obtain high grades, and poor study habits obtained over many years."

"Outside of class," he states, "these students do some fantastic things in the way of intellectual achievement. It is because they are thus motivated to do so. However, these same students simply look upon school as a bore."

It is Dr. Garrett's belief, after close study, that these students "should be integrated with high achievers and both be treated as a special group."

"The low-achievers seem to be helped if they are treated with this special group," he says. "This is especially true if they study the area of great ideas and ideas that concern them."

To Include Other Schools

Dr. Garrett, who received his doctorate at Harvard, related that presently under study is a plan to include these experimental courses in other high schools in the Jacksonville area. This will involve bringing other instructors into the act.

If the Lilly sponsorship of this program is renewed, he states, MacMurray will publish materials for teachers of these courses in high schools and conduct in-service training for them. Training would include attendance at a designated summer school and special assistance by Garrett himself, who would visit these schools to work with instructors on conducting the courses. A philosophy assistant at MacMurray will be added to assist in this work.

Jacksonville was the scene one year ago of a conference on teaching philosophy in high schools, when some 100 persons attended. Featuring it were Harry and Bonaro Overstreet, who talked on moral and spiritual values in teaching philosophy. They are the famed husband-wife philosophy team, who enthusiastically endorsed the MacMurray-Jacksonville high school plan.

NEW YORK (AP) — Cuba's Benny Paret made it two straight over Charley Scott by gaining a split decision over the Philadelphian in a close television 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden Friday night. Paret weighed 150, Scott 146.

The muscular, 22-year-old Paret proved his Dec. 18 victory over Scott was no fluke by slugging it out toe to toe with the vaunted puncher. The Kid was credited with the only knockdown when he nailed Scott with a right to the ear in the fifth round. The heavy blow sent Charley spinning and one glove touched the floor. Referee Petey Della ruled it was a knockdown and gave Scott the mandatory eight count. That disputed knockdown proved the difference in the fight.

Judge Leo Birnbaum gave them each five rounds but had Paret in front on points, 8-7. He gave Paret three points in that round because of the knockdown. Della scored for Paret, 5-4-1. Judge Joe Eppey had Scott the winner, 5-4-1. The Associated Press had them even in rounds, 5-5, but gave Paret the edge on points.

Pittsburgh Has Promising Crop Of New Hurlers

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— No wonder the Pittsburgh Pirates could afford to trade away pitcher Ronnie Kline. Not in years have they had as many promising freshmen hurlers as will report to the Bucs' training quarters in Ft. Myers, Fla., next month.

No fewer than 11 of the 17 newcomers are pitchers. Those who appear to have the best chance to stick and perhaps land a regular starting job are Joe Gibbon, Jim Umbrecht and Alvin Jackson.

Gibbon, a 24-year-old left-hander, from Hickory, Miss., had a standout season at Columbus in 1959 where he won 16, lost 9, turned in a 2.60 earned run average and fanned 152 in 201 innings.

Umbrecht, a young right-hander from Salt Lake City, had a 14-8 record and four shutouts in the Pacific Coast League. He struck out 119 in 136 innings, walking only 43. Jackson, 24, a left-hander, led the International League with a 15-4 record at Columbus. He completed 12 of 19 starts, had a 2.33 ERA and fanned 111 in 162 innings.

Other Columbus pitching graduates include Ron Blackburn (4-1), Fred Green (3-5), Curt Raydon (7-4) and Don Williams (7-3). Salt Lake City alumni include George Perez (11-7), Earl Francis (6-5) and Eduardo Bauta (7-8). Tom Cheney, acquired from the St. Louis Cards, was 5-6 at Omaha.

The best of the new outfielders appears to be Henry Mitchell, a 24-year-old Panamanian who was purchased from Denver for $50,000 and two players.

A couple of infielders, second baseman Manuel Javier and shortstop Dick Barone, appear in need for more seasoning.

NEXT — Washington Senators.

COURT UPHOLDS SALE OF STOCK TO BILL VEECK

CHICAGO (AP) — The Appellate Court Friday, in effect, upheld the sale of majority control in the Chicago White Sox to Bill Veeck.

The court backed a Circuit Court opinion last December which denied a petition by Chuck Comiskey, Sox vice president, to restrain his sister from selling club stock held in estate.

The lower court ruled that 1,041 shares in the estate held by Dorothy Comiskey Rigney were a specific bequest to her by her mother, the late Grace Comiskey, Sox president.

Veeck previously had 1,694 shares delivered to him in purchase of 54 per cent of the club for $2,700,000 last Feb. 17. Chuck owns or controls 500 fewer shares, or 46 per cent of the club.

THE LADY AND THE GIANT

By Clarence Budington Kelland

THE STORY: Orrin Applegate learned just in time that there was fraud in connection with a personal-injury suit which he was asked to handle in behalf of a boy attacked by a medicine show. He promises Madam Classic Janeway, who revealed the truth, to make an investigation.

* * *

XVIII

I walked downtown after breakfast, worried about the situation that confronted me. On the way I passed the Bastable Building at Warren and Water Streets where the Cardiff Giant was being exhibited in a store. The rumor was traveling about that it was to be transported to Albany and exhibited in Geological Hall. I did not climb to my office, but continued on to the field on the outskirts of town where the medicine show was encamped. The performers and employees were eating breakfast in an open-sided tent, and they did not seem to be the glamorous lot that displayed themselves to the public in the evening performances.

I approached the table at the head of which Gideon Weeks sat with his ham and eggs.

"Hey, rube!" someone called warningly as I approached, and a dozen heads turned in my direction with no welcome in any face.

"Mr. Weeks," I said, "may I speak with you?"

"Certainly, certainly, Applegate," he responded, and emptied his coffee cup at a draught. He threw his long legs over the wooden bench upon which he sat and strode toward me. He was a fine, upstanding body of a man, almost as tall as myself, but more neatly made.

"What," Weeks asked of me, extending a carefully tended hand, "brings you here so early in the morning?"

"We can," I said stoutly, "dispense with handshaking until we clear up a moot point."

His eyes narrowed and his lips formed a line under his mustache.

"Moot," he said. "Just what point is moot so early in the morning-o?"

"Your honesty," I said directly.

* * *

Weeks hunched his shoulders and doubled his fists, and I thought he was about to strike me. "Hold your hosses," I warned. "I'm pretty stout, Mr. Weeks, and the canawlers have taught me how to rassle. I'd get the best of you."

He stopped and relaxed, and then grinned almost amiably. "Maybe you'd get the best of me, son, but what if I sicked the troupe onto you?"

"Why," I said, "I'd fight until I got licked, a dozen against one. And then I'd go down to the canal and collect my own dozen and demolish your troupe and your camp and leave the place a shambles."

He studied me a moment and shrugged. "I thought," he said, "that you were one of those James Street aristocrats."

"So I am," I told him, "but I ramify."

"Very good, Applegate, you ramify. Now let's get down to this moot. What gives you the idea I'm not honest as the sun that shines?"

"Well, Mr. Weeks," I said, "there's a sort of a freak of nature going around the country. A small boy who is endowed with a peculiar physical ability. He can disjoint himself at will. He can throw out his hips or his shoulders or his knees whenever he wants to. He can pretend to fall down somebody's stairs or to be hit by somebody's horses, and it looks like a genuine and severe injury. It even passes doctor's inspection because there is actual, visible dislocation." I paused and fixed my eyes on his. "Is that moot enough for you, Mr. Weeks?"

"Sonny," he said patronizingly, "you didn't come up with this all by yourself. No young rube lawyer in this back country was ever that smart. I'll be obleeged to you, Mr. Applegate, if you'll tell me who put you wise."

"You're not denying?"

"I'm caught so I'm caught. What's your proposition?"

"Clear out of town," I said firmly.

He shrugged. "We got the place practically milked dry," he said. "I'd rather take my tarnation time pulling out than have to skedaddle between two days. But have it your way, Mr. Applegate; we vamoose."

He made a place beside him at the trestle table and a plate of ham and eggs and a tin cup of coffee were placed before me. Mr. Weeks appeared to hold no resentment, but, on the contrary, paid me compliments upon my astuteness.

The small boy was brought out all properly, jointed again. He seemed a mentally stunted child and I thought this might be due to the fact that he was used as the mesmerist's subject.

* * *

A slim, weasel-faced, lugubrious man sat next to me and never moved a muscle of his face except to chew food.

Weeks indicated him to me. "He'd be the best conjurer in the nation," Weeks told me, "if only he had the patter to go with it. But he's useful, Mr. Applegate. He's useful." He widened his eyes and peered at me humorously. "Now I warrant your wallet is full of money," he said, "and you've got a handkerchief in your back pocket and pencils in your vest and maybe a jackknife."

I felt for those articles, but my pockets were as empty as the day they came from the store.

"Give them back to our guest, Monk," Mr. Weeks said gaily, and the dour, skinny man passed back my belongings one by one without a glint of laughter in his dull eyes.

SAFETY: Aviation's Watchword

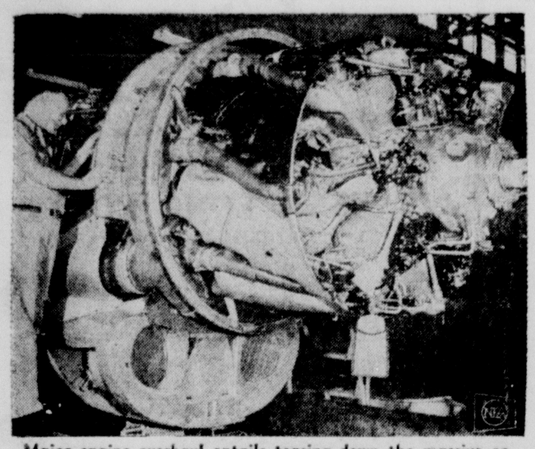

In spite of a recent rash of airliner crashes, flying is safer than ever before. At least, so say the figures. In 1959, even with nine fatal crashes and 257 deaths, the U.S. airline fatality rate ran below one death for every 100 million passenger miles for the eighth year. Scheduled airlines carried nearly 50 million passengers in safety last year, millions of them in jets. The airlines are, and have been, operating under the most rigid maintenance rules in their history. Pictures of piston-engine planes, left and below, illustrate this "cycle maintenance"—keeping all planes in constantly perfect condition. Jet aircraft come under the same scrutiny. This helps explain why, of the nine crashes last year, seven involved no engine failure. (Causes of the other two are still being investigated.) The safety attack now is centered on outmoded airport facilities, improving in-flight traffic control systems and—the human factor.

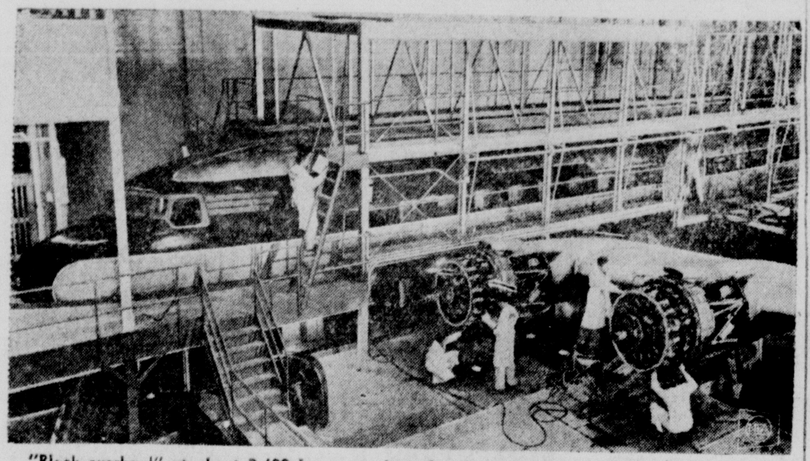

After every landing, a visual inspection of aircraft is made.

After 130 hours, or less, of flight time, engines are thoroughly checked. At 800 hours, they are removed, as above.

Major engine overhaul entails tearing down the massive engines, replacing worn parts, and putting them together again.

"Block overhaul" at about 3,400 hours consists of major inspection of all key parts and systems. After four such overhauls, an airliner literally has been rebuilt from nose to tail.

TV NEWS

by DON SHUMAKER

On Sunday, Feb. 7, CBS will present a story of one of the great tragedies that occurred during the 1930s, entitled "The Dust Bowl." This story will show how the great swirling dust storms almost created an American Sahara as the result of man's thoughtless abuse, neglect and poor farming methods. In the Texas Panhandle and Oklahoma this period could have been appropriately called "The Dirty Thirties." Years of over-grazing and over-planting had eroded the soil to the point where a serious drought simply dried up what soil was left and the winds blew great clouds of dust over the land.

As a result of this disaster of nature, marginal farmers and ranchers were starved out, their lands parched. Those with resources managed to pull in their belts and squeak through the drought years. They have taken a hardlearned lesson from their earlier disregard of nature and once again have fertile land to which they now apply the latest scientific methods of irrigation, crop rotation and animal husbandry. We can read about important past events in our history books, but for most of us the medium of TV gets the story across in a much more vivid and interesting manner. And the better the TV set you have, the more you will enjoy the programs. If you have owned an RCA Victor TV we don't need to point out its merits to you. You're familiar with its high quality picture and sound and its dependability. If you haven't owned an RCA TV set, come in for an interesting demonstration. SHUMAKER TV AND APPLIANCES, 222 East State Street. Phone 5-6595.

THE PRICE OF PRESCRIPTIONS

One reason why people may be surprised at the price of their prescription is because it isn't a regular expense item like other (and often more expensive) items such as dinner out, auto repairs or clothes for the kids. Yet the savings afforded in prevention of hospitalization or loss of job time more than make up for the price of the prescription. Gain full benefit from your doctor's expert care by bringing your prescriptions to our registered pharmacists.

BUTCH BOUNCES BACK

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — Even dogs apparently are getting hangovers these days.

A Nogales housewife said her dog was feeling out of sorts recently, "but he snapped right back, when I gave him a seltzer tablet and a drink of coffee."

AN OLD FRIEND GETS A NEW NAME

YES, WE'VE CHANGED OUR NAME!

As a farmer you will be interested to know that we changed the name of our local offices to Federal Land Bank Associations on January 1, 1960.

We believe the new name will more closely identify local associations with the Federal Land Bank System.
